Excavations Near Pyramids Reveal Relics of King Seneferu Reign, First of Fourth Dynasty

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, March 10.—A cable received today by Dr. George A. Reisner, professor of Egyptology at Harvard and director of the Harvard University-Boston Museum of Fine Arts Egyptian expedition, definitely establishes the tomb just discovered by the expedition near the Giza pyramids as being some 1700 years older than the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen and of a period which little has been discovered heretofore.

The cable was from Alan Rowe, chief assistant of the expedition, an Australian who has been working with Dr. Reisner for three years. Duncan Greenlees is the second assistant of the expedition, which began work at the present place in November.

It was founded in 1905 and actual work began in 1909 in this district.

OF FOURTH DYNASTY

The text of the cable, as extended by Dr. Reisner, was made public as follows:

"The new tomb reported from excavations of the Harvard-Boston expedition at Giza is the most important intact tomb yet found previous to Dynasty VI. It is to be dated to the time of King Seneferu, the first king of Dynasty IV, predecessor of Cheops, that is a period of 100 years up to about 3000 B.C. The new tomb is situated about 100 meters due east of the great Pyramid of Cheops. During the final clearing of the rock surface a patch of white plaster was noted which proved unusually consisting of masonry blocks laid in plaster. On removing the plaster a stairway was found filled with blocks of stone, also laid in plaster. On removing these stones steps appeared, which led down southward to the top of a square shaft, blocked in similar manner, and the stones also carefully laid to imitate the natural rock.

At eight meters down the shaft a closed recess was found in the shaft wall, which contained a mortuary offering consisting of alabaster bowls and bone matting and pottery. At twenty-six meters the floor of the burial chamber was reached on the south side of the shaft. The bottom of the shaft was reached at thirty meters. On removing the last course of stone the doorway which closed the entrance of the burial chamber, which was seen to be about three feet long by twelve feet high, was an alabaster portcullis intact and on the coffin, which is covered with gold leaf and a line of incised hieroglyphics giving the name Nebtiemkhet, which seems to be the name of the person buried in the tomb. The name indicates that he was a lady, probably a princess.

Bills Marked for Executive Veto

Governor Warns Legislature Half-Baked Measures Will be Killed

Special Appropriations to be Disapproved Unless Proved Justified

BY KYLE D. PALMER
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, March 10.—Apparently the only hope of the people of California for protection from a flood of half-considered, unnecessary and, in some instances, actually harmful legislation lies in the veto of Gov. Richardson.

This situation, closely paralleling the attitude of the Legislature two years ago which resulted in an executive veto of more than eighty measures adopted by the Senate and Assembly and refusal of the Governor to sign more than 350 additional measures receiving legislative approval, indicates the disposition of the two Houses to shift to the Governor's shoulders responsibility for approval or disapproval of proposed new laws.

Gov. Richardson, taking cognizance of this tendency in the Legislature, today informed the Senate that all proposed salary increases of various county officers, including Superior Court judges and others whose remuneration is determined by legislative action, must receive the official approval of grand juries and other local

INDIANA HIT BY CYCLONE; LOSS HEAVY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) March 10.—Damage estimated at $30,000 to $40,000 resulted today from a cyclone which swept for two miles along the Hoosier Highway between Claypool and Silver, in the northern part of the State.

No one was reported injured, but barns, chicken-houses and other outbuildings were razed. Trees were uprooted and telephone poles broken off. At one farm home a large chicken-house was blown 100 feet and fell on a garage, demolishing it. An automobile housed in the garage was hurled into the road and overturned. In some places pieces of buildings and large trees were carried hundreds of yards.

At Liberty, a small village near Logansport, many miles southwest of the cyclone's path, eight buildings were damaged by a severe windstorm.

PARIS (Ill.) March 10.—A whirling tornado sweeping a path of a quarter of a mile this afternoon tore through the southeast part of Edgar county and left behind it a mass of torn farm buildings, damaged to the extent of nearly $75,000.

The Patton Methodist Church at the Edgar and Clark county line, a stone structure, was shaken apart and leveled to the ground, while a schoolhouse 100 feet away, in which thirty students were at their desks, escaped untouched by the freak of the tornado. No injury to residents of the vicinity was reported. Houses were destroyed, others unroofed and telegraph and telephone poles were demolished. That section of the county is cut off from communication with outside points.

Police Consider Autopsy on Body of Taxi Driver

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FRESNO, March 10.—Advisability of conducting an autopsy on the body of Pat Gantele, slain taxicab driver, for whom a two months' search was conducted following his mysterious disappearance from here New Year's night and the subsequent finding of his blood-stained automobile at Stockton, was being discussed this afternoon by Fresno police. No definite decision was reached, pending receipt of further advice from Stockton, where an inquest was held last Sunday, after the body had been recovered Saturday from the Stanislaus River near Ripon.

Because of the condition of the body the autopsy would be held at the graveside before it is buried tomorrow. Gantele was shot in the eye.

GARMENT WORKERS GET STRIKE ORDER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—All members of the cloak and dressmakers' union, whose strength is given as 30,000, were instructed to stop work in 1500 shops today until they were paid the 10 to 15 per cent wage increased agreed to by jobbers and contractors February 24. As yet no formal strike is in progress, the workers remaining at their places, but doing nothing.

REGENTS AT ODDS ON SITE

Unable to Agree on Location of University Branch; Meet Again 21st Inst.; Five Cities Considered

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—The board of regents of the University of California was unable to agree on the location of the new site of the Southern Branch of the university after a closed executive session lasting almost three hours here today and adjourned until Saturday morning, the 21st inst., with a promise to make a final selection at that time.

The regents decided that the successful site must secure a majority, that is thirteen votes, of the twenty-four members of the board. Seventeen regents were present today, the absentees being Regents W. H. Crocker, E. A. Dickson, J. R. Haynes, H. A. Jastrow, F. F. Merriam, C. C. Young and Alden Anderson.

Assurance that a decision will be made at the next meeting was given by Robert G. Sproul, secretary of the regents and controller of the university.

NO VIOLENT BREAKS

"There was no violent disagreement among the regents," Sproul said. "I feel sure we would have selected a site at this meeting if all the members had been present."

Sproul announced that the choice of the regents had narrowed to the sites offered by Burbank, Fullerton, Beverly Hills, Palos Verdes and Pasadena. The last-named city has two sites which it wants to present to the regents for the new university branch.

Before the board went into executive session, the two Pasadena sites were formally tendered by J. B. Coulston, banker and hotel man of that city. One was the Hastings site of 413 acres, worth $800,000, between the city limits of Pasadena, Sierra Madre and Arcadia. The other was the Huntington site, adjoining the famous Henry E. Huntington library, in the city of San Marino, composed of 205 acres, with a value of $1,500,000.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Coulston, who was introduced by State Senator Burlingame Johnson of Pasadena, occupied the floor for almost an hour and answered a veritable barrage of questions directed at him by Gov. Richardson, President W. W. Campbell and other members of the board.

His statement that a portion of the property in the heart of the Huntington site, containing two valuable wells, would be kept in private hands seemed to find disfavor with the regents, especially Regent Garrett W. McNerney, who subjected Coulston to a cross-examination on that subject.

Coultston explained that the site is being offered free by the following cities: Pasadena, South Pasadena, Monrovia, Alhambra, Altadena, Temple, Sierra Madre, Arcadia, San Gabriel, San Marino, Flintridge, Monterey Park and Michillinda.

WISE CRACK STARTS WAR IN PANAMA

Sailor's Observation About Comparative Civilization Sets Fire Department Afire

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

COLON, March 10.—"A San Blas Indian has got a whole lot more civilization than any Panaman," remarked an American sailor early this morning to a fireman acting as a policeman.

"Gringo disgraciado, calumniator of my race," howled the insulted fireman as he attempted to drag the Yank off to the local hoosegow. And the fireman and the sailor started a private fight in which shortly joined numerous other soldiers and sailors and firemen and finally a good portion of the general street population. The little war lasted for two hours and peace was restored only when American marines appeared and rushed the American enlisted men off to their posts.

Rocks and sticks were the favorite weapons during the battle, but there were no casualties outside of a few broken heads and bruised bodies. Some proprietors of cabarets, crowded with enlisted men, closed their doors and refused to let their clients join the melee. Colon was closed to soldiers.

WANTS GERMANY IN LEAGUE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

GENEVA, March 10.—Lloyd George's epigrammatic warning at the general conference that an angry Germany should not be driven into the arms of a hungry Russia had a sequence at Geneva this afternoon, when the Council of the League of Nations under the presidency of Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, spent hours at a secret meeting in discussing how to handle the German notes concerning German admission to the League.

The meeting which was attended only by members of the Council and Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General, started from the fundamental idea that German membership in the League is a necessity to true political rehabilitation of Europe. Hence the desire of all, but especially England, to adopt no attitude toward the German demands for a privileged position under the covenant which would have the effect of driving Germany further away from the League, rather than toward it, and thereby increasing the chances that Germany would turn definitely toward Bolshevik Russia and remain coldly indifferent to continental Europe.

It is learned that after an hour's discussion, which was enlivened by the frankest kind of comment on the German armaments situation the Council reached an agreement to draft a reply to the German notes desire that Germany join the League, at the same time laying the greatest stress on need of universality in its membership if the League is to attain its high purpose.

SENATE REJECTS WARREN BY MARGIN OF ONE VOTE

Absence of Dawes From Chamber Prevents Confirmation as Attorney-General

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan, failed to become Attorney-General of the United States by a single vote today in the Senate. His nomination was rejected, 40 to 40. Vice-President Dawes failing to reach the Capitol from his hotel in time to cast the deciding vote.

Administration leaders sought to delay announcement of the result in the hope that the Vice-President, who was rushing to the Senate in a taxicab, would arrive in time to break the tie.

With victory in their grasp, Democratic opponents of the nomination vigorously demanded that the roll call be closed with the announcement of the result, but even then Republican leaders resorted to further strategy in an effort to save the nomination from defeat.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania announced that he would change his vote from yea to nay so that he might present a motion to reconsider the question. That changed the final result technically to 39 for and 41 against confirmation.

As soon as Senator Reed made his motion, opponents of confirmation countered with a motion to lay it on the table, and demanded a roll call. That vote, too, resulted in a tie, 40 to 40, but as the Vice-President, who could have cast the deciding ballot entered the chamber, Senator Overman of North Carolina, the only Democrat to vote for confirmation, switched his vote.

ACTION IS FINAL

That decided the issue, making the vote 41 to 39 to lay the Reed motion on the table, a final and irrevocable action under the Senate rules. The only way the nomination could again come before the Senate would be for President Coolidge to re-submit it.

There was no indication tonight what the President's course might be, the White House having declined to comment on the matter. If he decides not to resubmit the nomination to the Senate or to make a new one at this time, he may either leave Solicitor-General Beck in charge of the Justice Department until the next session of Congress, or make a recess appointment to fill the Cabinet vacancy during that period.

Excepting Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, whose vote was cast for strategic reasons, nine Republicans, the one Farmer-Labor Senator, Shipstead, and all of the Democrats present except Senator Overman, voted against confirmation.

The Republicans were Borah of Idaho; Brookhart of Iowa; Cousens of Michigan; Frazier and Ladd of North Dakotah; Johnson of California; McMaster and Norbeck of South Dakota and Norris of Nebraska.

VOTE UNEXPECTED

The vote on the nomination came with almost startling suddenness after six hours of debate in which Mr. Warren had been alternately defended and assailed because of his former connections with sugar interests.

More speeches were expected and after presiding most of the day, Vice-President Dawes retired to his hotel a mile away for a rest, having received, his friends said, assurances from leaders on both sides that there would not be a vote before adjournment.

Even when the roll call started, administration leaders apparently were confident that they would have a vote or two at least to spare, and they made no move to summon Mr. Dawes, concerning themselves merely with rounding up Senators from the corridors and offices.

While the crowded galleries looked down with an air of rather tense expectancy, and Senators themselves refrained from the usual hubbub, the roll call proceeded with the vote almost equally divided. So it went, nip and tuck to the end, the result standing at

FALL WILL BE SILENT

Not to Testify in Teapot Case

Ex-Secretary's Son-in-Law However to be Forced to Tell of Bond Deal

Asserted Passage of Cash Will be Taken Up Before Court on Thursday

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHEYENNE, March 10.—When ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall is called to the witness stand in the Tpapot Dome trial next week he will refuse to answer any questions, and if the government seeks to compel him to answer he will enter a plea that to do so might incriminate him. This statement was made today by one of the lawyers who is here as an "unofficial observer" for the former Secretary of the Interior. Mr. Fall who is in Denver, is expected to arrive in Cheyenne Monday.

While the government concedes it is powerless to make Mr. Fall talk, it is a different situation so far as Milton E. Eberhardt of Pueblo, Colo., son-in-law and business associate of Mr. Fall, is concerned. The impression here is that Mr. Eberhardt, who is largely interested in Three Rivers ranch properties will, in his effort to escape testifying, also put forward the excuse that to do so might incriminate him. The government will refuse to concede him this privilege and will argue that Mr. Eberhardt does not come within the privilege since he is not involved in any of the pending court proceedings, civil or criminal, and that the government has no intention of bringing him to the bar in the future. Mr. Eberhardt's fate rests with Judge Kennedy.

QUIZ ON BOND DEAL

Mr. Eberhardt is in a position to testify regarding $233,500 worth of Liberty Bonds which the government asserts came into the possession of Mr. Fall, or his associates in the Continental Trading Company "re-sale deal." The bonds were delivered to Mr. Eberhardt and were by Mr. Eberhardt converted into cash, the government alleges. The government desires to ask Mr. Eberhardt if he did not, on a certain occasion, assert that in accepting the bonds he was acting as a "trustee" for a certain person or persons. The government also believes that Mr. Eberhardt is in a position to state what consideration, if any, was involved in the $233,500 transaction.

Owen J. Roberts, of counsel for the government, said today that he expects to begin the "bond and cash feature of the trial" Thursday. The first witness in this connection will be H. C. Dunham, cashier of the First National Bank of El Paso, Tex., the bank to which certain Liberty bonds were transferred and placed to the credit of Mr. Fall. Part or all of the Doheny $100,000 loan is also said to have been deposited in the El Paso bank. M. J. Thatcher of Pueblo, banker, who converted the Continental bonds into cash, will probably follow Mr. Dunham.

DEPOSITIONS READ

Today's sessions of the court were given over to the reading of depositions, among them those of James L. Beatty, president of the Texas Company, in 1922; John C. Shaffer, Chicago newspaper publisher; Burch Helms of New York, former president of the Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil Company; Roy W. Tallman of the General Land Office in Washington; Arthur W. Ambrose, formerly of the Bureau of Mines and Col. J. W. Zevely, personal counsel for Mr. Sinclair, who is in Europe whither he went in connection with the government's efforts to make H. M.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, March 10.—The State Senate late this afternoon passed the Colorado River Compact, with reservations that ... only to the States of the lower basin and effective whenever the States of California and Nevada shall assent to the new provisions, these considered acceptable to both. The only diverse votes were of Davis of Maricopa, Donnelly of Maricopa and Colter of Apache.

The resolution varies somewhat from that submitted last week by President Winsor but is not very different in its terms. Approval is given the compact conditioned only on acceptance by California and Nevada of a submitted lower basin States agreement. Senators express belief that the resolution will be approved in the House though not without stubborn opposition from the administration representatives. It is noted that the Governor is given no share in the negotiation. Following expression of general ratification this agreement reads as follows:

The States of Arizona, California and Nevada, comprising the States of the lower division, as defined in Paragraph D, Article II of the Colorado River Compact, hereby enter into an agreement dividing and allocating between the said States the water allotted by the terms of the said compact to the lower basin, to the extent and in the manner provided as follows, to wit:

WATER ALLOTTED

Article I. (A.) There is hereby allocated to the State of Nevada, out of the apportionment to the lower basin, as provided by Paragraph A, Article III, of said Colorado River Compact, "all of the water which can reasonably be applied within said State to domestic and agricultural uses.

"(B.) There is hereby allocated one-half to Arizona and one-half to California, equally for application to such domestic and agricultural uses as such waters may reasonably be put to within such States, respectively, the remainder of the waters apportioned as aforesaid to the lower basin, in accordance with the provisions of said Paragraph A, Article III, of said Colorado River Compact.

"Article II. The right given to the lower basin by Paragraph B, Article III of the Colorado River Compact, to increase its beneficial consumptive use of the waters of Colorado River system by 1,000,000 acre-feet per annum shall attach, redate and belong exclusive to the State of Arizona provided that said right shall attach solely and shall be held to completely exhaust the right to the use of waters of the Colorado River system entering the Colorado River within the State of Arizona below Lee Ferry.

SUPPLY FOR MEXICO

"Article III. Any waters which it may hereafter become necessary, under the provisions of Paragraph C, Article III, of the Colorado River compact, to deliver to the United States or Mexico shall be supplied, first, out of the surplus waters of the main Colorado River passing Lee Ferry, over and above the apportionment to the lower basin contained in Paragraph A, Article III, and if said surplus shall prove insufficient, then the burden of deficiency resting upon the lower basin shall

MEASURER OF EARTH DIES

Prof. Hayford, Scientist and Teacher, Succumbs Few Hours After Figures Are Accepted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 10.—John Fillmore Hayford, director of the Northwestern University College of Engineering, the acceptance of whose earth measurements as international standards was announced in today's newspapers died this morning at his home, 1124 Judson avenue, Evanston. Although he had been ill and partly paralyzed since late in January, his death was unexpected.

Besides his measurements of the equatorial and polar diameters of the earth which he believed to be within 100 feet of absolute reckoning, Prof. Hayford was noted for his proof of the theory of isostasy, for his study of the effect of evaporation on Great Lakes water levels and for numerous connections with scientific expeditions of the United States government.

For his research in isostasy which extended over thirteen years, Prof. Hayford was awarded the Victoria Medal of the Royal Geographic Society of Great Britain.

Prof. Hayford's work in isostasy demonstrated the existance of a force beneath the surface of the earth that tends to equalize pressure at all points. He believed he had increased evidence that the earth is not a floating crust on a liquid interior, but solid throughout, and that his theory explained the cause of earthquakes to be deep-seated movements of the earth's bulk instead of the outburst of subterranean gases.

The problem of determining whether evaporation lowers the Great Lakes was undertaken by Prof. Hayford at the request of the Carnegie Institution in the belief that there was one chance in ten in getting the solution. After eleven years of study he announced in 1921 that he believed he had found the natural laws governing not only evaporation from the Great Lakes, but also the regulation of Niagara Falls. He said then that more time would be required. He was still engaged in that work when he died.

Prof. Hayford was born in Roseau's Point, N. Y., May 19, 1868, and graduated as a civil engineer from Cornell University. His first connection was with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. He had been a director of the College of Engineering at Northwestern since Sept. 1, 1909. He was a member of the National advisory committee for aeronautics, a fellow of the A.A.A.S., member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, the American Astronomical Society, the American Society of Engineers, the Western Society of Engineers and of the Research Association of Carnegie Institution.

He is survived by his widow and four children. The funeral will be held Thursday.

"Article IV. This agreement shall not be held to affect or alter, but is confirmatory of, the terms and provisions of the said Colorado River compact; nor shall anything herein contained be construed as affecting or intending to affect in any way, except as limited by the apportionment of waters provided in Article I hereof or to interfere in any way with the laws of any of the said States of Arizona, California and Nevada relating to the control, regulation, appropriation or distribution of water in irrigation or for domestic or other uses or any vested rights thereunder."

TIME LIMIT SET

Be it further resolved, that in the event the legislature of the State of California, or the legislature of the State of Nevada, shall fail to give its consent and approval, not later than the fifteenth day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, to the lower division States agreement, as herein set out and hereby ratified by the Legislature of the State of Arizona, then and in such event the approval of the Legislature of the State of Arizona herein and hereby given to the said Colorado River compact, and to the said lower division States agreement, shall be deemed to be withdrawn and this resolution rescinded and the same shall thereby become and be null and void.

CREATES COMMISSION

Be it further resolved, that there hereby is authorized and created a legislative commission to be known and designated as the Lower Division Colorado River Commission of the State of Arizona, which shall consist of the president of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, three members of the Senate to be appointed by the president of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and the Governor of the State and the State water commissioner shall be ex-officio members of said commission. Said Lower Division Colorado River Commission shall have authority, and upon request of the legislatures of the States of California and Nevada or of either thereof or any committee of the Congress of the United States, it shall be its duty as a committee of the whole or through a subcommittee, to confer with the duly authorized representatives of the legislatures of the said States of California and Nevada or with any committee of the Congress of the United States, to discuss with such representatives or with any such committees the several provisions and terms of the said Colorado River compact and of the said lower division States agreement and to negotiate with such representatives or committees respecting any and all matters connected with or relating to the waters of the Colorado River, their division, appropriation, diversion and utilization, or with the improvement of the Colorado River and the development of its resources, to the end that the development of the said river may redound to the just benefit of the State of Arizona and as well to the mutual advantage of said States of the lower division of the Colorado River basin; and said commission shall report the facts of such discussions and negotiations to the Legislature of the State of Arizona, with such recommendations as it may see fit to make. The expense of the said commission be a legislative expense and shall be paid out of the contingent funds.

Even at this late date new bills are being offered in the Senate, including one that would make the Governor's budget secretary a legislative officer.

bodies acquainted with the conditions.

STUDIES APPROPRIATIONS

The Governor likewise informed members of the Legislature that all special appropriation measures will receive an unbiased but a most searching scrutiny, his remarks in this regard leaving an impression generally that few special appropriation items will receive his approval.

Many measures for which the sponsors have little expectation of gaining executive indorsement are in evidence and in this category are undoubtedly proposals introduced by political enemies of the Governor for the purpose of gaining political advantages.

This is a favorite recourse of the professional labor union lobbyists, who issue a schedule of bills approved and rejected following each session, together with the record, stated in percentages, of the various legislators. Through such petty methods of would-be intimidation, the unionists seek not only to determine the course of legislation, but later to influence elections.

One of the most vicious of the union proposals in the present session, Senate Bill No. 249 by Harris and Murphy, restricting the power of the courts to enforce decrees in contempt cases arising from violation of injunction orders, was scheduled for passage in the upper house today, but was deferred pending the submission of certain amendments.

The State-wide storm of protest against this attack upon the courts of California has stiffened opposition to the measure, but a check of the vote still indicates the probability of passage by the upper house.

Another proposed bill introduced both in the Senate and Assembly, a measure drawn by City Attorney Howard of Pasadena and purporting to provide for the creation of municipal districts in Southern California for the distribution of water from the Colorado River, is creating opposition in various parts of California.

RADICAL PROPOSAL

An analysis of this proposal indicates that it is one of the most radical and Socialistic schemes ever submitted either in California or elsewhere in the United States. Its proposals in certain respects are asserted to be so illegal and impractical as to border upon the absurd. Certain legislators who were at first inclined to indorse it as a proposed means for solving the Colorado River water distribution problem are indignant at what they term the misrepresentation of its author or authors and there seems to be no likelihood of its passage either in original or amended form.

As in the case of the Howard bill and the Harris and Murphy bill, there are many proposed laws in the files of the two houses in misleading in their phraseology as to require analysis from legal and technical experts before their real purposes are disclosed. It is a lamentable fact, likewise, that some of those agreeing to sponsor legislation are not informed as to the objects sought in the bills presented to them for introduction.

APPROVE FIRE CONTROL

The Senate Conservation Committee today approved appropriations totaling $68,000 for forest conservation and fire control in Los Angeles county, the largest item being $50,000 for protection of the county "water shed."

The efforts of Southern California to establish a State fair in Riverside county, thus permitting two annual fairs in California, of which the first will continue to be held in Sacramento, are being actively opposed by Northern California legislators. A State fair for Riverside was approved two years ago by the Legislature, but was rejected by Gov. Richardson because of imperfections in the act.

WARREN BARRED BY SENATE VOTE

Michigan Man Rejected as Attorney-General

Absence of Dawes Prevents His Confirmation

the call of the last name 40 to 39 in favor of confirmation.

Field Marshalls on both sides had rounded up all their forces, but opponents had in reserve a single Senator, George of Georgia, who had declined to vote when his name was called because of a pair with Senator Phipps, Republican, Colorado. A transfer was found for him and his vote brought a deadlock.

DAWES SUMMONED

While leaders on both sides were sending pages scurrying in search of one or two absentees and were eagerly watching the entrance doors, a drama little less stirring was being enacted behind the scenes.

When it became apparent early in the roll call that the result would be extremely close, Vice-President Dawes was summoned on the telephone. He was urged not to wait for his official car, but to get a taxicab and make all haste.

His secretary, E. Ross Bartley, meanwhile hurried to the main floor entrance, stopped the taxicab before it reached the Senate portecochere and hurried the Vice-President to an elevator which had been waiting on signal from Senator Cameron, Republican, Arizona, who had stationed himself on the front portico.

But Mr. Dawes arrived in time only to hear the result on the second vote, whose his presence was of no avail because of the switch in ballot by Senator Overman.

With the casting of Senator George's tying vote on the first ballot—and on a tie the nomination was rejected under the rules—there were hasty conferences of leaders on the Republican side and the tally clerks paused in their work.

DEMANDS RESULT

"Let the result be announced," shouted Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, a leader of the opposition.

Senator Jones of Washington, the Republican whip, arose slowly to announce that Senators Warren of Wyoming; Edge of New Jersey; Green of Vermont; Phipps of Colorado, and Lenroot of Wisconsin, all Republicans, were absent.

Again there were demands that the roll be closed and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, changed his vote, explaining that he did so in order that he might make a motion to reconsider.

President Pro Tem Moses then declared the vote to be 39 yeas and 41 nays, and the nomination to be rejected. Instantly a burst of applause swept around the Senate galleries and brought a sharp rebuke from the presiding officer for the breach of the Senate rules.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania offered his motion to reconsider.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, another leading in the opposition, was on his feet immediately with a motion to lay the motion on the table.

Then a second roll call proceeded amid much hubbub.

When the last name had been called the count again stood at 40 to 40, but this time a tie would have been a victory for the administration, as the Walsh motion would have been lost.

CHANGES VOTE

Before the result could be announced, however, Senator Overman announced that, since he was convinced that his Democratic colleagues did not want Mr. Warren as Attorney-General, he would change his vote so as to support, instead of oppose, the Walsh motion. That made the result 41 to 39, and closed the issue unless the nomination is resubmitted.

Just before the vote on confirmation the two Senators from Michigan — Couzens, Republican, and Ferris, Democrat—voiced their opposition to the nomination.

Senator Couzens said he did not believe Mr. Warren would inspire confidence as Attorney-General.

"I would not hesitate to put Mr. Warren in the Department of Justice," he said. "If I were going to have the right to watch and follow him. I would not hesitate to say that under those circumstances he would do his duty."

Senator Ferris said he had known Mr. Warren for many years and esteemed him very highly.

"But," he added, "the information brought out here is of such a character as to make me feel that I owe it to the State of Michigan and to the people of the United States to vote against him."

SPEAKS IN DEFENSE

At the outset of the debate, Chairman Cummins of the Judiciary Committee which twice favorably reported Mr. Warren, spoke vigorously in his defense and contended that he simply had served as counsel for the American sugar refinery interests in the acquisition of stock in beet-sugar factories in Michigan from 1902 to 1906.

Senator Cummins emphasized that when the government brought suit under the antitrust law against the American Sugar Refining Company, Mr. Warren and others, the bill was dismissed as to Mr. Warren. He also called attention that the District Attorney had stipulated that the American Sugar Refining Company paid no service charges for the organization of the Michigan Sugar Corporation to Mr. Warren or any firm with which he was connected.

Senators Walsh and Reed of Missouri led the attack. The former read into the record letters produced at the trial of the government suit designed to show that Mr. Warren actually was business agent and representative for the American sugar interests in Michigan and that he had sought to eliminate competition among the sugar factories, on the one hand in buying beets from the farmers and on the other in the sale of sugar.

Discussing these letters, Senator Reed said they had demonstrated that Mr. Warren had been party to a "conspiracy" to violate the antitrust laws and that if the law had been enforced against the rich and powerful as it was against the poor and lowly "all of these gentlemen (referring to defendants in the government's suits) would have been put behind the bars."

DOHENY AND STANDARD IN NEGOTIATION

Mexican Oil Properties May be Sold in $125,000,000 Transaction

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—The New York Times will say tomorrow that Edward L. Doheny is carrying on negotiations for the sale of all the Mexican oil properties controlled by his companies to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Blair & Co., Inc., local bankers, and certain British interests. This fact, the Times will say, was confirmed tonight by Mr. Doheny's secretary.

The deal, if consummated, will involve nearly $125,000,000, according to the Times' which bases its figures upon the capital and bonded indebtedness of the Mexican Petroleum Company and its subsidiary organizations and the current market prices for the securities of these organizations.

The Times will add, however, that it is not considered likely that this amount of money actually will change hands, as the buyers are expected merely to assume the bonded indebtedness and preferred stock of the Mexican Petroleum Company.

The contract has not yet been signed, the newspaper will say, but Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, is now believed to be making an inspection tour of the Mexican property.

In event the sale is consummated, the Times says, it probably will result in a readjustment of affairs within the Pan-American Petroleum Company by segregating the Mexican from the American properties, with the company confining its activities to the development of the petroleum industry in the United States, especially on the Pacific Coast.

According to the article, it is understood a new company would be organized to operate the American properties of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company. This arrangement, the Times says, would permit stockholders to exchange the present "A" and "B" shares for stock in the new company.

Acquisition of the Mexican holdings would give the Standard Oil of Indiana second rank among the largest oil companies of the world, according to the Times.

EXTRA SESSION FUTILITY SHOWN

Warren is Rejected, Treaties Not to be Taken Up

Failure of Confirmation is Laid to Absenteeism

Five Regular Republicans Not Present at Roll Call

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The futility of the present extra session of the Senate was demonstrated in the performance late this afternoon by which the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be Attorney-General was rejected by one vote. It is impossible with the narrow regular Republican majority to maintain control in the face of absenteeism. In addition to the Vice-President, five of the administration Senators were absent at the critical time today, namely, Senators Edge of New Jersey, who is on his way to Europe; Warren of Wyoming, who is en route to his home State; the enfeebled Senator Greene of New Hampshire, who has never fully recovered from the effects of the misdirected bullet which entered his head last year, and who is now on the way to Hawaii, and Phipps of Colorado, and Lenroot of Wisconsin who also were out of town.

The Senate might as well quit now and go home. That is the opinion of some of its leaders. There is nothing for it to do.

TREATY HOPE GONE

The last lingering hope that something will be done about the World Court treaty has disappeared. No one seems to want to put this controversial question to the test of a vote at this time while it is notorious that if the subject is brought forward it will precipitate an interminable debate. Even those who are certain to be engaged in such a debate dread the prospect.

The Lausanne Treaty, as reported in these dispatches yesterday, is dead so far as this session is concerned. The Isle of Pines Treaty is not going to be disturbed. It has slumbered for twenty years and the Senators seem to think that a few months of additional slumber will do it no harm. Furthermore if it came up it too would produce a debate lasting many days.

This reduces the business of the Senate to the confirmation of Presidential appointments. There are impending a number of judicial appointments and a very much larger number of diplomatic appointments, for the quadrennial changes in embassies and legations are overdue. It is to be doubted, however, that President Coolidge will flood the Senate with nominations now. His experience with the nomination for Attorney-General has not produced in the Presidential breast an eagerness to seek the "advice and consent" of the Senators on his selections until they have had a period of relaxation at home and an opportunity to ascertain the sentiments of their constituencies.

NO APPOINTMENTS NOW

It was announced at the White House today that no appointments of Federal Judges and no appointments within the field of the Department of Justice will be sent in until after the confirmation of the Attorney-General, because the President desires to have the advice of this new Cabinet officer on all such nominations before making them.

The White House also gave the information that the entire foreign service was undergoing a survey, a bit of information that confirmed the existing belief that a number of changes are to be made. It is known that the President has received, as is customary at the end of a Presidential term, a large number of resignations of ambassadors and Ministers. It is known also that some of these resignations are to be accepted and others are to be refused and the officers who made them are to be asked to remain in the service. In other words the formal resignations that follow, by custom, the inauguration of a new administration are to be divided into two classes. Those who have made good in the service and who are willing to stay will be retained. Some of them certainly are to be promoted.

SHORTRIDGE'S STAND

But it now appears that the great majority of judicial and diplomatic appointments are to be made in recess, after the present session of the Senate has terminated. The officers appointed in this manner will enter upon their duties at once, but will not come before the Senate for confirmation until December. Then they will have the advantage of being actually in for this is a real advantage. The Senate very rarely rejects the appointment of an officer made in recess. Much more often it rejects a regular appointment submitted to it when it is in session.

Senator Shortridge today made the following speech which undoubtedly stands in a class by itself both as to brevity and clearness. During the consideration of the confirmation of Charles B. Warren to be Attorney-General, Senator Shortridge said:

"The people of the United States have confidence in the President.

"The President of the United States has confidence in Charles Beecher Warren.

"As a Senator of the United States I have confidence in them both.

EIGHT QUIT RATE FIGHT AT HEARING

Complaints Withdrawn by Motor Car Dealers; Other Cases May be Dropped

Hearings before Examiner Flynn of the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider charges made against transcontinental railroads for asserted excessive freight rates on automobile shipments to California took a sudden turn yesterday when eight local motor-car dealers asked that their complaints be withdrawn without prejudice.

Eighteen dealers originally filed complaint against the railroads, asking the commission to adjust existing rates and to order approximately $400,000 returned to them as reparations on excessive charges levied by the carriers during the last two years.

The case was called for hearing in San Francisco and considerable testimony taken. It was continued to Los Angeles yesterday when the local dealers requested that their charges be withdrawn. Examiner Flynn was asked to act on these requests without prejudice to enable the dealers to file new complaints at a later date if this is desired.

Yesterday's hearing was continued until 10 a.m. today and it was intimated that the remaining dealers will withdraw their complaints. Harold L. Arnold, one of the local dealers who withdrew yesterday, said a request to this effect will be made.

The local dealers who withdrew yesterday are Earl C. Anthony, Inc., W. P. Herbert Company, White Automobile Company, Lord Motor Car Company, Greer-Robbins, Stanley W. Smith, Inc., J. W. Leavitt Company and Harold L. Arnold, Inc.

FALL TO REFUSE OIL TESTIMONY

Blackmer of the Midwest Refining Company and James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, tell what they knew about the Continental Trading Company deal in the consummation of which they played a leading part.

Mr. Helms in his deposition identified telegrams which had passed in March and April, 1922, between Mr. Fall and himself, all of them relating to the proposition to lease the Teapot Dome. One of these telegrams dated April 10—three days after the Teapot was leased to the Sinclair interests—indicated that Mr. Fall had informed Mr. Helms that the leasing proposition would not be settled until some time in the following month.

On April 12, Mr. Helms wired to Mr. Fall, who was in Three Rivers, asking him for an appointment at which he was to submit a bid for the Teapot lease in behalf of his company. Five days later Mr. Fall replied that there was no occasion for the conference and that the matter of the Teapot had been closed and the lease to Sinclair signed.

Mr. Shaffer in his deposition declared that in a conversation he had with Fall in the latter part of February, 1922, the then Secretary of the Interior assumed an attitude which he interpreted as indicating a preference for Sinclair in the matter of the Teapot Dome lease. This conversation, according to Mr. Shaffer was held in the Secretary's office about ten days before the lease to Sinclair was executed.

ON WAY TO MEXICO

Government counsel received additional information concerning Col. Robert Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, who is wanted as a witness in the Continental phase of the case. A government agent in Washington wired that Mr. Stewart had sailed from a Mexican port, believed to be Vera Cruz "for South America."

The government may order an investigation to determine whether or not certain Federal process servers in Chicago made an energetic effort to serve a subpoena on Col. Stewart. A subpoena for his appearance was issued more than two months ago and the marshal at Chicago has reported that although he made repeated efforts to serve Col. Stewart he had not been able to locate him.

A report has reached Cheyenne that the process servers did not over-exert themselves in their search for Col. Stewart. Three subpoenas have been issued, one in November, another in January and a mandatory order last Saturday. One report is that none of these subpoenas was served although Col. Stewart was in Chicago for weeks at a time prior to his departure.

TOMB IS FORTY CENTURIES OLD

are sheathed in gold and the floor of the chamber is covered with vessels of bronze and alabaster and a quantity of gilded wooden furniture, which is in bad condition. Many objects are not yet identifiable. The Egyptian authorities have put a barbed wire fence around the area, in order to prevent intrusion on the part of the public and the work of clearing the tomb is proceeding satisfactorily.

"This tomb is not that of either Seneferu or Cheops. It was in existence when the first pyramid at Giza, that of Cheops, was built, and the superstructure of the tomb must have been cleared away by the architects of Cheops when they built the causeway which led from the valley to the temple in front of the Cheops pyramid. The tomb is to be dated probably to the reign of Seneferu."

TOURISTS GATHER AT NEW-FOUND TOMB

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

CAIRO (Egypt) March 10.—Crowds of tourists gathered about the scene of the newly discovered tomb today, but a strong police guard kept them at a respectable distance.

The contents of the famous Tut Ankh Amen tomb had to be handled with the greatest care, because of their fragile condition, but the contents of the new found mortuary chamber are many centuries older. Therefore, no surprise is felt that the woodwork in the tomb had been well-nigh destroyed during the passing centuries and the greatest ingenuity will be necessary to preserve what remains of the golden ornamentations.

The cartouche seen on the tomb appears to indicate that it belonged to a member of the King's family or an official, or perhaps, to the King himself, but the future only can determine this.

When the tomb was opened the light was dim and officials had to crouch low to get a glimpse of the interior where, in the occasional sun's rays an alabaster coffin in the farthest subchamber could be distinctly seen with poles topped with gold foil. There could also be distinguished a cartouche resting on what resembled a plank. Strewn about the place were various articles of furniture, alabaster vessels and copper ware on which no eye has gazed for forty centuries.

EIGHTH-CENTURY MONASTERY UNEARTHED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ASSOUAN (Upper Egypt) March 10.—Prof. Ugo Monneret, an Italian savant, who has been engaged for some time in excavations near here, announced that he has unearthed a church belonging to the monastery of St. Simeon dating from the eighth century; also a large quantity of papyri and a valuable collection of Coptic pottery.

The discovery is expected to throw light on the history of the Middle Ages.

ANOTHER TEMPLE AT UR OF CHALDEES FOUND

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—The monthly report of the joint expedition of the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania Museum excavating at Ur of the Chaldees, received today, makes known the finding of another temple in the buried city of Abraham in Babylonia.

According to report of C. Leonard Woolley, head of the expedition, the temple lies close to the Ziggurat, or tower, of Ur, and inscriptions on bricks and stones proved it to be "that of Nin-Gal, the great lady wife of the Moon God of Ur.

The building occupies the whole of the south corner of E-Temen-Ni-Il, the terrace inclosure of the Ziggurat.

"Most of the walls are of crude mud brick of miserably bad quality," the report said, "often ruined right away and were standing at a height extraordinarily difficult to follow. My most experienced pickmen have found their skill taxed to the utmost to distinguish between fallen mud rubble and brickwork so soft that one can rub it to powder with one's fingers, but the floors are of brick well laid and spread with bitumen, looking like modern asphalt, and with their help all the outlines of the chambers could be traced, even where the walls inclosing them have altogether perished.

"The temple was built, in its extreme form, by Sinbalatsu-Ikbid, an Assyrian Governor of Ur in 650 B. C., who always seems to have been short of cash for his building schemes and so to have employed the poorest materials. Fifty years later Nebuchadnezzar added or repaired the buildings, and later again his grandson Nabonidus, repaved the temple floors."

The report tells of finds made at lower levels beneath the temple of Nin-Gal that give promise of good results.

"We have found," the report said, "inscribed door sockets of several periods, inscribed foundation tablets in black and white stone and in copper with texts of Kuri-Galzu of Larsa, 2072-2060 B. C., and one of the earliest inscriptions found at Ur describing the foundation of the temple by a local governor 'For the life of Utu-Hegal, King of Erech,' who was suzerain of Ur."

POOL FORMED IN HACKFELD BUY

Letter Giving Details is Read in Court

Alexander and Baldwin Agreed to Join

Price of $7,500,000 Regarded as Good Investment

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—Correspondence between Wallace M. Alexander of San Francisco, and J. P. Cooke of Honolulu, in 1918, was read into the record today in the Hackfeld accounting suit. The correspondence indicated that Alexander, Cooke and others associated with them in the sugar business in Hawaii, regarded acquisition of the Hackfeld business at a price of $7,500,000 as a "very attractive investment."

Through this and other correspondence the plaintiffs sought to trace the purported activities of the sugar interests and their allies on the mainland in the second reorganization of H. Hackfeld & Co., as conducted by A. Mitchell Palmer, war-time Alien Property Custodian.

ADVISED PURCHASE

Alexander, who is president of Alexander & Baldwin, and vice-president of the Matson Navigation Company, recommended purchase of American Factors' stock to E. D. Tenney, president of the Matson Navigation Company, and principal carriers for American Factors, the witness testified.

"I don't know of any more attractive investment," Alexander wrote J. P. Cooke on April 16, 1918, referring to purchase of the Hackfeld business, adding that he "understood the Alien Property Custodian is averse to Hawaiian sugar interests getting control of the Hackfeld business." The letter also mentioned a proposition of the McCandless Brothers, Herbert Fleischhacker and associates to buy into the Hackfeld business.

On April 26, Cooke replied:

"It would never do for us to get into a pool with McCandless and Fleischhacker. We are working on a pool at this end by which we can control all of the Hackfeld stock."

GOOD INVESTMENT

Mention was made of the price of $7,500,000 and the letter continued: "This seems like a remarkably good investment and would be regarded as a patriotic move. One disadvantage is the large surtax we might have to pay. We at this end are all very keen in going into the Hackfeld proposition."

On May 27, Alexander replied: "I am much interested in your pool," and indicated he favored investing "if control of the new corporation were in proper hands." The writer stressed the necessity for retaining the sugar agencies with which the Hackfelds maintained contracts, and observed that if the plan outlined in detail by Cooke could be put over "it undoubtedly would break up the Buck-McCandless pool."

The letter also disclosed that "the Matson Navigation Company is piling up profits so fast these days that it undoubtedly would experience little difficulty in raising the necessary funds to invest in the Hackfeld business."

Plaintiffs' counsel also read into the record minutes of meetings by directors of Alexander & Baldwin in May and June, 1918, at which the Palmer reorganization plan was discussed.

OFFER FOR STOCK

On June 5, the minutes disclosed, the directors of Alexander & Baldwin definitely agreed to join the pool as outlined by Cooke in his correspondence and further agreed unanimously to pay as high as $140 a share for American Factors' stock if necessary.

Alexander explained that they regarded the price of $7,500,000 as a tentative figure at that time and subject to change by Palmer. This testimony was in line with that previously offered by R. H. Trent and Frank C. Atherton, also defendants in the present action.

Alexander plans to sail tomorrow for Honolulu to return within five weeks, when his examination will be resumed. Henry Duncan Greene will be recalled to the stand tomorrow.

HIGH COURT HITS CANDIDATE

Wisconsin Lawyer Seeking Seat on Bench Will Be Disciplined for Misconduct With Woman

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADISON (Wis.) March 10.—Arthur W. Richter, candidate for the Circuit bench in Milwaukee, was ordered to pay $2750 for services to his housekeeper by the Wisconsin Supreme Court today in a dramatic decision from the court.

For the first time in its history a decision was rendered from the bench without the long formality of a conference. Because of certain statements and admissions made by Mr. Richter in his brief before the court regarding his personal conduct the court ordered the briefs in the case retained for such further disciplining of the defendant as the court may deem proper.

The portion of the answer of Mr. Richter to which the court will now direct its attention and which Mr. Richter set up as a reason why he could not be compelled to pay upward of $3000 for housekeeper services was as follows:

"For the fourth defense, that the services mentioned in the complaint were rendered pursuant to an illegal and invalid agreement, and that said services were incidental to and a part of a course of illegal conduct between the parties."

Clara Stark sued Attorney Richter for housekeeper services from 1915 to 1921. A jury in Judge Gehrz's court in Milwaukee rendered a verdict of $2750 and interest. Richter appealed and appeared personally in the Supreme Court on Tuesday to defend himself. The court heard arguments for Clara Stark but before Mr. Richter had concluded the judges were conferring on the bench. It was apparent that the court intended to take some immediate action. Following the argument there was a hushed moment and the situation was tense. Chief Justice Vin'e then directed a verdict against Mr. Richter and ordered a retention of the briefs for further consideration as to his conduct as a lawyer.

As soon as the verdict was announced Richter got up and left the courtroom. Attaches of the court asserted that this was the most spectacular decision ever delivered in a Wisconsin supreme courtroom.

COLORADO INSPECTION IN OCTOBER

Senate Committee Will Meet in Los Angeles on Start of Tour

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Los Angeles will be the start of the Senate investigation into the Colorado River flood control and allied matters. The first meeting will take place there on October 26, next, and then the Senators on this committee will proceed to the various sections affected by the proposed dams and other controls in various bills before Congress. The committee will return to Los Angeles on November 4, where the field work of the committee will be completed. The report will be completed after the Senators return to Washington for the opening of Congress next December.

This was the action of the Senate Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation at its first meeting today. The committee has adopted a tentative itinerary, which includes Las Vegas, N. M.; Yuma, Ariz.; Boulder Canyon, Glen Canyon and other suggested sites on the Colorado River for either power and irrigation dams or flood-control dams.

The members of the committee are the following Republicans: Senator McNary, Oregon, chairman; Senator Jones, Washington; Senator Phipps, Colorado; Senator Gooding, Idaho; Senator Cameron, Arizona; Senator Oddie, Nevada; Senator Shortridge, California, and Senator Johnson, California, and the following Senators of Democratic affiliation: Senator Sheppard of Texas; Senator Walsh, Montana; Senator Kendrick, Wyoming; Senator Pittman, Nevada; Senator Simmons, North Carolina; Senator Dill, Washington, and Senator Ashurst, Arizona.

DETECTIVE TO NAB MAN AT PRISON

When William R. Whitwell, a prisoner in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, is released at the end of his term the 20th inst., he will be surprised to find Detective Lieutenant Jarvis waiting for him with a murder warrant, it was announced yesterday at the detective bureau.

Whitwell has been indicted by the grand jury for the slaying of Richard Nagle, American Legion cashier, at Vernon and Van Buren avenues the night of November 13, 1923. Nagle and his brother, E. J. Nagle, were returning home from an American Legion carnival at Culver City when a car drew ahead of theirs and forced them to the curb. A man in the car shot Richard Nagle and seized his cash box, containing about $500. The bullet passed through the clothing of E. J. Nagle.

Whitwell was arrested in Seattle and sentenced to eighteen months in prison for taking a stolen automobile across a State line. His photograph was identified by E. J. Nagle as that of his brother's slayer, and Investigator King and Asst. Capt. George Smith of the detective bureau set to work to check up on Whitwell's movements before his arrest. The result of their work, it was said, was the discovery of further evidence and his indictment. No word of what was in the air has been allowed to reach Whitwell, it was said, and the prisoner doubtless expects his freedom when his term, with time off for good behavior, is at an end.

PAIR UNITED BY ROBBERY IN NEW YORK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Mrs. Beatrice Fay Perkins, pretty habitue of night supper clubs, was reconciled with her husband today as a direct result of the robbery early yesterday when she was beaten by bandits who had forced their way into her apartment at 168 West Fifty-eighth street. The thieves escaped with more than $40,000 worth of jewelry after they intimidated Mrs. Perkins and Milton Abbott, wealthy cotton broker, who had escorted her home after an evening spent dancing in fashionable cabarets.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins have been estranged for two years. When the newspapers published the account of the brutal robbery of his wife, her husband, Benjamin F. Perkins, cabaret owner, hastened to her side. They decided to make up and start all over again though when Mr. Perkins remarked to reporters "it is an ill wind that blows nobody good." Mrs. Perkins cryptically added, "who can tell?"

In looking up former associates of Mrs. Perkins in an effort to trace the three men who robbed her, detectives have run across a trail which has led to inquiries in Los Angeles, Cal. They want to find Daniel Kroeder, who was a close friend of Mrs. Perkins in the early part of last year, so close that she pawned part of her jewelry to furnish a bail bond for him. He is thought to be in California.

The detectives also are making inquiries through the night clubs about hangers-on in those places who might recently have come from California.

APPROVAL OF BUDGET IS HELD UP

Senator Demands Expense of Highway Commission be Included in Bill.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, March 10.—Senator Sharkey's protest against a favorable report on the Governor's budget bill until administrative highway items had been budgeted resulted in postponement of final action by the Senate Finance Committee until next Tuesday and the appointment of a subcommittee to investigate the situation and draft amendments to the bill. Chairman Ingram named Senators Nelson, Eureka; Boggs, Stockton, and Chamberlin, Los Angeles, as members of this committee.

Senator Sharkey's contention was that the budget disclosed proposed administrative expenses of the Highway Commission to be only $20,800, whereas, he averred, $818,508 had been spent in administering the highway branch for the six months ending June 30, 1924; $834,241 for the six months ending December 31, 1924, and $796,145 for the six months ending December 31, 1923, proving the administrative expense would greatly exceed the amount designated.

Senator Sharkey declared he was not of the opinion that money expended for highway construction could be budgeted, but he believed that the law required budgeting of the administrative expenses.

Congress has authorized the restoration of the Constitution. The first donation of $1 came today from Daniel Jennings of Boston, who signed himself a boy Civil War veteran, Navy.

BAY CITY RAIL CRASH LIABILITY IS DENIED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—President Walter Arnstein of the Sacramento Short Line Railway stated in his annual report, submitted to the stockholders today, that the line would refuse to accept legal responsibility for the collision between one of its trains and a train of the Key Transit Company in Oakland on December 4, in which ten were killed and forty injured. Responsibility for the accident had been placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on V. C. Brubaker, motorman of the Short Line train.

Operation and control of the Short Line trains is assumed by the Key System, while the Short Line trains are on the tracks of such system, as was the case when the accident occurred, Arstein said in his report.

The Price of Genius

At a musical benefit, recently given in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, for the poor of that city a DUO-ART MUSIC ROLL recorded by ten of the pianists and autographed by them and seven other assisting pianists was sold to Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr. for Two-Thousand Dollars!

The music roll was an arrangement of Chopsticks by four Russian composers and was played by Josef Hofmann, Harold Bauer, Alexander Siloti, Ernest Schelling, Guiomar Novaes, Myra Hess, Ernest Hutcheson, Ethel Leginska and Yolanda Mero.

Walter Damrosch, who acted as auctioneer, announced that he considered this DUO-ART roll the "most remarkable musical document ever offered for sale."

The proceeds from the roll were given to Moritz Moszkowski a beloved brother-artist who is living in Paris in an impoverished condition.

Mr. Bliss had purchased a STEINWAY DUO-ART for his New York home only two weeks before this memorable evening.

With any DUO-ART the marvelous reproductions of these same exclusive DUO-ART pianists and fifty more of the world's greatest artists will bring to you as great a thrill and as lasting enjoyment as this famous two-thousand dollar roll.

RODEO IS STAGED BY WILD LIFE

Yosemite Watchman Sees Steeplechase by Wildcat With Deer as Mount

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

YOSEMITE, March 10.—Axel Gustafson, who draws pay as a night watchman in the Valley, is receiving congratulations following the filing of his report of a combat between two members of the local wild animal colony.

Shortly after dark Gus was startled by a commotion coming from the direction of the horse corral. Being a good watchman, he hastened to seek out the disturbers of the quiet moonlit solitude. Suddenly there streaked into view a full-grown doe with a tawny wild-cat riding her back.

"Get off," yelled Gustafson.

And, being an obliging kitty, the wildcat got off.

Congratulations are extended to the night watchman because the cat did not consider him as a second meal ticket.

St. Louisan's Experience in Swiss Alps Told

Scales Unmarked Peak at Risk of Life

Storm and Avalanche Unite to Balk Adventure

(This is the second of a series of five articles on mountain climbing, as related by Val A. Fynn, a St. Louisan, to a reporter for the St. Louis News Service. Today's installment is a narrative of the ascent of the northeast face of Finisteraarhorn in Switzerland.)

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—"One of the most daring climbs I ever made," said Fynn, "was that of the Finisteraarhorn in the Bernese Oberland Mountain range in Switzerland, up the northeast face. No other person ever was able to accomplish it before me and none so far has succeeded in scaling it since.

"It was on this peak that Lothian Bell, an English girl who tried to scale it before me, nearly lost her life. She had set out with two excellent guides and on the way up encountered such a storm that the party turned back. It was a tortuous return, at one place 100 yards of space requiring six hours to traverse.

"When the girl and her guides the next day were finally able to reach the foot of the mountain where they were to cross a yawning chasm before reaching an adjoining glacier, they found the natural bridge of hard snow over which they had crossed on their ascent was being swept by avalanching snow. Great slides were shooting down a couloir, or gully, and dashing over the bridge. Life would not be safe to attempt the usual crossing. Finally one of the guides thought of a clever scheme. Cutting his footing carefully in the ice along the mountain side parallel with the gully, he ascended to the point where the avalanches were starting to sweep down into the gully.

RODE AVALANCHE

"Then he hurled himself into a fresh avalanche. It swept him down with it and he was carried in safety across the bridge. After he had righted himself, Miss Bell tried the experiment with success and then the other guide crossed. But the exposure and hardships which Miss Bell suffered in her fifty-three hours in the storm broke her health and she had to give up climbing.

"Knowing of her unsuccessful attempt, I decided to try my hand over the same route in company with a friend. We left the shelter hut at 1 p.m., got to the foot of the mountain by 6 and started up. Three hours later we reached another shelter place and paused, due to darkness. As soon as the moon was up we resumed our climb. All went well until we came to the place where Miss Bell took six hours to come down. There was a choice of diverging either to the right or left. Unhappily, we took to the left and had to return. This little error cost us four hours.

"Moving along to the right, we came face to face with a badly exposed slope of 70 to 75 degrees. The steep, smooth rocks were interspersed with flakes of dark ice as hard as steel. By careful maneuvering and cutting of steps with our axes, we finally reached the point where Miss Bell turned back. Here we picked up her steel spike and gloves. Beyond this point the going was even still rougher but by 9 p.m. the next day we had fought our way pretty near to the summit.

PERILS MULTIPLY

"Then we discovered we faced another more difficult slope of bulging ice. I was in the lead and sought to cut steps for a footing but the ice coat was thin and I hit solid rock. Thinking it best to wait till the moon came out again, we paused at a sort of cleft or chimney in the rocks, each of us standing in a cramped position on a narrow ledge.

"About this time we were aware of a change in the weather. Storm clouds rolled up and a heavy wind began to blow. We realized we would be in for a cold night.

"Tiring of standing as I was, I decided to risk a little further climb and discovered a few feet above us a sort of a pinnacle. Over this I hitched my rope and descended to our ledge, making a loop in each end of the rope in which my companion and I sat with much more comfort.

"The morning light came late and found us with clothing frozen stiff. We tried to make tea, using a small alcohol stove, but our efforts were a fizzle, due mainly to our lack of space, and so, disgusted we decided to push on without breakfast.

"The wind now became stronger, driving sleet and snow before it. Even small stones were dislodged by the force of the gale and went hurtling along the steep slope. I had just reached a favorable ledge of rock by stretching my arms to their full height and was pulling myself up, when at the moment my head got even with the upper surface, I saw a small avalanche of rocks descending upon me.

IN TRACK OF SLIDE

Even as I ducked my head one of the larger stones swept my hat off. If I had been on solid ground, it would have been an easy matter to take my hands off and dodge the rock shower completely. But a mountain climber hanging over the edge of a cliff thousands of feet from terra firma has an entirely different problem. So the best I could do was to hang there and take my medicine. While my head was protected, the boulders clawed away at my fingers, cutting them to the bone. But still I clung on, and finally when the coast looked clear I had enough strength to hoist myself over the wall and proceed, my partner following.

"The going now was a little easier and we made it to the top by 10 a.m., the first persons ever to accomplish the feat from this side of the mountain. Our return was made on the far side of the peak and was much easier. By 5 p.m. we had reached our shelter house, where we ate a good meal, drank some wine and lay down to rest. It had taken us forty-six hours to go up but we made up for it by sleeping for thirty-six hours without awakening."

Nevada Indians Made Destitute by Crop's Loss

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RENO, March 10.—Hundreds of Nevada Indians are destitute and suffering from want of food and clothing, according to James E. Jenkins, superintendent of the Nevada district of the Indian Service. Jenkins states conditions are deplorable among the Indians outside the reservations in the vicinity of Elko, Lovelock and Winnemucca.

These Indians usually are self-supporting, but the drouth of last season ruined their crops and prevented their employment on the large farms of the whites. Slight emergency assistance has been extended from Washington, but little attention has been paid to the plight of the unfortunates by residents of the State.

BATTLE TO DRAW

...ing in a fast and extreme...ripping manner, Lou Rol-linger and Young George drew in the semi-wind-up. The latter was substituting for Roy Cliffe, who was taken ill with influenza at the last moment. This was the second meeting between the heavies and they were both evidently entertaining memories of the first one, for they went to it from the first bell and kept going at a fast pace throughout.

It was the consensus of opinion that Rollinger had a slight edge, but it was too close to make much difference, so the referee called it even. Rollinger plastered George with heavy lefts and rights to the body and kept him on the run most of the time. On his side, Young George scored with a fast left to the head. All in all, it was a good fight and the fans were in a good humor when it was over.

Nick Newman won over Cowboy Harvey Perkins in the third battle, a gory affair, with Perkins shedding most of the claret. Newman landed an uppercut in the opening stanza that had Perkins wobbly, but the latter managed to stick the entire six rounds and get his face all cut up. Perkins, in the estimation of those at ringside, made a mistake when he gave up the broncho-busting game for the box-fighting racket.

Frank Farmer, who took on the winner of the Cain-Abel affair, and has been fighting ever since then, carried his bald head to victory over Kid Williams in the second scrap of the evening. Farmer was too smart for his opponent and won by a decisive margin.

Carl Sepulveda won a technical knockout over Joe Sommers in the fourth round of the opener when the latter's manager tossed in the sponge. Both were green, but Sepulveda elected to play for the body and gradually wore his

WOLFER AND MOORE REPORT

New Bengal Fly-Chasers Work Out at Maier Park; Hannah's Team Beats Murphy's, 4 to 3

Ike Wolfer and Eddie Moore, the two flychasers who will make their debut as Bengals this season, arrived in the city yesterday and reported to Boss Bill Essick at Maier Park. Wolfer arrived from Portland, with which club he played last year, while Moore flivvered out from the mid-west.

Moore impressed Owner Ed Maier with his springiness in the short work-out he had in the morning session. Both Wolfer and Moore are in fairly good condition and should round into shape soon, said Essick after watching the newcomers go through their paces.

"Truck" Hannah's outfit finally broke into the win column by trouncing Denny Murphy's team in the daily Regular-Yannigan tussle. Hannah's crew won by a 4 to 3 score, but Murphy's cohorts still have a 2-to-1 lead in the series to decide which outfit is the Regulars and which the Yannigans.

The Hannahites won the game in the first frame when they bunched hits off Phil Weinert to score all four runs. After the opening inning Weinert and Jimmy Christian, who hurled the last four frames for Murphy's team, set the Hannahites down without a bit of trouble. Christian looked in mid-season form, exhibiting a lot of stuff.

Lefty Thomas and Wee Ludolph chucked for the winning side, the latter being nicked for all three scores. Murphy's team scored two runs in the last inning and had the tying run on third when Ludolph retired the side.

Murphy claims that yesterday's game shouldn't count in the series, for he had three pitchers, Oldham, Carson and Groat, in the outfield, while Swanson, another chucker, was at second base in place of Neal Finn, who was ill.

OLYMPIC CHAMP DEAD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Myer Prinstein, former world's record-holder in the running broad jump and winner of Olympic championships in 1900, 1904 and 1908 for the United States, died yesterday. He was 45 years of age.

HORAN SLUGS BALL HARD

Angel Outfielder Raps Homer and Three Other Hits in Regular-Yannigan Tilt; Glazner Reports

With Marty Krug over at Catalina Island trying to pry Bill Killefer loose from a couple of players who he believes will benefit the Angels in the chase for the Coast League bunting, Top Sergeant Doc Crandall took charge of the Seraphs in yesterday's workouts at Washington Park.

The main things that took place at the local ball yard were, to wit: Pitcher "Whitey" Glazner purchased from the Philadelphia Nationals, reported and worked out; the Regulars beat the Yannigans, 7 to 7, in a practice game, and Joe "Shag" Horan, who played for the Regulars, socked the ball all over and outside the lot.

Glazner looked to be in good condition and should be ready to go by next week.

Gus Sandberg, the big catcher purchased from Cincinnati, caught for the Regulars and impressed the onlookers with his work. Elner "Chief" Myers and Jacobs hurled for the Regulars, while Buck Ramsey and Walters did the chucking for the Yannigans.

Before leaving for Catalina, Skipper Krug announced that he intended to stick as near as possible to his regular line-up in the Angels' series with the Cubs which starts Friday. The Angel pilot will let Sandberg, and Ed Spencer do most of the backstopping, with Ennis and Thompson getting a chance before the week is out. Peckham and Dempsey will perform at the initial sack, Fred Gunther will hold out at second, Clyde Beck and Ray Jacobs will handle the other side of the infield, although Krug announced that he intended to let Ray Dwyer, the young third-sacker from San Jose, start one of the games against the Cubs. Horan, Whaley, Taitt and Twombly will hold forth in the outfield.

CONNOLLY JOINS BEE CREW

Joe Connolly, former Seal outfielder, whom the Bees received in the deal that sent Rudy Kallio to the Boston Red Sox, joined the Salt Lake training camp at Long Beach yesterday. With Connolly on hand, all of the Bees, with the exception of Outfielder Johnny Frederick, are in camp.

Frederick is a hold-out, but Manager Oscar Vitt says he expects the flashy fly-chaser to come into the fold before the week is over. The Mormon pilot says that there is not much difference between Frederick's price and the amount offered him by Bill Lane.

Because of the cold winds that have been blowing recently and interfering with training, Vitt has ordered the Bees to take but one workout daily instead of two. The athletes start in at 10 o'clock in the morning and wind up at 2 p.m. Games are being held daily between Vitt's Owls and Fritz Coumbe's Cuckoos.

Saturday and Sunday the Bees will tackle the Shell Oil ouft in a couple of practice sessions, while on Tuesday Vitt and Lane will take the entire squad of Bees to Catalina Island for a two-day series with the Chicago Cubs.

OXY TRAMPLES CALTECH

BY HOOKER CROOK

The lame, the halt and the blind which are supposed to compose Coach Joe Pipal's Occidental College track aggregation were sufficiently spry to swamp California Tech yesterday at Paddock Field, 92 to 48, in a conference meet, although the performances weren't much to get excited about. Pipal held several of his star men out of competition because of illness, inelegibility, etc., but the balance of his squad were able to collect nine of the fifteen first places.

A glance at the times and distances registered by the Oxy men will warm the hearts of all Pomona supporters, for against the same competition a few days ago the Sagehens made much more impressive records, and walloped the Technicians by a larger score. The best marks yesterday were made by Graham of Caltech in the pole

FRIGERIO-RITOLA SET MARKS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CLEVELAND (O.) March. 10.—Ugo Frigerio, 1924 Olympic walking champion, set a world's record of 25m. 21 1-5s. for 5500 meters in a track carnival featuring Paavo Nurmi here tonight. This is said to be the first time this distance has been walked officially.

Another world's record was announced when Willie Ritola, Finnish distance runner, ran three and one-quarter miles in 15m. 58 2-5s.

Nurmi failed to break his record for the mile and three-fourths, covering the distance in 8m. 3 2-5s.

Ritola ran with very little exertion, covering the first two miles in 10m. 1 1-5s., with a stride that was smooth and even.

He was opposed by August Fagar, unattached, and William Ballogh of the Magyar A. C., Cleveland.

In establishing his mark Frigerio defeated Phil Granville, New York, his only opponent, by forty yards. The two men were never separated by more than a few yards until the 27th lap, when Frigerio paced away from Granville and was never headed.

Nurmi, who, with Ritola, arrived here today from Milwaukee, apparently was content to lap his opponents. Opposed to him were James Connolly, Georgetown; Harold W. Kennedy, Ohio State, who finished second to Nurmi at Louisville recently, and W. Helms, Ohio Wesleyan star.

SPRINTERS SEEK WORLD MARK

The existing world's record of 1m. 7s. for the 660-yard medley relay is in serious danger, following the announcement yesterday of the personel of Charley Paddock's four-man team which will compete against U.S.C. and Pomona in this event Saturday at the Coliseum.

Schulz of Caltech, Pollack of Pasadena, Paddock and Murchison will compose the quartet, the first two running 110 yards each, while Paddock and Murchison will each run 220 yards.

Hollywood A.C. Eliminated by Chicago Cagers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

KANSAS CITY, March 10. The Denver Boilers defeated the South Side Turners of Indianapolis here tonight in the National A.A.U. basketball tournament, 40 to 39.

In an extremely one-sided game, the fast Olympic Club of San Francisco, eliminated Jackson University of Chillicothe, Mo., 63 to 23. The westerners led at the half, 33 to 11. Hughes, Olympic forward and captain, scored 12 field goals.

St. Philips Athletic Club of Chicago defeated the Hollywood (Cal.) A. C., 31 to 15.

STAGE BOXFEST AT WILMINGTON

Celebrate Merger of Fleets With Ring Festival

Godfrey and Alexander Hold Down Main Event

Southern California's first open-air boxing show in years will be held in the Wilmington ball park Saturday afternoon the 31st inst. It will be practically an all-fleet bill, staged in connection with the merging of the Atantic and Pacific fleets at the Los Angeles base during that week.

Arrangements for the card were completed yesterday. The ball-park lease had already been secured, and Capt. Seth Strellinger, chairman of the Boxing Commission, put his official stamp on the show by giving "Doc" Moffett, Wilmington matchmaker, the necessary permit late yesterday afternoon.

SAILORS IN CALCIUM

Outside of the main event, which will bring together George Godfrey and Vic Alexander, two colored gents of considerable class, the card will be made up for the most part of sailors. Godfrey is the giant heavy known as the "Black Shadow of Leiperville," and generally rated as the best heavyweight in the ring today next to Jack Dempsey, the champion. Alexander is not so well known, but he is big and tough and courageous enough to tackle Godfrey, which is more than can be said for a lot of the big ones.

As a treat for the sailors, Eddie Huffman, the sensational light heavyweight, who holds decisions over Jimmy Delaney and Capt. Roper, will meet Nick Newman in the semi-wind-up. Huffman is the light heavyweight champion of the Navy and heavyweight king also.

HECTOR MEETS TRIBBEY

Then there will be Mike Hector, middleweight champion, who is tentatively slated to mix with Bert Tribbey. Mike is a protege of Gunner Jordan, former heavyweight champ of the Navy, and is one of the classiest boys that ever crawled through the ropes. He is more impressive than Huffman, and incidentally believes he could lick Huffman.

BRITTON SIGNED UP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OMAHA, March 10.—Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha welterweight, will meet Jack Britton, former world's welterweight champion in the ten-round main event of a boxing program here the 20th inst.

Semi-finals of Southern California Cage Tournament on Friday

FINALS CARDED FOR SATURDAY

Long Beach Meets Chino in Feature Game

Templeton Gets Acid Test Against Alhambra

Jack Rabbits Favored to Win the Championship

Semifinals of the Southern California prep basketball play-off will be held at the University of Southern California pavilion Friday night with Alhambra meeting Templeton in the opener, and the Long Beach-Chino game holding down the later spot on the bill. Finals will be held Saturday night at the pavilion.

Any one of the four teams competing, may win the title. They all defeated good teams last Saturday night and they're all at the top of their game, so the semi-finals should be peppery affairs. Chino went wild in the second half to defeat Anaheim, while Long Beach had it easy with San Bernardino. Templeton turned in the big thrill of the evening with a victory over Huntington Park.

Long Beach, with its heavy, fast quintet, looks like the winner of the tournament. The Jack-rabbits employ a tricky attack from the sides of the court and their forwards are accurate enough to score if they get anywhere near the basket. Chino's best bet is a swift passing attack down the floor, with both forwards and the center shooting short passes to each other that elude the most alert guards. Despite this, Long Beach will probably win the contest.

Afainst Alhambra high school's heavy and fast outfit, the white-shirted Templeton warriors are going to have a rough evening. Templeton has a good team, despite the fact that there are only sixty students in school to draw from. The Northerners defeated Huntington Park last week by a great sprint after the Spartans had taken the lead in the first period. Gates and Smollings of Templeton got through the close-knit Park defense for twelve points apiece. Alhambra will have to watch this two-some, if it is to win.

OXY TRACK MEN TRIM CALTECH

vault, Miller of Oxy in the two-mile, Pomeroy of Caltech in the high hurdles, and Jock Stephens of Oxy in the discus, while the makeshift Tiger relay team of Morey, Donly, Carter and Buckman made the creditable time of 3m. 32.6s.

Graham missed 13ft. by a shadow in the vault, having already won at 12ft. 6in. without being pressed. This breaks the former conference record, held jointly by Graham and Goodenough of Oxy by 1-4 of an inch. Miller of Oxy stepped the two-mile jog in 10m. and 6s., while his ineligible teammate, Lavalle, ran for practice, and finished fifty yards ahead of the field. Pomeroy finished an inch in front of Tanner and Wall in the high hurdles in 16s. flat, but ran second to Wall in the lows in slow time. Jock Stephens heaved the discus 121ft. 9in.

Pipal scrambled up his team for the benefit of Eugene Nixon, Pomona mentor, who occupied a seat in the bleachers. Morey, a half-miler, ran in the 100-yard dash, while Buckman and Nash sat on the bench. Bailey, another half-miler, was put in the high hurdles, while Bud Nash entered neither of the sprints, confining his activity to the discus throw.

The best race of the day from the spectators' standpoint was the 440, with Henderson nipping Morey at the tape. Henderson overcame a big lead opened up by Donley, in his lap in the relay, but Buckman was too rapid for the Tech anchor man, and won with a good margin. Summary:

GOLF GOSSIP
By Charles West

PASADENA

Mrs. R. G. Miller of the Los Angeles Country Club carried off the honors in the sweepstakes held yesterday at the Pasadena Golf Club by the Women's Auxiliary, S.C.G.A., scoring a gross 93 while the balance of the fifty entrants were several strokes behind. Her card gave Mrs. Miller the Class A Trophy, for which golfers with handicaps from scratch to 13 competed, while net honors in this division were won by Mrs. Gregg Lifur of the California Country Club, 93-10-83.

In Class B Mrs. G. W. Denio scored low with a card of 104, Mrs. S. W. Reddin winning the net prize, 114-28-86.

TEAM MATCHES

Play will be continued today for the Class A interclub golf team championship, four matches being scheduled. The Los Angeles Country Club players will be entertained at Hollywood, Wilshire will play at Annandale, Midwick at Flintridge and Rancho at San Gabriel. Although none of these matches are of exceptional importance from the standpoint of competition, as none of the leaders face each other, the opportunity to roll up imposing totals will not be overlooked by any of the teams in the running for the title.

Following is the standing of the clubs:

TEAM STANDING

Los Angeles	7 0 1.000
Rancho	7 2 .778
Wilshire	7 2 .778
Midwick	5 4 .556
Flintridge	3 5 .375

Rancho at San Gabriel.

NEXT TOURNAMENT

The next event on the schedule recently circulated by Chester Lyday, secretary of the S.C.G.A., will be the annual invitation event of the Hillcrest Country Club, which will be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. The affair has been arranged strictly for the convenience of the business man, the prizes being distributed for the best gross and net scores for thirty-six holes of medal play.

The schedule of play will be practically the same as the Hillcrest invitation event of last season. The first eighteen holes may be played either Thursday, the 19th inst., or Friday the 20th inst., the low thirty-five scorers in each of the three divisions continuing with an additional eighteen holes Saturday the 21st inst.

There will be three classes, Class A being composed of players from scratch to 6; Class B from 7 to 12, and Class C of players with handicaps of 13 and over. The gross and two net prizes will be awarded for the best thirty-six holes in each division, with an additional prize for the best eighteen holes on each day of play.

The tournament will take but little time, and for that reason should draw a big entry. Other excellent reasons for predicting a large crowd are the condition of the course, and the hospitality of the club. In order to do away with any waiting at the tee, the tournament committee hopes to give starting times to every competitor. In sending in their entries, players should state which day they prefer to play their first eighteen holes. Entries should be in the hands of Leo Barnett not later than the 14th inst., although entries will be accepted up to the 19th inst., if the players will take their chances on starting times, according to Herman Politz, chairman of the tournament committee.

The course will be open to contestants the three days preceding the tournament.

E. S. Armstrong of Midwick, who, last season won the Hillcrest event, will again seek the honors, his competitors for the glory will probably include George Von Elm, Jack Tarrant, Harlo- Hurley, Norman Macbeth, and other players of equal reputation.

HOLLYWOOD

A two-day medal play tournament for Hollywood Country Club members will be held this week-end over thirty-six holes. Entrants may play a round Saturday and another Sunday, or double up on either day.

Saturday morning the ladies will play for the Lawson Trophy, medal competition at handicap. Three victories entitle the winner to permanent possession of the cup, the name of the winner being engraved on it each time the cup is up for competition.

CORONADO

Both Mrs. L. M. Kennett, defending champion and Miss Margaret Kinsey, medalist in the qualifying round, who are the ruling favorites in the annual Coronado Country Club women's championship golf tournament, which opened Monday, won their first round matches by default yesterday. Favorites won out in all other matches.

Today Mrs. Kennett plays Mrs. A. F. Healy of Canada and Miss Kinsey meets Mrs. Thomas Shock. Yesterday's results:

Championship Eight: Miss M. Kinsey defeated Mrs. E. Jones by default; Mrs. Thomas Shock defeated Miss F. Nutting, 3 and 2; Mrs. M. Kennett defeated Mrs. H. Griffin, 3 and 2; Mrs. H. Keeler defeated Mrs. A. Healy, 2 and 1; Mrs. W. S. Carter defeated Mrs. C. F. Smith, 4 and 3; Mrs. K. F. Chase defeated Miss E. Sherwin, 3 and 2; Mrs. A. F. Healy defeated Mrs. Iona Brown, 2 up; Mrs. L. M. Kennett defeated Mrs. R. W. Tirrill by default.

ASK COOLIDGE TO THROW FIRST BALL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, MARCH 10.—Washington baseball officials today put in their bid to have President Coolidge open the season here April 22 by throwing out the first ball in the game with the New York Yankees.

The official invitation was extended at the White House and the President is expected to accept if he is here then.

GOOZEMAN FACES HERMAN

The Lyceum Boxing Club presents its star card next Saturday night at its wall-known arena. The bouts promise plenty of action at all times and unless all signs fail, the fans are sure to witness a great evening's sport. Capt. Strellinger, chairman of the Boxing Commission, assisted by Elmer Leary, are pinch-hitting for Dick Donald and have taken special pains to stage an attractive program.

The main set-to will find Ernie Geoseman facing Pete Herman. Here is where gloves, skin and hair fly. Goozeman is making his first appearance in Los Angeles since his return from a successful eastern invasion, during which time he met a number of the leading featherweights around New York. Larney Lichtenstein, the big Chicago promoter, has signed Ernie up to meet the champion, Kid Kaplan, for the feather title.

Herman has also just returned from the East where, in company with his brother Babe, he has met all comers. He declares it will be he and not Goozeman that will fight it out with Kaplan.

The semi-wind-up will bring Baby Joe Gans and Johnny Geardon together. Gans has made a big hit with Lyceum fans and is regarded as one of the cleverest boxers of his weight on the Coast. The rest of the card is as follows: Mel Manning vs. Teddy Roberts in the special; Bud Garber vs. Henry Larson; Phil Sheridan vs. Sailor Carter and Young Pole vs. Pete Serano. Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight champion will referee the feature event.

THOMPSON AFTER KAYOE

A packed arena is expected to see Jack Thompson try for his eleventh straight kayo tonight when he meets Roughhouse Charley Burns in the Assembly Athletic Club main go. The arena is located at Ninth street and Central avenue. The two lightweights are scheduled to go ten rounds but many hardly expect it to go over seven. Thompson is about the best prospect that Los Angeles has ever had. His backers are calling him the second Joe Gans. He has knocked out many good boys among whom are Joe Martinez and Eddie Sylvester. Burns is former lightweight champion of Canada and is really a rough person. He swings them from all angles. This will be his first ten-rounder in Los Angeles.

Sailor Larry and Joe Kelly, old rivals, will meet in six rounds in the semifinal. Larry is going good again and is meeting a tartar in Kelly. Kelly is still somewhat of a favorite at Vernon but if he loses tonight, Larry will take his place. They will weigh in at 135 pounds. The Frankie Alexander-Eddie Hubeck scrap is drawing more than its share of attention. Both have a large following at the Assembly and the bout is sure to be a corker. Two other four-round bouts complete the card. They are: George Mix vs. Joe Burch, 125 pounds, and Pablo Villa vs. Dixie Kid, 110 pounds. Frank Holborow swings them from all angles. This will referee.

SUDS PREPARE FOR PITTSBURG

Light Shower Fails to Halt Seattle Workout

Pirate Regulars, Yannigans in 8-to-8 Battle

Cronin and Martineck Show Well in Practice

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA MARIA, March 10.—With the return to this city today of Wade Killefer, manager of the Seattle Indians the regulars and rookies are again hard at work in preparation for the two-game series here Saturday and Sunday with the Pittsburg Pirates.

Killefer has not announced who he will use in the box to open the game on Saturday with the Pirates but it is thought some of the newcomers will be used in the first meeting with Pittsburg. Sutherland and Bagby, veteran moundsmen, will probably pitch for the Indians in the Sunday game.

A light shower early today delayed the morning workout for a brief time but the entire squad reported at the park and finished one of the best days' practice of the season late this afternoon.

PASO ROBLES, March 10.—Once again the Yannigans and regulars battled nine stanzas to a deadlock, skipper Bill McKenzie calling it a day's work when the score reached 8 and 8.

Joe Cronin and Mike Martineck both California recruits were the swat kinds of the day, Cronin who is called the 18-year-old Frisco phenom rapped three smacks in his four trips to the plate while Martineck went up the scale from a single to a triple in his four swings.

Joe Brown and Louis Koupal were in the limelight for the first time since these two mound artists reached camp and they are regarded as two of the most promising pitchers coming out of minor circles.

Brown occupied the mound for the Yannigans in the early part of the game being relieved by Lee Meadows. Koupal worked for the regulars and was followed by Jim Richardson.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO (Calif.) March 10.—The Solon regulars went through a light batting and fielding practice here today in preparation for a game with the St. Louis Cardinals at Stockton tomorrow. The Solon Yannigans were defeated by the Represa nine at Folsom State prison today, 5 to 4.

Starting with tomorrow's game the Senators will not have an idle day until the start of the Coast League season, exhibition games having been booked solid until April 6.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AVALON, March 10.—The Cub regulars after a night and morning of hectic verbal battling with the Sand Dabs over yesterday's defeat, went right out this afternoon and showed some class by whipping their detractors, 6 to 4. They weren't able to do it except through the inability of Jacobs to put them over the plate, due to a sore arm.

The regulars went out after the game in the second inning by scoring a tally, only to have it wiped out in the third when the Sand Dabs sent a couple of youthful recruits across the rubber. Everything went along swimmingly until the sixth, when the Maranville crew took advantage of Jacobs, who gave four bases on balls and permitted a couple of hits. The result was three easy runs, sending them into the lead.

The Dabs came right back with a pair of tallies in the seventh tie, only to stare defeat in the face when the regulars gathered a like number in their half.

Manager Killefer announced the personnel of the soup-and-fish gang he will take to Los Angeles on Thursday. They are: Catchers, Hartnett, Jonnard and Churry; pitchers, Cooper, Millstead, Morgan, Brett, Kauffman, Blake, Stuesland, Root and Bush; outfielders, Kerr, Weiss, Miller, Heathcote and Grigsby; infielders, Grimm, Adams, Maranville, Friberg, Kearns, Michaels, Pittinger and Barrett.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, March 10.—Odd Seth was much the best in the feature race at Tia Juana this afternoon, winning as he pleased after leading all the way around. Melachrino was much liked in this race. The Cheetah, recently acquired by the Leslie stables, beat a good band over the mile route in the sixth, beating Black Wand and Idle Thoughts. The Herald was a big surprise in the second, this outsider winning by three lengths in a mile and 70-yard gallop. Results:

First race, four and one-half furlongs; Al Borak (Metcalf) won; What's The Time (O'Donnell) second; Kalika (Ellis) third. Time 0:57.

Second race, mile and seventy yards; Harold (Rock) won; Franc Tireur (Frederick) second; Olds Kight (Young) third. Time, 1:49 1-5.

McCOY UNPOPULAR VICTOR OVER MOORE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL PASO (Tex.) March 10.—Johnny CcCoy of Cleveland was given an unpopular decision over Pal Moore, Memphis flash, after their twelve-round main event at the Fort Bliss Stadium here last night. The crowd voiced its disapproval of the decision as soon as referee Sergt. Bob Smith raised McCoy's hand.

REORGANIZE LOS ANGELES GUN CLUB

Trapshooters Will Renew Warfare on Clay Pigeons at Arcadia Sunday

After being extinct for close to two years and with the shooters just rearin' to point at a spinning clay bird again, the Los Angeles Gun Club has reorganized and the opening shoot will take place next Sunday morning starting at 10 o'clock on a new site at Ross Field.

It will be recalled that the old L. A. Gun Club flourished mightily in the old days, just adjacent to Lincoln Park, but that when it moved over to Griffith Park, it was only a short while before it died out altogether. About a year ago, the Vernon Gun Club, too, ceased functioning, its property having been purchased for an industrial site.

For a year now, Los Angeles has been without a trapshooting organization, and how the Bob Bungays, the Lou Reeds, the Emil Valleens and the many other double-bore toters have missed their Sunday morning fling at the whirling tar plates.

But a game, so popular as trapshooting, a sport that is almost an American institution, and dubbed by the big time powder companies as the "Sport Alluring," could not be dormant forever, so during the last few weeks, a couple of impromptu meetings of shooters resulted in the reorganization and the announcement of a shoot billed for next Sunday.

Uncle Sam has come to the rescue and has offered the shooters the use of a part of Ross Field, the balloon school at Arcadia.

The opening shoot will be at 100 targets from sixteen yards and at twenty-five pair of doubles over four traps. Shooters from Upland and a couple of squads from San Diego have planned to be in attendance.

RAMIES TO BOX NUNES AT HARBOR

Featherweights Tangle in Main Event at Wilmington Stadium Tonight

Pico Ramies's educated left hand has a task cut out for it tonight at the Wilmington Bowl, when the southpaw youngster cruises into action against Danny Nunes, former holder of the Pacific Coast featherweight championship.

Ramies has had only two defeats in about forty starts. Dixie LaHood caught him when he was just coming up as a preliminary boy and stopped him at San Pedro. Pico has gone a long way up the fistic ladder since that time and now ranks as one of the best boys at his weight on the Coast. He will come in at about 124 pounds for Nunes, while Danny will be about two pounds lighter. Ramies fought a sizzling draw with Dandy Dillon in his last appearance at the Bowl.

Sailor Mike Hector, all-navy middleweight champion, will meet tough customer in Harry Ritzer of Los Angeles in the six-round semi-wind-up. Ritzer holds a decision over Billy Vincent and other good boys and should be able to keep Hector busy. In his last start at the Bowl, Hector stopped Duke Potter in quick time.

HUDKINS BENJAMIN MATCHED

Lightweights Tentatively Signed for Go to be Held in Local Ball Park

Ace Hudkins, the "Nebraska Wildcat," and Joe Benjamin, California's only representative in the lightweight championship tourney being conducted in New York to find a successor for Benny Leonard, have been tentatively matched for a ten-round bout at Washington ball park Saturday afternoon, April 4.

Backing the match is the new Olympic Club organization, which is building an arena to seat approximately 15,000 persons at the intersection of Eighteenth and Grand avenue. Jack Root, as matchmaker for the Olympic Club, has practically cinched the bout.

It will be a charity affair, it is understood, a big percentage of the proceeds going to the Children's Hospital fund. Hudkins is wild for the match, and wants to fight Benjamin on a winner-take-all basis.

MANDELL TOPS RING FAVORITES

Sammy Class of Lightweight Elimination Event

Illinois Fighter Looms as Leonard's Successor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 10.—Sammy Mandell, ace in the lightweight tourney promoted by the New York State Athletic Commission to establish a successor for Benny Leonard, appears to be near the desired title. Fight experts in this district think he has a fine chance over anything shown in the East, where Goodrich, Valgar and O'Connell appeared to be the class of the semifinalists.

It is expected the interest of fans in the tourney will begin to pick up now that the event is drawing toward a close and will bring into action the classy boxers.

Mandell is on the scene, in training and is eager to try his punches on his rivals. His body punishment is terrific and largely done with the left, with which he is a tricky boy. Just what he will do with Goodrich, Valgar and O'Connell, should he meet them, is, of course, a question. They will have weathered some tough going in the Garden and have class enough to exercise the Chicagoan.

Babe Herman, the featherweight who sprang into prominence by a knockout over Billy De Foe, later faded before the persistent attack of Bobby Garcia, a wiry Mexican plugger. Garcia is a battler who keeps coming in, apparently able to take punishment, but his long distance attack is said to be a ridiculous flinging of arms about like a young baseball pitcher in action. Close in, he shoots more effectively. Herman looked to be outclassed in this bout although Garcia had none of the wallop of Aurelia Herrera of bygone days.

Benny Yanger, now with the C.A.A., was once pointed for a match with this formidable Mexican, whom Charley Neary of Milwaukee afterward knocked out. Herrera carried a terrific right-hand punch, which came from his hip and traveled so fast and hard he later broke a hand on some battler's head.

Eddie Anderson, who fought on the Milwaukee card with Cannonball Eddie Martin and Harold Smith, and who lost to the latter, is booked for another bout Thursday night, when he meets Willie Ames of Akron, at Barberton, O.

Harry Greb is in training at Hot Springs for a meeting with Gene Tunney, holder of the American light-heavyweight ring title. The winner of this bout probably will be matched with the winner of the Delaney-Berlenbach battle in New York.

Greb is the man who gained honors over Tommy Gibbons when the latter was suffering from an attack of influenza. Tom is helping care for his twin boys who have a touch of pneumonia up in St. Paul. He will be out of the ring for a month.

BRUIN FIVE GOES NORTH FOR PENNANT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERKELEY (Cal.) March 10.—Coach "Nibs" Price and eleven members of the University of California basketball team left on the Shasta limited for Corvallis, Or., where they will meet the Oregon Aggies for the Pacific Coast conference title. Benny Holmes, star forward of the Bruin team, who came down with the influenza yesterday is confined to the University infirmary and was unable to make the trip. Clement, who has shown up well in several games, will probably take his place in the starting line-up. Aside from the loss of Holmes, the Bears are in good condition for the series. The games will be played Thursday and Friday with the deciding contest on Saturday if necessary.

ROMAN HURDLES ACE INJURES HIS FOOT

Ted Drake, crack L. A. High School hurdler, will probably have to stay away from the cinder path for several weeks, due to an injury sustained in practice yesterday. Drake broke his arch while going over a hurdle and is unable to do anything more than a trot without limping. Drake was figured on for points in practically every meet this year.

FLOWERS'S BOSS OLT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—W. Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, Atlantic negro middleweight, today was suspended indefinitely together with his entire stable of boxers, including Flowers, for failure to appear before the New York State Athletic Commission in answer to a summons.

MORGAN HAS GOOD RECORD

Speed and punch are what Tom Kennedy had in mind when he signed Ted Morgan to meet Gene Delmont in the main event at the Hollywood American Legion stadium Friday night.

It has been over a year since Tod Morgan boxed in Los Angeles. At that time Stewart McLean was his opponent. Morgan broke his hand in the bout and was forced to return to his home in Seattle and take a rest until the injured mitt mended.

It has been more than two years since Tod Morgan has dropped a decision. During that time he has fought four draws, but he was rematched with the boys who held others him even, and he beat them all in the second meetings.

Ted is a featherweight who can make 126 pounds very nicely. He will weigh about 123 pounds when he enters the ring Friday night.

Gene Delmont is known wherever the fight fans gather. He has been traveling with the big leaguers in the fight game for years. Never a world's champion, but always good enough to battle them, is what they say of Delmont.

The Memphis boy has had some tough assignments in his time. Some of the bouts he has had in his day are Rocky Kansas, five times; Willie Jackson, four times; Johnny Kilbane, Johnny Dundee, Benny Leonard, George Kayo Chaney and

Track Meet Saturday at Coliseum May Develop Sprint King

...OOD MARKS EXPECTED ... IN U.S.C.-POMONA MEET

Brice Taylor Favored to Win in Century Dash; Smith, Lee and Pinney Are Also Fast

BY BRAVEN DYER

Who is the best collegiate sprinter in Southern California? A week ago that question was easily answered by naming Keith Lloyd. Since the U.S.C. dash star has been declared ineligible for collegiate competition a new king of the sprinters must be crowned.

Pomona and U.S.C. meet at the Coliseum Saturday afternoon in a dual track meet, and it is possible that the man who is to receive Lloyd's crown will come to light. Both squads boast fast dash men, and there is a good chance that the winner of Saturday's short races will take his place as the premier track star of the south.

Lloyd succeeded Charley Paddock. The latter repeatedly did 10 flat, while at U.S.C., and is joint holder of the world's record at 9 4-5. Lloyd's best time for the century is 9:8s, and already this season he has done 9.9s. Those who have been watching the new crop of sprinters this season predict that one of them will have to do the century in better than 10s flat in order to outdistance the other fast men.

There are half a dozen good collegiate sprinters in these parts. Brice Taylor, Herschel Smith and Howard Torkelson of U.S.C.; Phil Buckman and Bud Lee of Occidental; and Hugh Pinney of Pomona. Frosh squads at both of these institutions have some fast men, but for the time being the varsity athletes alone are being considered.

TAYLOR MUST TRAIN

Taylor is the best in shape Taylor is the best in the bunch at present. He has done 9.9s on the cinders, and possesses more natural ability than his rivals. However, Taylor has not been training as consistently as his opponents this season, having practically given up track until ten days ago. If he is "in the pink" Saturday he should win. Buckman and Smith are unknown quantities this season. The former has been kept under cover by Coach Pigal because of a pulled muscle early in the year. Last season he was more or less in the background, due to the presence on the Oxy team of Hugh Argue. Smith has been ill this year, but was a brilliant runner in high school, doing 10s flat 'round the turn. Buckman's exact status at the time probably won't be known until the Pomona meet a week from Saturday. Smith may run Saturday, but if he doesn't there will be no definite line on him until the clash with Stanford relays the 28th inst.

OTHERS TO CONSIDER

Pinney has run close to Argue and Pomona last season, and Pigal declares he is sure to do 10s, flat this spring. Torkelson is really a quarter-miler, but he has done some good work in the sprints that has put him there nicely when points are needed.

Pinney has come into prominence this year, due to his fast work in Pomona's dual meets. He has not been defeated in a dual meet, and ran second to Argue in the A.A.U. relays. However, neither Buckman, Smith, Taylor or Nash ran this race, so there is a little dope on which to judge Pinney. The flagchan has a fine build, and has always been a consistent runner at close quarters. Under Eugene Nixon he will double at Pomona he is expected to give a surprise Saturday. There will be a lot of interest in the field events because of the bearing as to what runner is the real importance as the leading sprinter of the south. Taylor and Nash are not counted in the meet, but there will be a chance for a line on them a week later.

Lee, Paddock and Loren Murchison are two of the greatest dash men of the past six years, will be on hand. Perhaps the appearance of these two notables will help the track athletes on to big things.

Hollywood A.C. Ice Hockeyites Face Mercuries

A three-cornered tie looms in the Southern California Hockey League, when Tom Howard leads his Los Angeles Athletic Club against the revamped league-leading Hollywood Athletic Club six at the Palais de Glace, tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m.

As the race now stands, a victory for the L.A.A.C. will throw all three teams into a tie for first place. Hollywood and the L.A.A.C. met last Thursday night and the Movie City outfit won the game in the last two minutes of play, the final score being 5-4. Right after the game Tom Howard protested the game on the ground that several goals that Hollywood A.C. scored were secured while the players were offside. The protest was allowed with the understanding that the game was to be played over at the end of the season if either team could finish first. Hockey fans stated after the game that it was the best yet played on the local ice rink, and this game should be even better, as the Mercury outfit is fighting with their backs against the wall. Charley Kleppen says he is going to hand the Hollywood outfit another surprise Thursday night, just as he did in soccer and basketball.

George Brian of the rink is planning another of his special entertainments between the periods. These acts are the big features of the hockey games. The Palais de Glace is located on Melrose and Vermont avenues.

TROJAN FROSH BLANK MANUAL ARTS OUTFIT

The University of Southern California freshman baseball squad shut out Manual Arts, 5 to 0, in a practice game played yesterday on the Toilers' diamond. "Whitey" Edwards, peagreen hurler, allowed the Toilers but three scattered hits. Gibson, frosh backstop, was the hitting star with two triples and a double in five times at bat.

The Frosh have three more games carded for this week, meeting Jefferson at Jeff today, Polytechnic at Poly tomorrow, and the U.S.C. Varsity at Pirrone Park Friday.

Score of yesterday's game:

RABBIT PUNCHES

BY PAUL LOWRY

WHO'S going to be the next lightweight champion? Now that the New York Boxing Commission tourney has struggled along to the third round we can begin to sort out the names with greater ease. There are six of 'em still in the running—Benny Valger, Solly Seaman, Jommy Goodrich, Tommy O'Brien, Sammy Mandell, and our own Coast representative, Joe Benjamin.

Of the lot there are only two outstanding names—Joe Benjamin and Sammy Mandell. The rest of the crop doesn't look like much; it's so poor that Benny Leonard must snicker up his sleeve every time he thinks of having to fight one of them for the title he wore so long.

Those of us who saw Mandell perform here in Los Angeles last fall remember him as a very classy boxer, and yet we also remember that a Southern Californian pciept Phil Salvadore beat him in four rounds. Sammy cannot have improved to any terrific extent since then, so that doesn't put him in the class of the peerless by a long shot.

That brings us to Benjamin, the Stockton product. Joe was so much better when he fought Jack Silver in San Francisco than he had been for many months that we found it hard to believe he was the same fighter.

Perhaps Joe has been accused of being an in-and-outer because he fights only when there is something big at stake. Against Silver he had everything with the possible exception of the K. O. kick which some of the closest followers of the game insist he had two years ago.

Benjamin in the Silver fight was comparable to the Benjamin we saw fight Johnny O'Donnell, January of 1924. He had something at stake then—his reputation.

Just before the Christmas holidays of 1922 Benjamin and O'Donnell were matched in a four-round go at Vernon. O'Donnell won rather easily. The boys were rematched, and Benjamin got down to earnest training. O'Donnell was duck soup for him.

Benjamin apparently is earnest about getting in the best possible shape for the fights ahead of him. He may be matched very shortly in an open-air bout with Ace Hudkins here, and he'll need everything against the tough "Nebraska wildcat."

And if he gets by Bro. Hudkins we'll bet our extra shirt that he wins the lightweight championship of the world.

Roy Mattice, who deals OTC tires with one hand and manages fighters with the other, doesn't think his little lightweight, Charley Ledger, has been given a square deal by the local matchmakers. Roy says his boy got off to a bad start here, luck breaking against him, but he has come back in great shape and won his last three fights but none of the matchmakers will give him a tumble.

According to Mattice, his protege is on his brother's ranch doing eight to ten miles of road work as well as twelve to fifteen rounds in the gymnasium every day. Roy predicts that when the boy does get started again he's going to raise h—l. Here are a few lines from his fluent pen:

"Now, what I can't understand, after winning his last three fights decisively, why it is that we always get the go-by from all of the matchmakers. It is getting to the point that we cannot seem to get a fight any more. He has not made a bad showing in any of these fights as yet, but I know if he has an opportunity to get started again that nothing will stop him going right to the top. His fights in Worcester and other parts of the East were all main events over the eight and ten-round route, and we can't even get a four-round bout here. The public likes his style.

"He is busy all the time he is in there and he can either box or fight, whichever the case requires."

It begins to look as if El Paso would be a good place for Pal Moore, the bantamweight flash, to stay away from. Pal has had two fights there with Johnny McCoy of Cleveland, the last one Monday night, and both times he has won the majority of the rounds and lost the decision.

According to the newspaper verdict of the last scrap Pal won nine rounds and lost one, and McCoy was awarded the decision. That sounds almost as bad as some of the decisions plastered on the public at Vernon and Hollywood recently.

In a close, hard-fought meet, Glendale High School's high-powered track team defeated Pasadena, 60 1-3 to 52 2-3, at Glendale yesterday. The Dynamiters won the majority of first places, but Pasadena kept picking up points for seconds and thirds and finally made a spurt in the field events and came up near the top again.

Uplands Club Shooters Plan Two-Day Event

The trapshooting followers of this section of the State will get a chance to unlimber their pet fowling pieces on the 21st and 22nd inst., when a two-day registered tournament will be held by the Upland Gun Club at Upland.

It will mark the first clay-bird breaking competition of importance in these parts for many months. A record turnout of shooters is looked for.

Lou Reed, who for years has been one of America's foremost shooters and chief gun expert at Tufts-Lyon Company, announces that thirty-six merchandise trophies will be up in the Upland competition.

The shoot program will call for 16-yard targets, 200 to be shot at on each of the two days of competition. A squad of shooters from Arizona have written in declaring themselves in on the bombardment against the tarhawks, while practically every shooter in Los Angeles, even to Frank Mellus and Pete Cunningham, who have in recent years laid aside their guns for drivers, brassies and midirons.

POLY BALL NINE IN WIN OVER ROOSEVELT

Voyle Brennen's Polytechnic High School baseball team came from behind to win from Roosevelt, 8 to 5, in a practice game played at the Y.M.C.A. field yesterday. The Teddies got away to a fast start, and were leading, 4 to 1, at the end of the second inning. They crashed over a quartet of markers in the second inning. The Mechanics got going and finally pased them up with two runs in the fifth inning. Due and Post starred at bat for the winners, with two hits apiece. None of the Teddies got more than one hit. F. M. FITZPATRICK WANTS A JOB HERE

F. M. Fitzpatrick, who for the last eight years has been on the coaching staff of the University of Utah is desirous of coming to Southern California and following his same line of work.

The Utah mentor before coaching at the Mormon University coached the Eastend High School for four years and in his college days played the backfield and was all-conference quarterback. He is capable at instructing basketball, track and baseball and no doubt some college or high school in these parts will seek his services.

H. M. JACOBS FORMS NEW BOWLING CLUB

With the announcement that the Angelus Academy had formed a team for the 1925 Pacific Coast Bowling Congress and that an all-Southern California five also had been organized, H. M. Jacobs got busy and rounded up a hard-hitting ten-pin outfit. The Jeweler will have his men working out in a few days and will send them to the Coast Congress which meets from the 29th inst. to April 14.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

AS FAR as we're concerned—and we don't know Jimmy Duffy—we don't blame that young gentleman for asking $15,000 or as much as he can get before he agrees to fight Mickey Walker. Personally, we'd want more than that to take what Jimmy is going to take from the walloping king of welterweights if they ever meet. Walker demonstrated during his one and only appearance here that he can take care of himself and make his opponent wish he hadn't been so rash.

Of course, we haven't seen Walker up against a good left hand, which is something that Duffy has nothing else but. But we've seen him up against pretty nearly every other kind of blow and he didn't seem to be particularly perturbed, so there's no particular reason to believe that he wouldn't be able to brush aside Jimmy's left hand and plant one of his own right where Bobby Barrett did a couple of years ago.

If we were Mr. Duffy we'd first of all line up that celebrated return bout with Mr. Barrett and hold it up in Oakland. From where we sit Mr. Barrett, with all his devastating wallop, doesn't look anywhere near as dangerous as Walker, and he would draw a sum of money that would even make Mr. Duffy's eyes open up a little wider than usual. Having disposed of Mr. Barrett if he could do it—Duffy would be better fixed financially to put the gloves on with the champ.

It looks a good deal to us as though Duffy would make a lot more money by fighting Bercot, Benjamin and a flock of other welterweights and near-welterweights, including Barrett, but presumably Duffy has that heaven-sent belief in his own ability that prompts him to think that he can box Walker out of the title. If Jack Britton couldn't do it we'd scarcely pick Duffy to do so, but then, lots of things have happened that we didn't exactly expect.

Dean Cromwell out at U.S.C. has a terrible time trying to get any sympathy over the loss of so many track athletes. Cromwell has lost more men through ineligibility and sickness this year than he had lost in all his previous years at U.S.C. put together—and that's quite a considerable period of time.

The thing that spoils everything, just as the dear public is getting all ready to break down and weep with dear old Dean, is the statement that comes out that "with Lloyd ineligible Cromwell will be forced to rely in the sprints on Herschel Smith, national prep sprint champion; Brice Taylor, who has run the hundred in 9.9s., and Bob Lee, whose best time is 10s. flat." It certainly looks like a tough spring in the sprints for the Trojans.

That's one trouble with having so blamed many good athletes. Gus Henderson never got a bit of sympathy when he lost good players, for the simple reason that he had so many. Gus was in worse shape than the Trojan track coach, however, because in football much depends on teamwork, and one player may be just as good as another and still not work in the combination as well. In track teamwork doesn't mean any more than a bride's promise to obey, so Dean gets little sympathy.

CALTECH NINE WINS OVER ALHAMBRA TEAM

Hitting steadily, behind Machelin's pitching, the California Institute of Technology's baseball team defeated Alhambra High School, 8 to 3, at Alhambra yesterday. Machelin was working smoothly and was never in danger. Alhambra got to him every so often, but didn't do much damage. Blonde, Alhambra catcher, was the big star at bat, with one single and a triple. Lily starred for the Engineers. The score:

What's back of this shift in cigarette popularity?

Is it only a desire for change?

Is it a matter of price?

Or is it all a question of taste?

No—more desire for change will not explain why so many thousands of smokers all over the country are changing from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

It's something more fundamental.

No—price does not account for this sweeping turn-about in cigarette popularity, for Chesterfield is sold at the popular price—it costs the same as any of the other largest selling brands.

Yes—that's the answer. It is taste and taste alone that explains Chesterfield's sweeping gains. And taste is a matter of tobacco quality.

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

CRUELTY QUIZ TO OPEN TODAY

Parents Say Boy Mistreated at Preston State School

Committee Will be Named for Inquiry at Ione

Institution's Director Denies Knowledge of "Dungeon"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, March 10.—The opening of an investigation tomorrow to investigate charges of the parents that Allen Albee, a boy, was mistreated while an inmate recently of the Preston School of Industry at Ione, was decided upon today by the State Board of Charities and Correction at a meeting here.

The first step of the board, it was announced today by members, will be to hear such evidence as has been gathered by its agents in the San Francisco Bay district, where relatives of the boy reside, and then to appoint a committee to send to the school to gather additional information. This committee will be composed of members of the board and staff workers.

The parents of young Albee say the boy was placed in a punishment cell without proper bed clothing while sick and as a result he has become partially paralyzed in the legs.

W. D. Wagner, director of the State Department of Institutions, requested the hearing. In a letter to the board he reviewed the charges of cruelty, incidentally mentioning the fact that he "was not aware there was a 'dungeon' at the Preston school."

Wagner's letter continued and said "another reason for my desiring an investigation of this sensational story is the fact that such reports are usually 99 per cent untrue, made for sensational purposes, and really tend to shake the confidence of the public in the conduct of our State institutions, and cause the relatives or friends of those who are committed to the State institutions unnecessary anxiety."

The letter further stated that young Albee first had been sent to the Whittier State School on a charge of truancy and incorrigibility "and was referred by the superintendent of that school to the courts on account of his immorality and was then sent by the court under commitment to the Preston School of Industry."

LOSES DAMAGE SUIT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOMBSTONE (Ariz.) March 10. Judgment has been given the defendant in the case of H. E. Niemy against the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company. The suit was for $50,000 damages on assertion that the plaintiff had contracted miners' consumption while working in the mine near Bisbee. Evidence showed that the Bisbee mines are free from dust and other conditions such as cause miners' consumption elsewhere, and that Neimy was not suffering from that disease.

BEVERLY HILLS HEIGHTS

ONE of the three Tract Offices at Beverly Hills Heights surmounts the very crest.

The crest commands so scenic an elevation that an Eastern visitor picked out that very spot to buy.

"This 180x100 foot lot suits me," he said.

"But that means we have to move the Tract Office," objected the Salesman.

"Not at all," replied the Buyer. "If you sell out Beverly Hills Heights as soon as I think you will you'll be through with your Tract Office by the time I want to build!"

QUADRA SEIZURE TOLD IN COURT

Guard Captain Says She Was in American Waters

British Crew on Trial as Rum-Runners

Boat Boarded After Shot Across Her Bow

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—The manner in which the British steamer Quadra, suspected rum-runner, was taken as a prize by the American Coast Guard, was detailed on the stand today by Capt. Charles F. Howell, master of the Coast Guard cutter Shawnee, in the United States District Court trial of members of the Quadra's crew and others on a charge of violation of the Federal prohibition laws.

Capt. Howell said that he sighted the Quadra when she was about fourteen miles off San Francisco on October 12, 1924. He steamed to within four miles of the Quadra and then the pursued vessel started to put further out to sea. Capt. Howell sounded four blasts of his siren, the signal to the other craft to stop, and the Quadra hove to and awaited the government vessel. The Shawnee came alongside and found the small boat C-55 alongside also. The C-55 started away and after failing to heed shouted warnings to stop, was brought to a halt by a shot across her bow.

Capt. Howell put a line aboard the C-55 and then boarded the Quadra. Capt. George Ford of the British boat told the American officer that he had no right to board the ship, as she was fourteen miles out and not within the territorial waters of the United States. Capt. Howell responded that the Quadra was but five and seven-tenths miles from the north extremity of North Farallon Island, a United States possession, and he would therefore seize her. He then put a line aboard the Quadra and brought both that vessel and the smaller boat into port.

Asked how he made his reckoning of mileage, Capt. Howell responded that he used soundings and the compass. He was told to bring his compass chart into court and replied that he would do so.

The defense is expected to establish the claim that the ownership of the Farallon Islands is still in dispute and that, therefore, they cannot be considered as United States territory.

FAMILY DOCTOR SHORTAGE HIT

Medical Association's Head Blames Study Costs

Need of Smaller Colleges Emphasized by Speaker

Conflict of Opinion Features Convention Session

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, March 10.—Conflict of opinion developed today at the annual congress on education of the American Medical Association, concerning the cause and remedy for what leaders agreed to be an enormous shortage of family doctors.

"The increased number of medical graduates, cited from this platform," declared Dr. William Allen Pusey of Chicago, president of the association, "means no more to the needs of the ordinary citizen than does the increased output of 810,000 automobiles. Medical service is toboggoning toward breakdown or revolution. This is to be expected when the preparation for our profession costs 75 per cent more than preparation for any other profession. As a result medical graduates are preferring the better rewarded careers of specialists to ordinary service for the ordinary sick. The country doctor has almost vanished and the family doctor of the cities will vanish too."

TOO LUXURIOUS

Dr. Pusey replied vigorously to critics of his views and took issue with views of previous speakers, who had warned against "lowering educational standards." He declared that medical education "since the poor relation, now the spoiled child," of education, had become so luxurious to live within its inflated income. He insisted that three years of collegiate residence and a fourth of apprenticeship, rather than four or five years of collegiate residence, were ample for training ordinary practitioners, and that medical college requirements must be made less exacting.

"Do not damn ideas with catchwords, or suppress them instead of trying to prove them wrong," he said. "I am not scared by the bogey of lowered standards or the strawman of incompetent doctors. We can trace twice as soundly as we do in half the time now required. Too much time is given to didactic lectures and the imparting of a mass of detailed knowledge; there is too little emphasis on sound apprenticeship and no habits of independent thinking and investigation. Apprenticeship need not necessarily be in a hospital; it may be well spent as an assistant to a sound physician.

SMALL COLLEGE NEED

"Of 1592 graduates of Johns Hopkins between 1897 and 1920, only 3.45 per cent are engaged in communities of less than 500 population. We need institutions that are equipped like Johns Hopkins to train specialists and investigators, but we must also have small colleges that can train at a cost not prohibitive to the student, family doctors in their own districts. Let us provide as good an education as is economically distributable.

"I see no need for expanding the years of training because the volume of things to know about medicine has increased. There is no increase in the length of an engineering course, though there have been more revolutionary discoveries in physical than in medical science."

AMERICAN GIRL HUNTED IN GERMANY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, March 10.—Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Reichert of Canton, Ill., arrived in Leipzig to unravel the mysterious disappearance of their 25-year-old daughter, Helene, who left the apartment where she had been studying three weeks ago, after suicide threats.

Helene, a beautiful and talented American girl, had practically completed her training for the operatic stage, and she had expected to make her debut shortly.

During her studies she met and became enamored with a 48-year-old teacher of languages at Leipzig University. He failed to return her affections. After nursing her passion for several months, she determined that her case was hopeless, and wrote Frau Weber, an old friend of the family with whom she was living, saying that life was not worth while without her sweetheart, and she was determined to kill herself.

The police searched for several days, but found no clew beyond the fact that she had asked her way to a bathing pool in the Elster. Consul Haven asked the Leipzig police to drag the river and bathing pool, but they refused, saying the work only would be undertaken if the girl's parents paid the expense.

COAST-TO-COAST ROAD FOR MEXICO

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MATAMOROS (Mex.) Feb. 10.—Construction of a coast-to-coast modern highway has been decided upon by the Mexican government, according to official information received here. It is stated that the first section of the proposed highway will be built between Matamoros and Tampico, closely following the Gulf Coast, a distance of about 325 miles. From Tampico the highway will be laid out in as direct route as possible to Mexico City, mounting from sea level to the plateau region of 6000 to 7000 feet by easy grade and through scenic parts of the mountains. The route from Mexico City to the Pacific Coast has not been definitely determined upon.

—for Greatest Bread Economy

TO some families, the saving of a few cents on a loaf of bread is important.

That is the reason why we have marketed Merit Bread, our new loaf that sells at a price somewhat lower than either Betsy Ross or Holsum. Folks who are not satisfied with mediocre loaves, but to whom economy is a big consideration, can now have standard quality bread at a price they can easily meet. Merit is a good, substantial grade of bread. It is made in the split-top shape from good, wholesome ingredients. It is not so rich in milk and shortening as Betsy Ross and Holsum but it has a real old-fashioned flavor that pleases the taste of a great many people.

Merit is the best grade of Bread possible at the price. The new Betsy Ross loaf is made in the longer and narrower shape and is the same high quality as the popular Holsum brand. The predominant feature of the Betsy Ross loaf is its shape—the smaller slices fit any kind of toaster without trimming, and are ideal for sandwiches and general family use.

Try these new breads. Your grocer always has a fresh supply and you are sure to always get full value regardless of the brand you ask for.

FACES TRIAL FOR LETTERS TO COOLIDGE

Aged Rabbi in Court for Writing to President About Campaign Contributions

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—B. M. Browne, 72 years of age, former rabbi of a small Bronx synagogue now closed, was brought in Yorkville court today on a summons charged with sending annoying letters to President Coolidge. The summons was obtained by James N. Weitsman, a secret-service agent. Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrews, paroled Mr. Browne for a hearing next Monday.

It was charged that Mr. Browne wrote a number of letters to the President, Mrs. Coolidge and Frank Steans, requesting reimbursement for campaign expenditures. He told the court that he specifically requested $12,500, which amount he said represented half the sum expended by the American Jewish Seventy Elders during the last campaign.

Local Jewish leaders said they never heard of an organization known as the American Jewish Seventy Elders. Mr. Browne claims to be the organizer and present head of the society. His name does not appear in available records as an Orthodox rabbi.

It developed that Mrs. Coolidge had turned over one of Mr. Browne's many letters to the secret service. This letter was signed "Temple Zion, Dr. E. B. M. Browne, rabbi."

Mr. Browne produced in court letters which he said were written to him by Presidents Harding, Roosevelt, McKinley and Harrison, as "evidence of their respect and friendship."

BOMB EXPLODES IN HERRIN STORE

Infernal Machine Thought Set for Klansman

Parents of Glen Fowler Injured by Blast

New Series of Deaths Feared; Suspects Held

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HERRIN (Ill.) March 10.—Flames of hatred burst forth again in "Bloody Williamson" early today, when a bomb was exploded under the grocery and residence of H. O. Fowler, father of Glen Fowler, one of the chief lieutenants of the slain Klan chieftain, S. Glenn Young.

The blast destroyed the store and residence and both Mr. and Mrs. Fowler were injured, although not fatally. It is believed the bomb was intended for young Fowler, who was not in the house at the time. The entire upper floor of the two-story building collapsed and windows in all directions were broken by the explosion. The bed in which the elder Fowlers were sleeping, catapulted down the collapsing floor, dumping the amazed occupants in a pile of debris outside the building.

A cordon of police was immediately thrown around the town and inside a half hour Roscoe Langford and Paul Riddle, Anti-Klan, from Marion, were arrested. They were attempting to escape from Herrin in a stolen automobile. They were immediately taken to the jail at Marion for safety, being held on charges of automobile theft. The authorities ,however, feel sure they can connect them with the bombing.

Glen Fowler, at whom the bomb was aimed, was just returning from Weaver, and, with three carloads of companions, was passing the City Hall, two blocks distant when the explosion came. Thinking the bank was being attacked, the men separated in groups and covered all the roads leading out of Herrin. One of these groups intercepted Langford and Riddle, as they were tearing out on the road to Marion. They could give no explanation of their presence in Herrin.

Acting Sheriff Parks, who is in charge since the departure of Sheriff Galligan, who left the county under armistice terms, reported to the State authorities this evening that the local officials in Herrin and the county had the situation well in hand and that troops would not be needed.

Nevertheless, the feeling between the Klan and the anti-Klan, which includes the foreign labor faction, is again aroused to fever heat and veterans who have seen years of battling here, predict that the bombing of the Fowler home is the first gun in another series of killings. A county election is soon to be held and activity of the opposing groups is not tending to make for peace.

NEW YORK GIRL BRIDES QUIZZED

Several Confess Marriage Long Before Legal Age

Connivance of Parents and Sordid Details Told

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Twenty girl brides, some of them only 12 years of age, most of them 15 and 16, none more than 18, frightened and dismayed, appeared before the Bronx county grand jury today in the investigation into the marriage license bureaus of Manhattan and the Bronx.

The girls, subpoenaed by Dist.-Atty. McGeehan of the Bronx, instigator of the investigation, all have annulment and divorce suits pending in the courts. All were married by civil ceremonies and were expected to tell the jury of their marital troubles of abandonment, cruelty and poverty.

The waiting-room outside the jury room took on the appearance of a first day at school. Eighteen of the girls were accompanied by their mothers. The other two were there with guardians. Others called as witnesses were Michael J. Cruise, City Clerk of Manhattan; Thomas J. McCabe, deputy City Clerk of the Bronx; Senator Benjamin Antin, chairman of the Child Welfare League of the State Legislature, and Miss May Edna Richmond, special investigator of marital troubles for the Russell Sage Foundation.

NAMES FROM RECORDS

The names of the girl brides, all of whom have found marriage a failure, were obtained by Mr. McGeehan from the divorce and annulment records of the Supreme courts.

Several of the girls confessed that they had been married long before they were of the legal age of 18. One of these was a thin, frail little being, short in stature and immature in body. She admitted that she was married when she was 12 years of age. She was abandoned a short time thereafter. Others of 13, 14 and 15 years told similar stories.

Senator Antin was the first witness today. He declined to discuss the questions he had answered. The Senator has taken a prominent part in child welfare work and it is his contention that the age limit should be fixed at 16 years, with a written consent from the parents of the girl.

SENATOR'S PLAN

The Senator further is advocating a "stop, look, listen" period of two weeks after the marriage license has been granted, and he believes that in this way many elopements and hasty marriages will be prevented.

Many of the girls married by the civil ceremony do so with the consent of their parents, who connive with them and swear falsely as to their age. Backed by the parents' affidavit that the girl is 18 years of age the City Clerk issuing the certificate and performing the marriage can make little objection.

This connivance of parents is in many cases said to be a means of helping the daughter to wed. Once married the girl can be taken out of school and sent to work.

PARIS DIVORCE IS QUESTIONED

Dennistoun Decree Validity Issue in Loan Suit

Defendant Declared Ready to Admit Collusion

Ex-Husband's Finances Are Matter of Dispute

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, March 10.—The question as to the validity in England of the divorce secured in Paris by Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun from Lieut.-Col. Dennistoun, whom she is suing for sums of money she alleges she loaned him prior to their separation, was delayed today at the resumption of the proceedings brought by Mrs. Dennistoun.

Sir Edward Marshall Hall, counsel for Dennistoun, said it was said, while Sir George Lewis, Mrs. Dennistoun's solicitor, asserted that it was. The puzzle, however, was left unsolved for the present.

Another surprising statement by Sir Edward was that Dennistoun did not dispute his domicile in France at the time of the divorce, and he did not dispute misconduct, and that he would say on the witness stand that the divorce was obtained by arrangement between himself and his wife.

In the course of the testimony today it transpired that Dennistoun became entitled to £10,000 sterling after the suit was begun in September, owing to the death of his father. Prior to this Sir Edward Marshall Hall suggested that he had no money whatever, except what Countess Carnarvon gave him. Sir George Lewis retorted that he knew Dennistoun owned over ($1,000 sterling the day after the writ was issued.

"Have you never heard of a woman giving her husband money to settle on her so that he might escape the reproach of being poor?" asked Sir Edward of Sir George.

SUSPECTS IN CHECK CASE START WEST

Allen and Gallagher Are Being Returned for Trial in Hotel Fraud Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MIAMI (Fla.) March 10.—William Allen, 20-year-old youth recently arrested here on charges of defrauding hotels and business men in Los Angeles of sums of money, the total of which ranges into thousands of dollars, waived extradition and left this morning for Los Angeles, with Lieut. McCauley of the Los Angeles police department.

Frank J. Gallagher, former garment sales broker, who was arrested in New York at the same time as Allen, is understood to be likewise on the return journey to Los Angeles.

Frank J. Gallagher and William Allen were charged with forgery and embezzlement on warrants sworn out by P. E. White, special investigator of the Alexandria, following their disappearance from the hotel after cashing several checks, which later were returned because of insufficient funds. The inquiry into the operations of the pair is said to have disclosed the forgery of signatures to check indorsements of several Los Angeles business men. The two were arrested nearly two weeks ago, and have since been held awaiting arrival of Los Angeles detectives sent to bring them back.

De Luxe Hobo Lays Down Down in Peace to Sleep in Ingenius Hammock

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) March 10. Hoboing de luxe with a sleeping hammock capable of being fastened to train rods, a 62-year-old refugee from Northern winters arrived here from New Orleans and is temporarily stopping in San Antonio. He is registered as L. W. Perkins.

Unless he raises funds to pay a $25 fine assessed against him in corporation court on a charge of unlawfully riding a train he will spend the remainder of the winter in San Antonio.

Special Agent Sam Crutcher of Southern Pacific arrested him upon his arrival in San Antonio and seized the ingenious contraption of net and straps in which Perkins is accustomed to travel.

In it he has traveled thousands of miles free. On this trip, he came from Florida to San Antonio, with a stop at New Orleans. He expected to go to Los Angeles. Due to the hole-proof construction of the new Southern Pacific trains the traveler found his hammock could not be used over that line. He was forced to ride like any other hobo, clinging to the "blind baggage." To this his detection is attributed.

FEAR HEAVY FROST HURT FRUIT CROP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, March 10. — Fruit growers throughout Northern California and officials of the co-operative exchanges and packing houses which handle their crops were worried this morning over the possibility of damage from the heavy frost which whitened the valley as though snow had fallen. A careful check-up by the California Fruit Exchange failed to bring any word of frost damage, however.

Advance warnings of the frost had been sent out yesterday by N. R. Taylor, government weather forecaster here, and smudge pots were lighted in many valley orchards.

Taylor today expressed the fear that the frost had done some damage, as yet unreported, as almonds are now in their most critical period. He also feared the loss of some of the early peaches.

More frost is predicted for tonight and tomorrow morning by Taylor.

The snow at Truckee is eighteen inches deep, being ample for winter sports there. Dutch Flat has eight inches on the ground. In the Sacramento Canyon fresh snow fell yesterday at all points from Lamoine north.

MERCHANTS TOLD TO ASK AID OF WIFE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 10.—Merchants would do well to consult frequently with their wives, George E. Nagel, president of Silverwoods, Inc., said here tonight at the joint banquet of California Retail Clothiers, Furnishers and Hatters' Association and Men's Apparel Club.

"From the cradle to the grave," Nagel said, "we are influenced by women. Recognise her opinions and judgment. She is an experienced buyer, she knows about budgets, she is a good judge of human nature, she knows window displays, she knows color, she knows about adaptibility; discuss your problems at home with your wife."

Nagel was toastmaster at the banquet. It marked the close of the first day of the sixth annual convention of the association. More than 300 persons were in attendance. Sessions are held in the Hotel Virginia. Bert Dodd, president of the Long Beach branch of the organization, called the convention to order. Lorne D. Middough of Long Beach is president of the association. Mayor Clark welcomed the clothiers to the city.

The Men's Apparel Club, affiliated with the association, is holding its meeting here concurrently. Al H. Claybaugh of San Francisco opened the sessions of the club. The convention will end Thursday.

HOSPITAL TO BE WIGGINS MONUMENT

Plans Drawn for $5,000,000 Institution in Memory of Late Chamber Secretary

Plans were completed last night by a group of capitalists and physicians for the construction of a $5,000,000 hospital of 1000 beds to be known as Frank Wiggins Memorial Hospital, in honor of the late secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. It is planned that the hospital will be the largest privately owned institution of its kind in the West. It will be a height-limit structure of steel and concrete, facing four streets, and with a general administrative center convergent in an X-shaped building.

Plans call for a free clinic with a capacity of 3500 cases a day, two industrial wards to care for workmen injured in factory accidents and other features.

Officers and directors for the new hospital were selected yesterday as follows: President, Maj. John A. Griffin; vice-president, Dr. Edward H. Anthony; secretary-treasurer, F. O. Blaster, and directors, George L. Eastman, Ralph Hamlin, A. R. Walker, J. J. Doyle, Edward C. English and Drs. H. Clifford Loos, Walter M. Hollerman, George P. Waller, Jr., and Garnet B. Grant.

Two hundred physicians and surgeons of Los Angeles are said to be identified with the project. No announcement of the site will be made for several days, except that it will be in a northwesterly direction from the business district. Walker & Eisen are architects for the structure.

MADISON (Wisconsin) Marzo 10.—La Suprema Corte de Wisconsin, en dramático fallo pronunciado hoy, ha sentenciado a Arthur W. Richter, candidato al tribunal de circuito de Milwaukee, a pagarle por servicios a su ama de llaves la suma de $2750.

Por primera vez en su historia, ha dado la corte una decisión sin la larga formalidad de previa conferencia. Debido a ciertas aseveraciones y confesiones que hizo Mr. Richter en sus alegatos ante la corte, atañederas a su conducta personal, el alto tribunal ordenó se retuvieran dichos alegatos para hacer al demandado los extrañamientos aficionales que la corte juzgare oportunos.

La parte de la respuesta del señor Richter en la que la corte se ha fijado para ulterior consideración, y que Richter dió como razón para que no se le obligara a pagar más de $3000 que se le cobraban por servicios domésticos, es la siguiente:

"En cuarto lugar, manifiesto en mi defensa, que los servicios mencionados en la querella fueron prestados de acuerdo con un contrato ilegal y nulo, y que dichos servicios fueron incidentales a un período de conducta ilegal entre los contratantes, y formaron parte de él."

Clara Stark denunció al letrado Richter por servicios no pagados de ama de llaves, servicios que duraron de 1915 a 1921. En la sala del juez Gehrz, de Milwaukee, un jurado pronunció un veredicto de $2750 más intereses. Richter apeló de él y compareció personalmente ante la Suprema Corte el martes para defenderse. La Corte oyó los alegatos de Clara Stark; pero antes de que Richter concluyera con los suyos, ya los jueces estaban conferenciando en el estrado, lo que daba a pensar que el supremo tribunal se proponía tomar una decisión inmediata. Después de la defensa, se produjo un momento de silencio y la situación se puso tirante. Entonces el Primer Magistrado Vinje pronunció un veredicto contra el señor Richter y ordenó se le ocupara su escrito para seguir examinando su conducta como abogado.

Tan pronto como se anunció el veredicto, Richter se puso en pie y salió de la sala. Los empleados del tribunal declararon que era éste el fallo más sensacional que se había dado en una sala de la Suprema Corte de Wisconsin.

Se Busca Activamente a una Muchacha Americana en Alemania

BERLIN, Marzo 10.—Han llegado a Leipzig el señor y la señora W. P. Reichert, de Canton, Illinois, para hacer luz en el misterio de la desaparición de su hija Helene, de 25 años de edad, que abandonó hace tres semanas la habitación donde había estado estudiando, habiendo hecho amenazas de suicidarse.

En el curso de sus estudios conoció a un maestro de lenguas de la Universidad de Leipzig, de 45 años de edad, y se había enamorado de él. El maestro no había correspondido a su pasión. Después de alimentar ésta varios meses, llegó la joven a la conclusión de que no había esperanza para ella, y escribió a Frau Weber, antigua amiga de la familia con quien Helene vivía, diciéndole que no valía la pena vivir sin su amado, y que estaba resuelta a poner fin a sus días.

La policía ha hecho pesquisas durante varios días; pero no ha encontrado pista alguna, si no es el incidente de que Helen había preguntado qué camino debía tomar para ir a una piscina natatoria en el Elster. El cónsul Haven pidió a la policía de Leipzig que dragara en río y la piscina, pero se negaron a hacerlo, pues alegaron que sólo podría emprenderse ese trabajo, caso de que lo costearan los padres de la muchacha.

Initial Payments Voted

Directors of Holly Development Company in meeting yesterday in Los Angeles re-elected the old officers and declared a dividend of 10 cents a share on 900,000 shares of outstanding stock, the first dividend ordered paid since the organization of the company in 1922. The dividend is payable April 15, to stock of record the 31st inst.

Ability to make the initial payment of Holly Development stock was brought about by the return of 40 per cent royalty on six wells drilled by the Associated Oil Company on a fifty-acre lease in the Domingues field, held by the development company.

While no official statement was forthcoming at the annual directors' meeting, it was generally assumed that the 10-cent dividend would be continued as a quarterly disbursement in the future.

BANK STOCKS SHOW GAINS

Market Prices Reflect Appraisals of Community's Business Strength; Deposits Large

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Certainly there are few yardsticks of a community's business strength that are more reliable than the price movement of bank stocks. For this reason, more than ordinary importance is attached to the marked appreciation in the prices of representative bank stocks in Los Angeles since the first of the year. In the price of these securities is expressed the composite view of innumerable investors, who form a class that ordinarily buys for strict investment worth and only after a careful study has determined the economic strength of the territory in which the banks operate.

It almost might be said that the market movements of bank shares are really quotations on the community itself as measured by the high standards of investment analysis. In the prices of bank shares are found the elements of safety or stability of general business within the community, the management or the character of the people directing affairs, the margin of profits in the average run of business enterprises, and speculation, or the trend in economic growth. In the light of these investment essentials, there clearly is a basis for a sanguine and complacent view of present and future business in Los Angeles and the contiguous region.

ADVANCES RECORDED

	Price Jan. 1, 1925	March 10, 1925	Gain
First National	$378	$380	$ 2
Security	330	337	7
Citizens' National	201	215	14
Farmers' and Merchants'	390	402	12
Merchants' National	223	245	22
Holman	180	200	20
Union Bank	164	200	36
National City	166	175	9
Bank of Italy	260	297	37
Banciitaly Corporation	150	185	35

In a period of a little over two months, market advances such as the foregoing are little short of remarkable for bank stocks. This performance demonstrates first of all the recognition these shares have gained from investors and also points to the broadening of the demand for Los Angeles bank stocks. Specialists in these securities assert that individuals who never purchased bank shares before are now in the market and the distribution consequently is widening. Moreover, the banks themselves are cognizant of the value of wide distribution and are encouraging the investment tendencies in their securities.

For stability of earnings and prospects of future market appreciation the Los Angeles bank stocks generally are rated higher than those of any Pacific Coast city. The growth of deposits here has been much more rapid than in other cities on this side of the Rockies and the demand for money has been constant enough to insure satisfactory earnings on a fair level of interest rates. In Los Angeles the supply of money is fully adequate to care for legitimate needs, and the demand at this time is at a rate to suggest the maintenance of present earnings available for dividends.

SUPPLY ANGLE

In fact, there are indications pointing to the possibility for higher earnings for the remainder of this year. In line with the general movement of interest rates throughout the country, a slight hardening of rates is now noted here, although this does not mean that money is tight. Los Angeles banks rarely utilize their rediscounting privileges with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco. This is the season of growth in deposits, but the demand for loans is heavy enough to call for interest rates around a level of 6½ per cent.

Deposits generally increase from January to May and then the agricultural and mercantile demands slowly expand until about October, and deposits decrease. At present, however, the call for money from diversified lines of activity is at a steady rate in consonance with the level of general business operations.

Deposits in thirty-one State and national banks within the city limits totaled nearly $1,000,000,000 on January 1, last, an increase of 10 per cent over the same date a year ago. The deposits of seventeen leading banks on that date were 520 per cent ahead of the amount reported by the same banks on January 1, 1914.

On the first of the year, twelve dividend-paying Los Angeles bank stocks returned a yield to the investor on the market price of about 4.85 per cent. This compares with 4.17 per cent for twenty-two banks in New York, and affords an idea of the investment merit of local bank securities.

Sperry Flour Company is one of the largest milling companies in the world, and is the largest in the West. Its growth during its twenty-three years of operation has been a striking parallel to the development of the Pacific Coast territory.

The six years, 1918 to 1923, inclusive, recorded wide fluctuations in profits and scope of business, but the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1924, registered the greatest increase in production ever recorded.

OUTPUT GAINS

In 1920, the company produced 3,341,505 barrels of flour; 1921, 1,735,303 barrels; 1922, 2,322,519 barrels; 1923, 3,060,440 barrels, and 1924, 3,935,703 barrels. Sales in 1923-24 were 4,161,314 barrels, as compared with 2,962,436 in 1922-23.

Total operating profit, before deducting depreciation, bond interest and dividends, in 1923-24 was $1,170,405.93, as compared with $1,541,953 in 1923; $1,260,635 in 1922; $2,947,116 in 1920, and $898,874 in 1919.

Assets of the company as of June 30, 1924, were $26,352,083.28. This compares with $25,114,320 in 1923; $23,364,122 in 1922; $17,772,242, 1921; $18,616,924, 1920; $14,913,140, 1919, and $13,158,586 in 1918. This is a growth of nearly 125 per cent in six years.

The bonded debt ranged as follows:

$5,243,500 in 1924; $5,366,500 in 1923; $5,172,000 in 1922; $2,796,000 in 1921; $2,900,000, 1920; $2,999,000, 1919, and $605,000 in 1918.

DIVIDENDS PAID

Capitalization is $9,000,000. Outstanding stock is divided into 35,925 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares, par $100, and 54,000 shares of common stock, par $100. Preferred authorized totals $3,600,000, and common, $5,400,000. Net profit in the period ended June 30, 1924, was $423,113.86, or $11.78 a share on the outstanding preferred.

Dividends paid on preferred stock for the twelvemonth period closed June 30, 1924, totaled $251,390.42, or slightly less than 7 per cent. Preferred disbursements are quarterly from January 1. On June 30, 1921, a 1½ per cent dividend was paid on common; none since. Quarterly payments at the rate of 8 per cent per annum were paid from September 30, 1917, to March 31, 1921, inclusive, and 75 cents a share from March 31, 1917, to June 3, 1917. Extra dividends on common were paid as follows: 25 cents a share in December, 1913; December, 1914, 1915 and 1916, 50 cents a share; December 15, 1917, $2; December 15, 1918, $2; December 15, 1919, $2; December 15, 1920, $1. A stock dividend of 5 per cent was paid on July 20, 1917.

There are more than 400,000 postal-savings depositors, with an average deposit of about $326, in this country.

LONG-TERM LOANS ARE ADVOCATED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Extension of long-term loans rather than short-term credits to German industry was advocated today by Herbert M. Gutmann, managing director of the Dresdner Bank of Berlin, who is in this country discussing financing problems with American bankers. What Germany needs most at present, he said, is enough working capital to enable it to rebuild all that has been destroyed and to make good all that has been neglected in the way of commerce and industry. While Mr. Gutmann said he did not contemplate negotiating any specific loans, he probably will discuss plans for consolidating short credits and arranging financial support for two score or more corporations in which he is interested.

Expenditures for new building in February in the leading cities of the country, are estimated at $209,421,500 by Dun's Review. This exceeds the aggregate for January by 14.2 per cent, but is 14.1 per cent below the amount for February, 1924. Permits issued in New York City for the month had a value of $52,762,900, a decline of 48.5 per cent under February last year, whereas the total for outside cities of $156,657,600 disclosed a gain of 10.9 per cent.

A banking syndicate has sold privately a new issue of 240,000 shares of no par value common stock of the Fair of Chicago, department store, at $35 a share. Application will be made to list the stock on the New York and Chicago stock exchanges. S. S. Kresge recently was elected chairman of the board.

Continental Paper Bag Mills Corporation reports net loss of $493,315 after interest and depreciation for the eleven months ended December 31, 1924. Deficit after preferred and common dividends was $657,065.

A new issue of 40,000 shares of common stock of the Motion Picture Capital Corporation will be offered tomorrow by Lyman D. Smith & Co., stock exchange members, at $17 a share. The corporation will make loans to motion-picture producers and others, and rehypothecate such loans at banks.

A petition to close the New York Cotton Exchange on Good Friday, April 10, and Saturday, April 11, was being circulated among the members today.

A record high price of $13,000 for a seat on the New York Curb Market was paid today by Charles S. Leahy, who bought the membership of J. J. Stewart Campbell.

Stockholders of P. Lorillard Company have authorized an offering of 100,000 shares of committee stock to employees at not less than $30 a share.

CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

The following information has been summarized from the official letter of Mr. J. J. O'Brien, President of the Company:

Property Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company serves electricity or natural gas to 88 cities and towns, including Oklahoma City, El Reno, Enid, Drumright, Sapulpa, Muskogee, Shawnee and Ada, located in the richest and most populous sections of Oklahoma and having a combined estimated population of over 375,000. Total generating capacity of the company aggregates 88,990 horsepower, including the Riverbank power station located near Muskogee, with initial capacity of 30,000 horsepower, and the Horse Shoe Lake power plant near Oklahoma City, with initial capacity of 20,000 horsepower. Both of these plants were placed in operation during 1924. Over 984 miles of interconnected power lines link the new power plants with the entire system of the Company, making possible the transfer of electric load to insure continuity of service at all times.

Purpose of Issue The proceeds from the sale of these Bonds and other securities will provide funds to retire the entire present outstanding funded debt of the Company and of its subsidiaries, Southern Oklahoma Power Company, Shawnee Gas and Electric Company and Oklahoma General Power Company, the properties of which will be transferred to Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company and subjected to the direct lien of the new mortgage.

Security These Bonds will be secured by a direct first mortgage on all fixed property of the Company, including that of all present subsidiaries, the property of which will be transferred to the Company in the present financing.

	Outstanding
First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, due March 1, 1950 (this issue)	$23,500,000*
6% Gold Debentures, due March 1, 1940	8,000,000
7% Cumulative Preferred Stock	9,012,600
Common Stock	7,500,000†

*Additional Bonds to be issuable, in series, under conservative mortgage restrictions.
†$4,500,000 Common Stock now outstanding and $3,000,000 cash subscription for other Common Stock.

Earnings For the twelve months ended January 31, 1925, earnings of the properties to be covered by the mortgage were as follows:

Gross Earnings	$8,077,607
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes, excluding Depreciation	5,424,944
Net Earnings	$2,652,663
Annual interest requirement on $23,500,000 First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, this issue	$1,175,000

Above Net Earnings over 2¼ times annual Bond interest requirement.

General Over 78% of the present net earnings of the property, to be owned and mortgaged by the Company, is derived from the sale of electric power and light. During the last ten years gross earnings of such properties increased over 262% and net earnings increased over 222%. The year 1925 should show a substantial increase in net earnings. Aside from the new business now available for service from the two large power plants recently completed, the Company will receive full benefit of lower operating costs arising from operation of these plants. The number of preferred shareholders now exceeds 5,000, approximately 1,700 of whom were added under the customer ownership plan during 1924. BOND QUOTATIONS

Prices Slump

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Bond prices crumbled today under selling inspired by the unsettlement in the stock market and continued apprehension over the current tightening of money rates.

Adverse developments affecting nine corporations contributed to the general uneasiness which reflected recessions of 1 to 3 points.

The growing belief in the financial district that plans to reorganize the St. Paul Railway's financial affairs would be unfavorable intensified selling pressure against the road's bonds and depressed the maturing 4s more than 2 points to the lowest level in two years.

Lack of buying support for other rail issues was reflected in losses of a point or so by New York Central 6s, Frisco readjustment 6s, Norfolk and Western convertible 6s and an assortment of other investment and semispeculative mortgages.

Appointment of a receiver for the Detroit United Railways was followed by a break of 2¼ points in the company's 4½ per cent bonds. Standard Gas 6½s fell back 2 points and Pan-American 6s, with a 2-point loss, led the active oil issues lower.

Publication of a tentative reorganization plan for Wilson & Co., proposing an exchange of new stocks and bonds for present holdings, led to further selling of the 7½ per cent bonds, but the decline was limited to a point.

Foreign and United States government bonds moved irregularly lower. The local Federal reserve bank announced that subscription bonds had been closed on the treasury's $450,000,000 offering of bonds and certificates.

[Following are yesterday's high, low and closing prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange, and the total sales of each bond. These quotations are received over Associated Press wires, and to expedite transmission the closing is omitted when it is the same as the low, and both low and close are omitted when they are the same as the high.]

NEW YORK CURB

Losses General

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—All groups of stocks yielded to selling pressure in today's curb market, which continued to move in sympathy with the decline on the "big board." A break of 7½ points to 1.92 in Cities Service common was the feature of the trading in the oil shares. Net losses of 1 to 4 points in that group also were recorded by Cities Service new stock, Continental Oil, Prairie Gas, South Penn, Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum.

Revival of selling pressure against the radio issues resulted in losses of a point or so in Dubilier and Ware, but net recessions in the other issues were held to fractions. Glen Alden Coal dropped 4 points to 1.31 and marked heaviness was shown by Lehigh Valley Coal certificates. Continental Baking "B," Goodyear Tire and Duz, all of which closed more than 1 point below yesterday's final figures. The declines in public utilities were held to a point or so.

PRICES WEAKEN UNDER SELLING

Bullish Reports Are Ignored by Speculators

Favorable Steel Statement Has Little Effect

Liquidation Heavy in St. Paul Rail Shares

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Further weakness developed in today's stock market, despite a sharp rally in wheat prices and publication of a favorable tonnage statement by the United States Steel Corporation. Heavy selling of stocks, many of which dropped 1 to 5 points, generally was believed to have been inspired by speculative uneasiness over the money situation, and reports that spring business in some lines was not up to early expectations.

Selling pressure was directed chiefly against some of the so-called pivotal industrials. American Can broke from a high of 180⅝ to 175½, and then rallied to 176, where it was off 4⅝ on the day. Baldwin showed a net loss of 4⅝ at 134½. United States Steel common closed at its low price of the day, 122⅝, off 1½. Studebaker yielded fractionally to 44½.

American Bank Note broke 22 points to 184 on one sale. Nash Motors dropped 9⅛ points to 252½ on a small turnover.

Further selling of the St. Paul issues reflected growing concern over that road's ability to take care of its maturities this year without being forced through a reorganization. The common duplicated the year's low of 11½, while the preferred dropped 1⅝ points to 26. Recent heaviness of New York Central was said to be due to liquidation for the account of Union Pacific subsidiaries. Baltimore and Ohio and Rock Island common each dropped more than 2 points, while losses of a point or more were recorded by a score of railroad stocks.

The foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled about ½ cent higher around $4.76⅝, and French francs improved slightly to 5.13⅛ cents. Other European rates showed only nominal changes.

Call money held steady at 4½ per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged, with business small in volume.

Bank Presidents Side-Step Golf Link Competition

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 10.—Wall street learned today of the failure of plans for a $2,000,000,000 foursome on the golf links at Jekyl Island, Ga.

J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker, Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, Alvin W. Krech, chairman of the Equitable Trust Company, were involved in the plans for the match. Efforts were made last week to bring together the four, who represent institutions with assets well above $2,000,000,000.

The proposal failed through the opposition of Mr. Krech, who is skeptical regarding the merit of golf as a pastime. The other three are enthusiastic about it, and Mr. Baker is playing twelve holes a day on the island, or four more than John D. Rockefeller does at Ormond Beach.

Mr. Baker, who is 84 years old, learned to play golf after he was 70 years old. He also learned how to smoke a cigar after his 70th birthday.

Secret wireless messages may be sent by a news system recently developed in Germany.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 10.—Shorts in May wheat were stampeded into covering as the result of heavy buying credited to a Chicago trader who is in Florida, and who was said to have been a heavy seller on the recent decline of 25c. This buying, combined with the government report of the previous day, lifted values 5½c to a high of 1.89¾, but profit taking caused a reaction and the finish was 3¾c higher at 1.87¾ @1.87⅝. July was 1¼c higher at 1.64¼@1.64½, and September 1⅜c higher at 1.52⅝@1.52¾. Coarse grains advanced in sympathy with wheat, corn gaining 1⅝@1⅝c, with May 1.08⅝@1.08¾, July 1.33⅝@1.33¾ and September 1.32⅝. Oats advanced ¼@⅜c and rye 1@1⅛c.

May wheat acted tight a good part of the day and went to 23¾c over the July, having gained nearly 6c on that delivery, as compared with the low point of last week. Local traders were inclined to be bearish early and sold freely on all the minor upturns, but as soon as the heavy buying started, there was a general movement to cover shorts, and with stop-loss orders uncovered, the upturn was easily attained.

Part of the early selling was on the weakness in Liverpool, which closed 1⅝@2d lower in the face of the advance in America on Monday. The export demand was somewhat less aggressive, although sales for the day in all positions were estimated at 500,000 bushels. Bids for cash wheat at the Gulf were up around ¼c, and there was some hard winter bought at Omaha, St. Louis and Kansas City, which, with the 125,000 bushels reported at Chicago, made an aggregate of over 400,000 bushels. Buenos Aires closed 1⅛@2c lower for the day, putting Argentine wheat below a parity with American, May being only 1.9⅛, or 2½c over Chicago, compared with 11¼c a few days ago.

Dry weather reports continue to come from the Southwest, and there is apprehension of damage to winter wheat, but the situation on the whole is not regarded as serious. The world's available supply increased 2,371,000 bushels for the week, and is 251,795,000 bushels, or 13,000,000 bushels less than last year. Snow was out with a bullish summary of the domestic situation, in which he figured that on the basis of the disappearance of the first eight months of the season there would be only 35,000,000 bushels available for export and for carry over.

Trade in corn was largely of a local character. The market acted a little heavy early, but advanced readily with wheat later. Some of the local bulls were on the buying side. Basis on spot was a little better on good corn, and 1¢ much as 2c firmer on the near, with No. 6 mixed as low as 44c under May.

Foreign demand for cash oats was the largest in many weeks, estimated sales in all positions, including Canadian and American, being 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels, and there was also a better domestic demand, with Kansas City selling 150,000 bushels to the South. Locally, the demand was quiet.

A fair export demand prevailed for rye, with estimated sales of 200,000 bushels. Trade in futures was liberal, with houses with seaboard connections good buyers.

Cash houses and smaller packers were on the buying side of provisions, and despite commission-house selling, prices advanced, with lard 2¼@7½c higher at the last and bellies 14¼@15c higher. Ribs were off 5@10c. Export demand was reported as better for both lard and meats.

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE—Yesterday's small supply of cattle, which was hardly enough to meet the demand, sold readily at unevenly higher prices on steers and strong prices on the stock. Steers advanced generally, 15 to 25 cents. Three loads of good 988-pound Texas-fed steers topped for the day at 8.65, establishing a new high mark for the current year. Several lots of mixed medium and good steers sold from 8.00 to 8.25, a load of 823-pound fed Arizonas going over at 8.00. A few medium kinds sold from 7.25 to 7.40.

A short load of good 1170 pound northern cows topped for the day at 6.75, while the bulk of the stock, mostly odd head and small lots, cleared from 5.00 to 6.50, a good portion of which were tucked in kinds from near-by dairies. Canners and cutters turned largely from 2.00 to 2.90, with a few thin shelly canners downward to 1.50. Thin canner bologna bulls turned from 3.00 to 3.25, while the general run of bolognas went over from 4.00 to 4.75. Beef bulls, mostly fed kinds and yearlings, cleared from 5.00 to 5.40.

CALVES—The small supply of vealers sold readily at generally steady prices. Small lots and part loads of milk vealers, 150 to 165-pound weights, turned from 12.50 to 13.00, while less desirable kinds sold downward to 10.00. A sizable lot of 304-pound California calves made 8.50, while commons and heavies turned largely from 6.00 to 7.25.

HOGS—Trading was rather slow on yesterday's moderate supply, estimated at 1300, approximately 900 of which were held over from yesterday. The few sales made were generally 15 to 25 cents lower, with more than half of the offerings still unsold at a late hour. The bulk of 175 to 210-pound butchers turned from 10.00 to 10.25, the latter price today's top. A few lighter weights sold downward to $14.50, with a part load of 101-pound pigs to a feeder buyer at 12.00. Packing sows were scarce, a few going over at 12.50.

SHEEP—In the general opinion of the trade, good and choice lambs are quotable from 15.50 to 16.50 with choice light weight ewes from 9.75 to 10.25.

The Hunford Oil Company yesterday reported the completion of its latest well brought in at Huntington Beach in many months. The Bolsa No. 19, drilled on the company's newest discovery lease in this district, came in with an initial production of 1000 barrels a day. The well is 6645 feet deep, in proven territory.

The Bolsa lease, located in the eastern part of the Huntington Beach field, is owned by the Bolsa Chica Oil Company, which leased the property to the Standard several years ago. The oldest wells in the field are located on this tract and numerous of the best producers in the district.

The Bolsa No. 19 is the second well completed at Huntington Beach in the last week. The Petroleum Corporation of America completed its Miley No. 1 in this field with an initial production of 500 barrels a day.

[illegible] Wildcat

The Standard Oil Company is preparing to drill a wildcat well on its Bolsa Ranch, according to oil reports. The Standard is interested in this general district, but with small success.

[illegible] Operations

Hugh Dabney is preparing to begin drilling in his Anthena No. 1 in the northern part of the Dominguez field, according to field reports. A crew is rigging up and drill pipe to go back into the hole and drill deeper. This was one of the first projects in the district, but is located on a small bulk east of Mines No. 1, the discovery well of this area. Dabney's well went to 5431 feet, and had good showings above this depth, but was never able to solve the water problem, and work was halted for several months. Dabney is now only producing 40 barrels per hour, most of the other holdings having been abandoned with the exception of four acres subleased to the Rosecrans.

[illegible] Casing

The Union Oil Company is preparing to set six-inch casing in the Bolsa well, the most southerly of the Rosecrans fields, according to official reports. Bottom of the 9th well is at 6400 feet, and it is said that about 100 feet of oil showings have been passed. Eight-inch casing was set at 4200 feet.

Other operators in the southern part of the Rosecrans are observing the Union's progress in the well with much interest. The Gordon itself is too deep for other companies to drill to the same sands, it is believed wells farther north are likely to pick up the same or better production at a considerably shallower depth. The Superior Oil Company is particularly interested in the Gordon, from the proximity of its Van Nuys lease, where the Superior's Van Nuys No. 1 is idle at about 5000 feet.

To Drill Deeper

The Star Petroleum Company's Shoemaker well began flowing yesterday and made twenty-five barrels an hour for four hours, according to field reports. The product was dry, cutting only 1.8 per cent water and emulsion, the gravity being 37 deg. The company is dissatisfied with the result of the test, and will drill deeper, it is said.

On Production Again

The Standard Oil Company has again placed its L. A. Investment No. 1-3 on production, and the well is pumping at the rate of about 120 barrels a day, according to official reports. This well originally came in about three months ago, at 2550 feet, but made considerable water which failed to clear up. The well was killed and plugged back to about 2475 feet, which solved the problem, it is said.

Makes Water Test

The West Coast Oil Company is making a water test in its Fox Hills No. 101, the deep test of the Beverly Hills field, according to field reports. Eleven-inch casing was set at 3000 feet.

Oil Exports

Receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for the week ending February 28, totaled 482,000 barrels as against 444,000 barrels, an increase of 38,000 barrels, according to the official report of the American Petroleum Institute, released yesterday.

Total receipts of oil at all United States ports aggregated 2,621,000 barrels for the week, a jump from the previous week's record of 1,496,000 barrels.

Production Jumps

California daily production for the week ending February 28 totaled 602,000 barrels, a jump of 1000 barrels over the daily production for the previous week, according to the estimate of the American Petroleum Institute, released yesterday.

Production for the nation declined 2850 barrels, from 1,947,600 barrels to 1,943,750 barrels a day, according to the institute's figures. Production in Oklahoma, ranking next to California, dropped 8500 barrels to 475,400 barrels a day.

State Grants Thirty-eight Well Permits

Thirty-eight new wells in a single week is the number to be drilled in California fields as a result of permits just issued by the State Mining Bureau.

Rosecrans gets the largest number, claiming fourteen of the group. Three will be drilled in Los Angeles county's unproven territory. The same number will be drilled in the Midway field, and two are to be drilled at Brea Olinda. The permits are as follows:

REDISCOUNT RATE RISE NO CONCERN

Spring Demand for Money May Cause Interest Terms to Stiffen

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue reports in part:

"The raising of rediscount rates by the New York Federal Reserve Bank proves to be merely a perfunctory readjustment of the bank rates to the money market, and is correspondingly without influence upon the financial situation.

"Interest rates may harden a little this month in response to the financing of the manufacturing and wholesale phases of the spring trade, but thereafter they should remain about stationary for some months. Commercial paper financing continues active through the summer, however, and here rates may persistently harden a little.

"In view of the probability of rather large trade activity in the autumn and of financial preparations for it, it would not be surprising if prime commercial paper should get up around 4 1-2 per cent by June or July. Such an event if realized would have its bearing upon the bond market, because then bonds would have to meet the competition of commercial paper.

"Pipe line companies over a period of years generally show declines in both earning power and share prices, although the Prairie is the notable exception. One's optimism as to petroleum stocks should extend to these companies only in a lesser degree.

The newly issued Census of Electric Railways discloses the extreme conservatism of these roads as to additional capital issued. Such conservatism should ultimately help the position of their bonds."

RUSSIAN WHITE CHIEF ON LINER

Gen. Wrangel Due to Arrive Here at Week-End

Vanquished Leader is Aboard Swedish Vessel

Mongolia's Return to Pacific Set for Saturday

Gen. Wrangel, defeated White leader of the Russian Caucasus, is among the passengers who will arrive at the port on the 14th inst. aboard the Swedish motor liner Kronprinsessan Margareta, according to a radio from the vessel last night. The Kronprinsessan Margareta, new unit of the Johnson Line fleet, is on her maiden voyage to the Pacific from Oslo and Gothenburg.

Other prominent Europeans who will disembark from the liner at Los Angeles Harbor include C. J. Gravesen-Hansen, noted Danish engineer of Copenhagen; E. Kahnlund of Stockholm; Miss Marta Lundberg of Stockholm; Birger Tjersland of Oslo, accompanied by his wife and three children, and Mrs. O. Berulfsen of Oslo.

One hundred passengers came in yesterday from New York via Central American ports aboard the Pacific Mail liner Columbia, among them being Dr. William E. Ramsay, the African explorer, who trekked from Cairo to Lake Nyanza; Gerald H. G. Williamson, general manager of the great British merchant fleet of Balfour, Guthrie & Co.; Thomas B. Wilde, mining engineer from Salvador, and Oliver Edwards, manufacturer of Syracuse.

The Colombia also brought around a large group of navy officers' wives, coming from the East Coast to be with their husbands during the stay of the Scouting Fleet in the Pacific.

Five hundred passengers will arrive here next Saturday morning aboard the Panama-Pacific liner Mongolia, coming from New York on her first visit to the Pacific Coast since she left the service of the Pacific Mail in 1915. The big liner, a sister ship of the Manchuria, is of 26,900 tons displacement, with a length of 616 feet and a forty-five-foot beam. She is credited with being the first steamer during the World War to sink a submarine.

NEW MARINE PEST FOE TEST HELD SUCCESS

Shipping authorities interested in piling, received word from San Francisco yesterday of the completion of tests on wooden piling, covering two years, which have been impregnated with a solution. The piling, treated with the solution in 1923, immersed two years, was pulled a few days ago and found in perfect condition, according to A. R. Page, local representative of C. G. Chilcott & Co., Boston, which has control for the International Composition Company. A. F. Holtzapfel, president of the latter company, and vice-president of the Chilcott company, is in charge of the piling. On his visit here, he announced if the tests proved successful, the solution would save Pacific coast owners of docks for piling, now attacked by marine life. The solution, he said, also would be 30 per cent cheaper than creosote and other methods of preservation. Chilcott official C. D. Ulsch, vice-president of the San Francisco firm, was assisting Mr. Page yesterday in arranging for exhibits of the United States here shortly.

The Salvage King, recently completed at Paisley, Eng., is scheduled to arrive from that port tomorrow, en route to Victoria, B. C., where she will be put in service by the Salvage King Company, for whom she was constructed at a cost said to be $500,000. She will go to the Bethlehem yards for an extended period of repairs and alterations. On arrival at Victoria she will take the place of the Salvage Chief, recently wrecked and lost off the Columbia river bar, which vessel is now in negotiating for several other steams of Sealing salvage equipment.

A six-hole golf course for Standard Oil employees at the harbor has been outlined on the reclaimed land at the end of Palos Verdes hills west of West Basin. The grounds are sporty and high enough to command a view of the entire harbor district, about completion of the nine-day course, it is said. F. A. Black, manager of the manufacturing department, and J. C. McQuiddy, manager of the transportation, lead on the links as well as at the plant.

Two thousand bales of cotton from Arizona, comprising the first Pacific shipment of cotton to France in more than a year, went out from here yesterday on the French liner Oklahoma for Havre. The vessel carried 7000 tons of Pacific Coast products. The French steamer Arizona is due from Antwerp tomorrow on her first visit to this port for the French Line, according to Capt. Stafford Hudson, local representative of the General Steamship Corporation, Coast agents for the line.

Eight hundred tons of sardine oil will be taken aboard the Diana Dollar here today, for shipment to Europe, it was said. It will be made up of a lot of costly quality, according to Capt. C. J. Foote, master, who brought the freighter in from the east coast recently. It will be made up of local and general cargo for the Pacific Coast, 1000 for here.

"Midsummer in Sweden" is the title of a new folder just out by the Swedish American Line, which announces a round-trip, rail and water arrangement, at a cost of $195.50. The trip starts from Los Angeles May 22 over the Santa Fe lines, taking passengers by way of Niagara Falls to New York, where they will board the liner Stockholm, May 28, returning on the liner Stockholm and thence by rail not later than October 31. The round trip costs $442.40 for cabin accommodations, $341.40 for tourist class, according to R. J. Lawrence, passenger agent of the Santa Fe Travel Bureau at the harbor. G. Eckdahl & Son of Los Angeles have been appointed general passenger agents for the steamship line in Southern California.

Another candidate for honors as the wearer of the season's first straw hat is Jesse Y. Thayer, Los Angeles building contractor, on whima bow rented a Rataboven product yesterday when he disembarked from the Pacific Mail liner Colombia. Thayer was accompanied by Thomas B. Wilde, mining engineer, who had been investigating lead mines in Central America. The liner brought 1650 bags (tons of Cmcra) American bananas, 946 sacks of coffee, 2670 bags of sugar, 5673 slabs of mahogany and 3000 wicker baskets.

HUSBAND OF OMAHA GIRL WINS DUEL

Massard, Who Married Ruth Brandeis Last Year, Wounds Opponent in Paris

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, March 10.—Armand Massard, French Royalist and journalist, who married Ruth Brandeis of Ohama, Neb., on December 3, fought a duel at daybreak in Bois de Boulogne with Lucien Gaudin, young French society man and amateur champion swordsman.

M. Massard wounded M. Gaudin in his sword arm at the first pass. His opponent was unable to continue and three physicians on the field removed him to his home.

M. Massard's wedding to the beautiful Omaha heiress on December 3, 1924, was one of the brilliant social events of the season. The couple spent their honeymoon on the Riviera and in Italy. M. Gaudin chanced to be on the Riviera at the same time and met the bride and bridegroom.

The families and friends of the two men refuse to give any indication of the precise reason for the "affair of honor," but it is understood that M. Massard resented M. Gaudin's open admiration of the American beauty.

M. Massard was accompanied on the field this morning by Comte Malincourt and Charles Le Fountaine as seconds. Both are expert swordsman, but M. Massard, who won the world's championship in the Olympic Games at Antwerp in 1920, drew the admiration of all present. He could have killed M. Gaudin if he wished, but he preferred to wound him slightly.

Mme. Massard knew nothing about the duel until afterward. She was unable to see visitors today.

Porto Bello Gold

By Arthur D. Howden Smith

SYNOPSIS

Shortly after learning that pirates are on the high seas off the New England coast, Robert Ormerod, son of a merchant, and Peter Corlaer, his father's chief for trader, are abducted to a pirate vessel by the notorious pirate Capt. Rip-Rap, who is also a grand-uncle of Robert's. O'Donnell, an Irish engineer in the pay of Spain, discloses the route of a Spanish treasure ship to Rip-Rap. They meet Rip-Rap's pirate partner, Capt. John Flint on the high seas. They fraudulently blasting up their own—thus covering their tracks. Capt. Rip-Rap greets his gunner, Cuspass, and introduces Robert and Corlaer to Ben Gunn, the cook.

Gunn pulled his forelock and ducked.

"Barvant, gentlemen," he acknowledged. "Allus glad to please, is Ben Gunn. Bound to oblige ye, gentlemen. You jest name your drinks, and I'll fetch 'em from the wine-bins."

"Food, as well, Gunn," said Murray. "And Capt. Flint is coming aboard."

Ben Gunn cocked his head on one side.

"That means rum," he commented. "Plenty o' rum, says you. Jest leave it to Ben, captain."

He ducked and scraped again and skipped off into the companionway with a kind of wiggle like a self-conscious child.

"My steward," remarked my relative. "He will be at your disposal for anything you require, Robert; yours, too, friend Peter. You will find the negroes equally anxious to please."

"The man is a half-wit, is he not?" I asked.

"A natural, yes," assented Murray, tasting the chocolate.

"I should think it would be dangerous to have one so simple in such close proximity to you."

My great-uncle smiled.

"You are quite, quite wrong, my boy. It is for the very reason that the man is incapable of spying that I use him. He is more valuable for my purposes than the most intelligent member of the crew."

He broke off.

"This chocolate is by no means so well brewed as Silver's. An extraordinary fellow, that, monstrously clever—exactly the sort of man, Robert, I never permit to remain near me. Indeed, if you possess the patience and the interest to analyze the composition of my officers and crew you will observe, I believe, that there is not an independently clever man amongst them. Aye, and if you find me a clever man aboard the Royal James—yourself and friend Peter excepted, of course—I will thank you to point him out to me, and I will straightway make a present of him to Flint, who must have half a dozen of the Walrus's crew who esteem themselves equally capable with him of commanding her."

"Yet the James was able to get along without you for several days," I remarked.

"Ah! A shrewd thrust! I am bound to admit, my dear Robert, that I regarded my recently concluded expedition as a dubious experiment. 'Twas in the light of reflections identical with those you have just detailed that I spoke of it as a problem in human equations. I was reasonably convinced that I could depend upon my men, but I should not have been greatly surprised had they abandoned me."

"I am not—by necessity I am not—regarded with affection by my followers. And on the whole, I think, I have gotten along better by means of fear than I might have by means of affection. Fear is a natural element in a pirate's career. What place has he in his life for affections?"

"But we are faring far afield, Robert, into realms of philosophy in no way affiliated with our problems of the immediate moment. Hark! Do I not hear something?"

He did beyond question—an uproar of curses and shouts upon the deck outside.

"Perhaps your crew have decided to spring their revolt after your return, instead of during your absence," I suggested.

He shook his head, smiling.

"No, no. It is only that Capt. Flint has come aboard. Pray take your seats. I promise you an interesting episode."

"— me, Martin, what the — — — — d'ye think ye are? By the — — — —, ye lousy, slack-bellied swab, ye made us—"

"Stow that, ye — — — apology for a — — —," interrupted Martin mildly from the deck. "Why, any — — — would ha' had more sense than you!"

"Like —! I'm my own master, I am, I—"

"Ye may be when ye stand on the Walrus's deck, but here you're only another — — — as doesn't know better'n to veer after—"

"Belay for a — — — lackey, ye slab-faced chunk o' rotted seahorse! I'll talk to your master!"

Slam went the door, and a mutter of curses rumbled from the companionway, preceding a tall, blue-jowled man in a flaming red coat all cobwebbed over with gold lace. He halted in the cabin entrance, hands on his hips, feet planted wide, close-set green eyes flickering balefully on either side of a long nose that seemed to poke out from a tangle of lank, black hair.

"Back, eh, Murray?" he snarled. "Two men the richer for your effort. Gut me, 'twas a fool's errand!"

"Pardon me," objected Murray, "but I am considerably more than 'two men the richer' in consequence of my run ashore—although I would not appear by these words to deprecate the importance to be attached to the acquisition of my grandnephew and Master Corlaer. Permit me, Capt. Flint! Master Ormerod, my grandnephew, and Peter Corlaer."

And to me, aside:

Flint scowled at us, flinging himself into a chair at the opposite end of the table from my great-uncle.

"A youth and a fat man!" he ejaculated. "And unwilling at that, so Bones tells me."

"Master Bones was correct in that statement," my great-uncle assented cheerfully; "but I fancy he neglected to add that the 'fat man' took his knife away from him and must have hanged him had I not interveged."

An appreciable degree of respect dawned in Flint's eyes.

"He is no butter-tub if he bested Bill," conceded the Walrus's captain. "Curse me, though, if I see why you should add a sub to your crew."

"Tut tut, captain," remonstrated Murray. "'A cub!' Think again. The boy is my heir."

"All he'll fall heir to will be the rope that hung you," returned Flint. "But I'll own I did you wrong when I accused you of being but two men the better by your shore expedition. I was forgetting the red-faced mascot John Silver fetched aboard. 'Tis the first promise o' luck we ha' had! I'd never have lost that Philadelphia packet t' other day with him aboard."

"I believe I overheard something of a dispute with Martin on that point," commented my great-uncle dryly. "He obeyed my orders in culling you off, and you broke our agreement when you would have given chase."

"And why not?" roared Flint. "A — — fool agreement, if you broach it now! A — — of a — — piece of — — — idiocy! Curse me for a lubber if I see the sense in letting a fat prize slip through our fingers. And so I told Martin. Let me have him on my deck, and I'd use my hanger to him."

My uncle took snuff with much delicacy and rang a silver bell in front of him.

"Gunn is late with the liquor. I must ask your indulgence, captain, for compelling you to talk dry. But as to Martin and the prize. Indeed, you wrong the good fellow. As I have already said, he did no more than carry out my orders, and while you may experience difficulty in comprehending my reasons for stipulating that no prizes were to be taken in my absence, I am so vain as to suppose that a few moments' conversation will clear all doubts from your mind."

Benn Gunn bustled into the cabin in the course of this harangue and deposited a trayful of decanters, bottles and flasks before us. Capt. Flint, without awaiting an invitation, seized upon an earthen receptacle labeled, "Gedney's Jamaican Rum," pried out the cork with the point of a knife, tilted it to his mouth and drained a mighty dram. Then he set it down beside him, wiped his mouth on his coat-cuff and cleared his throat.

"Humph," he growled. "I'm listening."

My uncle looked distressed.

"Gunn," he said, "how often have I asked you to supply Capt. Flint with a goblet, beaker or some other drinking-utensil?"

The steward wiggled abjectly and pulled his forelock.

"Oft and often you has, captain, but 'taint no manner o' use—leastways, not the fust time. Capt. Flint says as how he always has to take the flavor of a new flask straight from the neck."

"And so I do," agreed Flint. "Rum don't taste the same in a cup. Ye drink coffee or tea in a cup—but rum!—my eyes if I ever see so much fuss over drink and victuals as you make. But anything to oblige, Murray. I don't ha' to eat with ye every day, thank God!"

Gunn produced a large silver goblet from a wall-cupboard, and Flint straightway filled it to the brim. I pushed a cut-glass carafe of water toward him, supposing he would wish some dilution, and he laughed jarringly.

"You ha' much to learn, my lad," he jeered. "We don't spoil good rum wi' water aboard the Walrus. There's a cask broached this minute on the spar-deck, and all hands fillin' their pannikins as fast as they can empty 'em, wi' red-headed Darby astride the butt for luck."

"Which means you will be in no condition to make sail a few hours hence," deplored my great-uncle, wagging his head. "'Tis foolishness, Flint. This rum-swigging will yet prove the undoing of you and every man of your crew. I am no upholder of imaginary virtues, as you know, but unbridged indulgence must ultimately defeat its own ends."

"Look to your ship, and I'll look to mine," snapped Flint, quaffing a wineglassful of the goblet's contents.

My uncle stared him straight in the eye with a hard, direct thrust of power which stirred my unwilling admiration.

"To whom do you owe your present position?" he asked coldly.

Flint made a patent attempt to stare him down, but abandoned the effort and looked away.

"Some might say one thing and some another," he muttered.

"To whom do you owe your present position, Flint?" repeated Murray.

"Oh, to you, most like," admitted Flint. "Blast you!"

"Have I ever led you into difficulties?" continued my great-uncle.

"Not if—"

"No."

"Have we failed in any important venture since our association began?"

"Not yet," admitted Flint sourly.

"Very well. Now I ask you: When I promise a certain accomplishment am I to be relied upon?"

"You ha' a head on your shoulders," conceded Flint.

"And you have not," amended Murray. "No, do not say any more. You are an excellent man to handle your ship, Flint, and as fearless as any of our ruffians; but you are no more capable of looking ahead a week or two than Ben Gunn."

"I take much from ye, Murray," snarled Flint, half-rising; "but think not ye can humble me before—"

"Sit down," ordered Murray. "You'll take what you deserve, which in this instance is a plain statement that you would ha' made a fool of yourself by chasing the Philadelphia packet. I doubt if you could have taken her, for your bottom is foul; but if you had, her loss must have aroused comment, and with New York already apprised that we are in these seas we should ha' had every frigate on the North American and West Indian stations a-hunting us. And what then?"

"Spyglass Island? I dare say—although some day 'twill be blundered upon, if not discovered. But I ask you to recall that we take no prizes when we hole up. 'Tis a losing game."

COUNCIL ADOPTS PORT PROPOSALS

Business Approval Voted Docks Harbor

Flexibility Questioned, But Harmony Sought

Co-Ordination Essential to Government Aid

The City Council yesterday unanimously approved the bill looking toward a consolidation of the Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors. This action was taken, however, only after the expression of doubt of the feasibility of the measure and the plan itself in regard to co-ordination on the proposed port harbor board.

It was brought out that the Long Beach City Council has rejected the plan because of what was considered too great Los Angeles representation on the proposed board, which would be composed of five members, two from each city and one selected from the largest city—Los Angeles. Similar objections were made by the Los Angeles Council on the Council Harbor resolution, but it was felt that the matter should have the unanimous support of the Council, if for no other reason, as a means of showing to the Federal government that the city would withdraw its objections to the interest of harmony.

[illegible] bill is the creation of the Inter Harbor Committee of Two members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and was worked out in co-operation of the City Attorneys of Los Angeles and Long Beach, Atty. Stephens and officials of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies [illegible] yesterday when the matter was up in Council.

ONLY SOLUTION

Councilman Criswell in voting for measure said he felt that the only solution of the matter was the consolidation of the two governments. He said he felt if Los Angeles City would do the way in this that all the other communities would fall in line and a borough form of government would be the result.

SCHULTZ. At 338 South Gaylord street, Rebuilt, father of Henry and Carl Schultz. Funeral services at chapel of Gee Johnson & Son, 1240 West Washington street.

PLENTY OF WATER SURE WITH SNOWS

Edison Company Reports on Great Depth of Drifts in Mountain Regions

Assuring plenty of water for power and irrigation purposes, storms in the mountains, taking the form of heavy blizzards, have piled snowdrifts to considerable depths, according to reports from various sources last night.

The Southern California Edison Company reported that at Huntington Lake, in the High Sierras, the depth of snow on the level was fifty-three inches, with every indication that the storm will continue. At Kaiser Mountain above the lake, the snowfall was reported to be much heavier, with snow falling continually.

In the last five days, the company's records show, the snowfall increased from thirty-eight inches to fifty-three inches. This is contrasted with four inches on the ground last year at this time. Company officials declared that the huge drifts assured a more than adequate supply of water that will flow through the new Florence-Lake tunnel into the reservoirs that will supply Southern California throughout the year.

Another good feature of the storm, it was pointed out, was the continued cool weather that packs the drifts into masses that will withstand the warmer spring days, releasing the water gradually and in such a manner that it can be properly handled.

Reports from other mountain points, including the San Bernardino Range and the Tehachapi Mountains, stated that similar conditions are prevalent there, with snowfall figures eclipsing records of other years, and weather conditions indicating further precipitation.

While the weather forecast for today in Los Angeles and vicinity is partly cloudy, with continued moderately cool weather, Col. H. B. Hershey, chief of the local Weather Bureau, said the chance of additional rainfall within the next few days is very slight.

Official rainfall figures for the present season, announced last night, show that to date 14 inches of rain have fallen in this vicinity. While the normal, as figured over a number of years, is 12.5 inches, Col. Hershey stated that but 3.06 inches had fallen at this time one year ago.

The month of March, according to Col. Hershey, has always provided a generous fall, exceeding the average of 2.37 inches last year, when 2.42 inches were recorded for the month, and if the yearly March average is to be sustained there is much rainfall in sight before the end of the month, for the fall so far this month has only been .42 of an inch, Col. Hershey stated.

April produced 1.43 inches of rainfall last year, exceeding the forty-seven-year average for the month of .80 of an inch, it was announced.

Goodcell Gets License to Wed for Tax Return

Rex B. Goodcell, Collector of Internal Revenue, yesterday received in an envelope marked "income-tax return," a certificate of marriage and a marriage license signed by Rev. T. C. Carleton. There being no provision in the 1924 Revenue Act pertaining to such means of paying income tax, Collector Goodcell launched an investigation.

It was learned that Mr. Carleton is pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church of Oklahoma City, and that while visiting here he inadvertently mailed his income-tax return to the County Recorder, and the marriage license and certificate to the revenue collector. The marriage certificate showed he had officiated at the wedding of William M. Liscom, 1057½ North Ardmore street, and Miss Mary Caroline McConnell, 1817½ Ocean View avenue, former residents of Oklahoma City.

The youths were said to have left a campfire burning in Millard's Canyon February 28, last.

PERMIT SALE PLOT CHARGED

Attorney Says Bribe Asked from Beauty Parlor

Licenses of Three Dance Halls Revoked by Board

Police Commission "Shocked at Deplorable Conditions"

Open charges that a bribe of $250 was solicited from his client to insure the granting of a massage-parlor permit after her first application was denied by the board a month ago, were made at yesterday's meeting of the Police Commission by Attorney Griffith Jones.

The accusation led to a clash between Mr. Jones and the Police Commissioners and was followed by a demand from the attorney that the commission issue a subpoena for a physician said to have been approached for the money.

"I fail to see how in justice to yourself and to the community you can fail to formally call this physician here to hear his story and to clear the accusation that this sum was asked for a permit," Mr. Jones told Commissioners Birnbaum and Foss.

The two Police Commissioners said they are anxious to find out who made such representations, but did not think it was necessary to issue any subpoenas. "If anybody wants to tell us his story we will be glad to hear from him," Commissioner Birnbaum said.

APPLICATION GRANTED

The application in question was that of Safrona Joyner, a nurse, and Dr. D. C. Ragland, a physician, for a joint license to conduct a physiotherapy establishment at 456 South Western avenue. The first application dated February 6, last, was denied by the commission, following a report by Investigator Posner of the police department that there were too many establishments of that type in the city. The second application, which came before the board yesterday, carried a favorable report signed by Officer Posner, who recommended that the license be granted. The only explanation given was that since the rejection of the first application, the "references" were found to be "perfect."

The asserted demand for the $250 was made between the two applicants, Attorney Jones charged.

DANCE HALLS HIT

The charges that sums of money had been solicited for asserted mysterious influences furnished the second sensation of the day. The meeting turned into an excited session shortly after it was opened when, without the least warning, Commissioner Foss moved that the dance permits held by three different establishments be revoked for improper conduct of business. His motion was seconded by Commissioner Birnbaum and was carried. The Mayor, who is a member of the commission, was not present.

"Deplorable" and "unbelievable" conditions were found by them to exist in these places, the police commissioners declared. In the dance halls, Commissioner Foss stated, he saw sights that reminded him of the early days of Goldfield, Yuma and other Nevada and California towns.

The victims of the commission's sudden wrath were the Humming Bird Cafe, 1143 East Twelfth street; the Red Mill, a dance establishment at 665 North Broadway, and a dance hall at 401 North Main street. The Humming Bird gained city-wide notoriety several months ago when its license was revoked following charges that it was a dive of the most notorious character and that the white and colored races were mingling there under adverse circumstances.

LIQUOR PURCHASED

Incidentally, it developed, the commission's action against these places followed a personal inspection by Commissioners Foss and Birnbaum of the cafe and the dance halls the night before. In making their rounds the commissioners were only a day behind private investigators, who have uncovered deplorable conditions in the cafe and have made purchases of liquor from its employees.

Coming on the heels of the Mayor's announcement that he will be a candidate for re-election and coupled with the fact that George Henderson, negro politician and Central-avenue boss, who figured so prominently in the Woodman investigation several years ago, was in charge of the cafe when the private investigators made their visits to the Humming Bird, the commission's action yesterday took on a political complexion and caused considerable excitement along Spring street and the Central-avenue territory.

The speed with which the two commissioners revoked the three licenses brought a mild remark from Secretary McKeag that the action was not in conformity with the law. Under the law the holders of the permits must be given formal notice, together with copy of charges and must be cited for a hearing before any action is taken.

"We don't care anything about that," was Commissioner Birnbaum's reply to Mr. McKeag.

Mayor Cryer, whose name was brought into the massage-parlor case by Attorney Jones when he told the commission he had talked the matter over with the Mayor and was assured by him that the application would be granted if there was merit in it, commented on the Joyner case and on the Humming Bird case after the commission adjourned its meeting, and denied any irregularities in the former or any politics in the latter.

VAGUE AS TO NAME

"I think the Joyner case is one where an attorney tried to collect a fee, just as Mr. Jones no doubt will do, and I fail to see anything irregular about it. Often these cases turn out to be ones where some attorney thinks he can see merit in an application and can

"Devil Dog" Signs Roll of New Marine Detachment

WAR HEROES JOIN RESERVE

Seventeen Service Cross Wearers, All Ex-Marines, Enrolled in First Unit of Corps

Heroes all, a batch of seventeen Devil Dogs who were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action have enrolled in a body in the United States Marine Reserve Corps, Detachment 1, it was announced yesterday.

The detachment is the first of its kind in the country. It is made up exclusively of Marines, who were in the service either at home or abroad and is not affiliated with any other organization of veterans, though virtually all its members are also enrolled in one of the various organizations of former service men.

The local detachment has the approval of the Washington authorities and is expected to serve as the basis for other detachments throughout the country. Lieut. Guy Lewis, formerly of the Eleventh Marine Corps, is organizing the detachment. He wears the Distinguished Service Cross, and the first man to join the organization was Edward L. Mulligan, who also wears the same cross for exceptional heroism under fire.

Sixteen other wearers of the badge of courage signed up as members of the new organization after Mulligan. Sergt. Herbert O. Spencer, in charge of the Marine recruiting service here, and also a Distinguished Service Cross man, formally inducted the former Devil Dogs into the new organization. Headquarters of the detachment are at present at 218 South Broadway.

WARREN TO BUILD SEWERS

Chosen Chief Engineer of Los Angeles County Sanitation Districts; Has Notable Record

Albert K. Warren, in charge of design and construction of drainage work in the County Surveyor's office since 1914, and sanitation since 1918, was appointed chief engineer of the Los Angeles county sanitation districts yesterday at a salary of $12,000 a year. Mr. Warren will be in complete charge of construction work on the county metropolitan sewage system, for which bonds totaling $9,120,000 have already been voted.

The appointment of Mr. Warren, a veteran engineer with a great number of difficult constructions jobs to his credit, was voted by the joint action of all the sanitation districts in the county and approved by the Board of Supervisors. He will enter on his new duties at once.

The funds for the project, which will give the entire county a unified sewage system with an outfall sewer west of Point Franklin, have been voted by the various sanitation districts in the county. The Long Beach district will vote on a $3,000,000 bond issue for this purpose on May 5.

Mr. Warren came to this city from Chicago in 1914 and shortly thereafter entered the service of the county. For many years he was engineer in charge of railroad construction.

Mr. Warren first came to Los Angeles in 1906, and settled here permanently in 1914. For many years he was engineer in charge of heavy railroad work in the Pacific Northwest on which a great amount of difficult tunneling was required.

BOND ISSUE PERMIT SOUGHT

Southern Sierras Power Company applied yesterday to the State Railroad Commission for permission to issue and sell $469,800 par value of first and refunding mortgage bonds at not less than 85 per cent of par. Proceeds from the sale, the company represented, will be used to finance additions to property which have amounted to $552,805 between September 1 and December 31, 1924.

Illustrators in City Form Artists' Club

A score of Los Angeles leading illustrators have organized the Commercial Artists' Club, according to an announcement by Charles P. Keyes, and the first meeting, at which a future program will be arranged, will be conducted tomorrow evening at the California Art Institute, Alvarado and Ocean View avenues.

J. Francis Smith, Claude Putnam and Mr. Keyes form the committee on membership. More than twenty artists have been enrolled.

"We hope to provide through the medium of the club's meeting a form of help to developing artists that cannot be had elsewhere," said Mr. Keyes. "Study, criticism, consultation—with models at hand—that will be the program and it is our plan to have the gatherings weekly. In the great artistic centers of Europe, men who have won decorations for their talents enroll themselves in such organizations as this we are forming and talk frankly and fully of every problem in the midst of the veriest beginners. The advantage is mutual."

BACK COTTON PLANTING BILL

Association Leaders Would Make Acala Sowing Mandatory; Seed Certification Urged

Indorsement of proposed legislation which will make mandatory the growing of only one variety of cotton throughout the State of California, another proposed measure for the certification of cotton seed and the determination to obtain membership in the legislative committee of the State Department of Agriculture featured the "clean-up" session yesterday of the legislative committee of the California Cotton Growers' Association.

Members of the committee, who are Vice-President J. W. Gulberson, Attorney Thomas C. Whitlock, Dr. George P. Clements and President H. H. Clark ex-officio, wasted no time in determining the nature of the measures they wish to have enacted into law by the State Legislature.

Differences of opinion over the manner in which the cotton-growing districts of the State should be represented were eradicated at the close of the association meeting Monday, leaving little for the legislative committee to do but indorse the measures as drafted.

One of the proposed bills asks that a law be passed providing that nothing but acala cotton seed shall be used in California and the other asks that the State Department of Agriculture be called upon to certify officially all cotton seed.

With this settled, the committee drew up an application for membership in the legislative body of the Department of Agriculture and Attorney Whitlock was scheduled to leave last night for Sacramento with the measures.

ILLINOISANS WILL PICNIC

Old friends and neighbors from McHenry county, Illinois, will assemble again at Sycamore Grove Park next Saturday for their annual reunion and picnic. The rally was scheduled for last Saturday but was put over for a week because of the rain.

TOTS SAVED BY COURAGE OF TEACHER

Panic of Kindergarten Pupils in School Fire is Averted by Coolness

The courage and level head of Miss A. Bates, kindergarten teacher, prevented a possible panic among her charges at the Normandie-street school, Santa Monica Boulevard and Normandie avenue, when fire broke out in the basement of the school yesterday morning, sending clouds of smoke billowing into the kindergarten room.

The youngsters were thrown into a near-panic when the heavy smoke filled the room. They raced in a screaming mass to the door, with a number of them in imminent danger of being trampled. Miss Bates, summoning Mrs. Jean McMillan, principal of the school, calmly restored order among her frightened charges. Then she led them in safety from the school. A short time later the 600 other pupils of the school marched out in fire-drill formation.

The fire was found to be centered in a basement storeroom of the school, directly beneath the kindergarten room. Firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze in a short time. The damage was estimated at approximately $1500.

BODY OF FILM WORKER IS ORDERED EXHUMED

Exhumation of the body of John B. Wood, Famous Players-Lasky employee, who recently suffered a fatal accident while at his work, was ordered yesterday by Coroner Nance for an examination to prove the actual cause of death. A request by the wife of the deceased for workmen's compensation brought about the order, which was declared by the Coroner to be merely a formality in such cases.

CONTEST ENDS; LETTERS DO NOT

Flood of Epistles Going East From State

Woman Writer Angered by Lies About Southland

Judges Have Huge Task in Reading Mail

The Friendship Contest of letter writing came to an end at 6 p.m. yesterday. Letters from out of town bearing an earlier postmark will continue to arrive today and there may even be a few belated stragglers from a distance, but the contest as a contest has run its course.

Next in importance, to those who entered, will be the decision of the judges. They have 378 prizes to award and the flood of last-minute mail has been so heavy that they will not be able even to approach their task for several days as the letters must first be classified. Contestants must be patient and allow them sufficient time for due deliberation.

Although the contest is over, yesterday's mail brought evidence that it has only begun to do its work. A mere fraction of the Friendship Letters sent east were written without any thought of winning a prize, but those who composed them, and thousands of others who have not made themselves known, will approach their regular correspondence hereafter in a new spirit. As an example, here are two letters giving indication of what may be expected of the future:

HAS ONE PRIZE

"Dear Editor: There would be no use in me trying to win a prize for the best letter about Southern California, for the only prize I ever got was my husband. He is a school-teacher, so you know the $1000 would come in handy.

"But I'm just real sore this morning, and maybe you can tell me what to do about it. We have been here just one year and we love it—the climate, flowers, fruit, the mountains, the sea, the people and, oh, every single thing—even the real estate dealers, for with all their blowing, they can't tell half the beauties and advantages of Southern California.

"Now I have a friend living at Marion, Ind. She and I have been chums for—well, I won't say how long but, anyway, her husband is in business at Marion. Of course, I wanted them out here and they, being tired of the long Indiana winter, had about decided to come.

"Well, this morning I had a letter from her, and after telling me how cold it was and they were sick with the "flu," heart trouble and what not, she wound up by saying: 'They say' (I hate that expression) 'everybody is leaving California and going to Florida and Charley has the Florida fever now.'

"Who do you suppose 'they' are that have nerve to lie like that? Where can I get something written up perfectly lovely to send my friends quick—to prove there are a few of us left in California, and why we stayed?

"I guess I had to get mad, just real mad, to become a 'booster.' Anyway I'm both right now."

The Times told this correspondent that if she sent her friends in Marion a letter one-half as spontaneous and fresh and engaging as this wholesome little gust of emotion, she needn't bother to look elsewhere for anything "perfectly lovely."

From a more experienced hand comes the following:

"To the Editor of The Times: For more than sixteen years now I have been writing to my friends back East the kind of letters that you are asking us to write in this Friendship Contest, and I am still writing them. It is a real labor of love—love for my friends and love for California.

"One can labor patiently to remove misunderstanding and to correct misinformation, where it is a real case of misinformation, but these vicious attacks in the eastern press have convinced me that there are a number of people back east who do not belong in California, and would never fit in here. For instance, the one who informed us that 'Iowa has everything and does not know it, and California has nothing and doesn't know it.'

"It happens that before coming to California I lived in Iowa for about thirty years. It is true that I miss here some of the things that we had in abundance in Iowa. For instance, in my sixteen years in Los Angeles, I have never once felt the thrill that was mine, back in dear old Iowa, when I reached the

HAIR WHICH TURNED GREEN IN BEAUTY PARLOR LOST SCREEN CONTRACT, SAYS GIRL IN SUIT

Originally it was light brown, then one preparation turned it black and another reversed things and made it green. And she wanted to be a light blonde.

So Elaine Towne, a motion-picture actress, described the trials and tribulations she said she suffered with her locks after securing an engagement in "Afraid to Love" and being ordered to change the color of her hair. Miss Towne's lament was set forth yesterday in a suit for $15,000 damages she filed against Kress Drug Company of Hollywood, the Neos Company of New York, Matt E. Korne and his wife, Etta.

Miss Towne said she was selected for a part in the picture Sept. 8, 1924. Then the director told her she would have to appear as a light blonde to fill the bill, she continued.

Accordingly, she said, she went to a drug store and the use of a bleaching preparation was recommended. That night, the actress stated, she applied the solution with the aid of her sister. The next morning she said she looked in the mirror and instead of being greeted with golden locks she saw black tresses reflected.

Miss Towne said she went back to the drugstore and was turned over to Korne and his wife, who were asserted to have taken her into their beauty parlor and applied another solution, which Miss Towne declared made her hair green. She also lost large masses of her hair she said, as well as the part for which she had been cast in the motion picture.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

GLORIA SWANSON'S loyal friends are disturbed by the rumor that her Marquis husband is not genuine.

I sincerely believe what they say.

I know that Gloria is too good a shopper to come home with a fake.

WHAT OF IT?

Were I Gloria, however, I wouldn't care a hoot whether he was genuine or not.

In fact, I think I would a little rather he were bogus . . . a really good imitation article.

FAKE ONES BEST

You see, here's how it is:

I have had the honor of meeting a few real noblemen and a great many fake ones. The fake ones were in every way the more satisfactory.

The real ones were usually fussy old gentlemen who lost their eyeglasses and made terrible and ghastly puns.

The fake ones had to live up to the part. They were impressive, dramatic and dignified. They looked like noblemen and probably felt like noblemen.

I like Gloria. For her sake I could wish that she had found a really interesting, tip-top phony Marquis. But alas, I am afraid that the Marquis De la Falaise de la Coudry is the genuine article.

BEAUTY-PARLOR TRAGEDY

There is a moral to this beauty-parlor tragedy where a Pasadena woman died while having her face "peeled."

Whenever you try to fight this old party with the scythe you have lost the fight before the start.

The woman of 40 who tries to be 30 is like a passenger in a train who refuses to look out at the scenery; who insists on craning her neck to try to see the scenery that has passed.

THE BLESSED AGES

Like a theatrical "road show," every age carries its own scenery, its own drama. The only possible way you can get any satisfaction out of life is to enjoy as well as you can each of these shows—each of these ages—as it comes along. If you can only force yourself to forget the horrible array of shows that are booked ahead!

AFTER 40

On the whole, life after 40 gains in interest.

You are not so self-centered. You don't think so much about people; you don't care so much what they think about you.

A GREAT SHOW

In my own case I find that I am more interested in the trees and the mountains than in cities.

I find more drama in a little country place where I spend week-ends than in any theater . . . the indignant agitation of an old gander . . . the enormous, heavy dignity of the big Rhode Island Red rooster . . . the little white dog who never has quite abandoned the belief that he can catch that wise old blue jay . . . the insatiably curious gray tree squirrel . . . and so on.

PESTIFEROUS PEOPLE

The tragedy of the forties is that people can't let you alone.

Herman Melville once wrote a book called "White Jacket." In this he told the misery of life on a warship . . . the impossibility of solitude.

I could be happy anywhere on earth . . . on a desert island . . . in the loudest, dirtiest tenement house that ever reeked with germs, were it not for the people who pursue us, asking favors.

What a sweet, beautiful old world that would be if you could just patter along your own path in a simple, humble way, . . . eating a little now and then and watching the show go by . . . with nobody to bother you!

WILL WHIRL FOR CUP

Adepts at the dervish whirl will seek to fracture the world's record for pivot dancing Friday night at the Rose Room, Eighth and Spring streets. They will go after the record for pivot dancing recently set by an enterprising couple at a Burbank Theater who whirled about the floor for one hour and one minute, making 6000 turns. Abe Perluss, manager of the Rose Room, has announced that he will give away a silver loving cup to the winning couple after the contest.

WARNERS ENTER THEATER FIELD

Chain of First-Run Houses in Key Cities Planned

Harry and Sam Will Manage Exhibition Business

Production Schedule for Year is Now Complete

Warner Brothers will manage their own first-run theaters in key cities, it was indicated yesterday in the announcement of the entry of this organization into the exhibition field.

Harry and Sam Warner will assume charge of the theater chain, leaving Jack Warner and Bennie Ziedman as producing executives in Los Angeles, it was declared.

As the first step toward carrying out the new policy Sam Warner left Los Angeles last night for San Francisco, Oakland and Seattle where theater deals are now pending. The names of the theaters, which are being negotiated for in these cities, could not be learned. Warner also refused to state whether the theaters will be purchased or leased.

HARRY GOES EAST

Arrangements already have been made for the use of the Pantages Theater in Portland, it was announced.

The eastern end of the campaign will be handled by Harry Warner, who leaves here today with his wife for Minneapolis, where Warner Brothers are negotiating for a first-run house. The executive then will go to Chicago and finally to New York where he will be joined by Sam Warner.

The fourth of the Warner brothers, Albert Warner, is now in New York and will remain there, in charge of distribution. Two floors of the Broadway headquarters of the organization in New York have been turned over to the theater department, it is declared.

SCHEDULE COMPLETE

"For the theater part," declared Harry Warner yesterday, "it is not our intention to enter into active competition with exhibitors and their organizations, but with everything set for the biggest year in our history we intend to insure a first run for our product."

The production schedule for the company is now complete, according to the announcement, even to the assignment of directors and casts. Four companies now are working on the Warner Brothers' lot.

EFFORTS TO SAVE MAN'S LIFE BALKED

Prevented from carrying out a previous attempt to commit suicide by physicians who sewed up his slashed throat yesterday, Sidney Christian, 38 years of age, a patient at the Los Angeles Sanitarium, 726 East Adams street, waited until the nurses relaxed their guard and tore the stitches from his wound, bleeding to death, according to police.

Christian, suffering from melancholia, was taken to the sanatorium by his brother, Percy Christian, 3030 San Marino street. Yesterday he slashed his throat with a razor blade. Nurses discovered his condition and summoned a surgeon who sewed up the wound.

The body was taken to the E. B. McCormick undertaking rooms. The dead man was said to have a mother living in Isabella, Cal.

LARCENY CASE CONTINUED

The case of John R. Coston, former head of the delivery and cloak departments of a local concern, facing charges of petty embezzlement in Police Court, was continued yesterday by Police Judge Richardson until next Wednesday morning because of the inability of one of the defense attorneys to be present. It is charged that Coston made off with some of the company's property.

CULVER JAIL CASE TO JURY

District Attorney Tomorrow Will Demand Inquiry in Escape of Four Arrested by Deputy

The asserted escape of a coterie of "crap-shooters" from the Culver City Jail is not to escape the scrutiny of the county grand jury, according to a statement from Dist.-Atty. Keyes yesterday.

The entire case, in which Deputy Sheriff Bond charges the Culver City police department with failure to co-operate with the Sheriff's office in law enforcement, is to be reviewed by the grand jury at their session tomorrow morning.

Deputy Sheriff Bond solicited the county grand jury investigation from Dist.-Atty. Keyes yesterday. He reported that he had arrested four men at the Culver City Speedway on the 1st inst. for "crap shooting," and that he locked them up in the Culver City Jail pending further investigation of gambling conditions in that city.

The four men were placed in the custody of the Culver City police and when Deputy Sheriff Bond, who is chief of Sheriff Traeger's dry squad, returned for them he was told they had escaped. In making his report to Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Deputy Sheriff Bond stated he could furnish facts relative to other instances of laxity of Culver City police in law enforcement. The result was the declaration by the District Attorney that the entire situation will be laid before the grand jury tomorrow.

BOOTLEG SUSPECT HELD

Sergt. Gruey and officers of the Hollywood police purity squad arrested a man giving his name as Leon C. Tanguay, 28 years of age, late Monday night at Melrose and Juanita avenues on a charge of violating the Wright Act. A small quantity of liquor was found in the suspect's possession, the officers reported to Capt. McDowell.

DISCHARGE DECISION IS SUSTAINED

Civil Service Practice in Dismissing Subordinates Upheld in Cronin Case

The present practice of the County Civil Service Commission in matters concerning the discharge of subordinates by county officials is upheld, according to County Counsel Edward T. Bishop, in an opinion which the Second District Court of Appeal, Division 1, handed down yesterday in the Cronin case. It is the first high court ruling on the subject.

No hearing by the commission is necessary before a subordinate can be discharged and an official does not have to get the approval of the commission before making such a discharge, the court ruled, thus sustaining Bishop said, the prevailing interpretation of the county charter and law on the subject.

Late in 1922 Sheriff Traeger discharged Robert T. Cronin, a jailer, after the escape of Herb Wilson and two convicted slayers from the jail. Cronin sued to collect pay which he said was due him. He based his appeal on the fact that no hearing was held by the commission on the discharge and contended that before his discharge would have been completed, a hearing and approval by the commission were necessary. The county contended that no hearing was necessary and that the Sheriff had a right to discharge in himself, having complied with the rules of the commission requiring the giving of reasons and awaiting a reply.

Cronin lost in the Superior Court and appealed to the Supreme Court which transferred the case to the Court of Appeals. The Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the Superior Court's decision.

State Alienists Declare McCoy Mentally Sound

If Kid McCoy was irrational when he ran amuck on August 13, last, with a revolver, it was due probably to a "hangover" or some other temporary cause and not insanity, two State alienists testified yesterday at McCoy's trial in Judge Crail's department of the Superior Court.

Both alienists, Dr. Victor Parkin of the State Lunacy Commission, and Dr. Louis Weber, declared that McCoy was absolutely sane. His acts on the day following the murder of Mrs. Teresa Mors, which resulted in his conviction on a manslaughter charge, were due to an outside cause and not insanity, they declared.

The testimony of the two State alienists was directly in conflict with that offered by former associates of McCoy in his ring champion days, that he was now "goofy," and that of the alienists for the defense, who had declared the former prize-ring idol mentally unsound. The trial will continue today.

PERMIT BRIBE PLOT CHARGED

present it in a better light. I have asked Mr. Jones for the name of the man, but he could not supply me with his initial or be certain just who it was that asked for the $250," Mr. Cryer said.

Referring to the Humming Bird Mayor Cryer said he had talked with the commissioners about the place and had advised them that if conditions there or elsewhere, were as they represented them to be that it was their duty to put a stop to them at once.

"Personally, I did not even know the place was granted a new license until I was informed last Saturday morning that it was not being operated in proper manner. I told Chief Heath about it and asked him to take action at once. His men, I am informed, were in the place and had gathered evidence before any other investigation was made," he said.

"Did you hear, also that $1000 a month was being paid in connection with the place?" Mayor Cryer was asked.

"The best answer to that is that the place did not run very long, isn't it?" Mayor Cryer replied. "The place was 'knocked on the head' as soon as I heard about it, and the bottom fell out of it quick," he said.

The first visible fireworks at yesterday's meeting of the commission began to explode when Miss Joyner left the commission room, following the denial of her second application, and had returned with Attorney Jones. When her case was called Secretary McKeag of the commission read the Chief's report, which recommended that the permit be granted. Chief Heath leaned toward Commissioner Foss and whispered in his ear. There was another whispered conversation between Commissioner Foss and Mr. Birnbaum.

"Have you ever paid anyone any money in connection with this application, or have you personally been approached by anyone about it?" Miss Joyner was asked by Comissioner Birnbaum.

Miss Joyner said she had not.

"Well, there has been too much talk in this case. The permit is denied," Commissioner Birnbaum said, tossing the application on the table.

When she returned Attorney Jones was with her. Mr. Jones asked the commission to reopen the case and reconsider it. This again was denied.

"Then," said Mr. Jones, "I ask that the commission subpoena Dr. Zittus, who was approached by a man who represented himself to be an attorney, and who told Dr. Zittus, after Miss Joyner's application was turned down, that he could guarantee her a permit for $250."

TALK RESENTED

"We want to find out who this man is," Commissioner Foss said. "I want to know who is getting the money and where it is going, if such things are happening," Mr. Foss continued.

"And we want to know why a reputable person is denied a permit under such circumstances," Mr. Jones shot back.

Commissioner Birnbaum then told Mr. Jones that he resented the amount of talk connected with the application.

"The only man I talked about this with was the Mayor, and he assured me that if my client had merited the application the permit would be granted. He told me to go ahead and make another application and now that it comes up here, with a favorable report, you turn it down."

Then Mr. Jones made another demand for a subpoena for Dr. Zittus, but his request was ignored.

"If this man wants to come in here and tell us about it we will be glad to hear him," the commissioners told Mr. Jones.

"It is certain a very peculiar board that would not welcome an opportunity to investigate properly charges of this nature against its own body. It seems to me that a matter of this kind should not be allowed to die down, and I am going to take some action on it tomorrow," Mr. Jones said as he left the City Hall.

Later, at his office, he and Attorney John J. Craig, his partner, gave the facts of the Joyner application and promised to produce Dr. Zittus and other witnesses on their own initiative.

The records show that the application of Ragland and Joyner was first filed January 26, last. Investigator Posner's adverse report was dated February 6. The first application gave as references Dr. D. C. Ragland, Herbert R. Kells, Dr. A. E. Burns, Walter T. Casey and Robert M. Clarke.

The second report of Officer Posner, in which he recommended the license be granted on the grounds that the references were "perfect," gave the same names, with the exception that the name of John J. Craig was substituted for Mr. Clarke.

Miss Joyner and Attorney Jones said the application was for an establishment in which Miss Joyner planned to take care of patients sent her by Dr. Ragland and other physicians, and not of the type operated in some downtown buildings and declared to be objectionable to the police.

SHOCKED AT SIGHTS

Asked for the details of their findings in the Humming Bird Cafe, the commissioners said, after the meeting ended, that they were "shocked" at what they saw there.

"Such things cannot go on in Los Angeles," Commissioner Foss said. "We granted this permit on representations that the place would cater to colored people only. We were assured that no one but the applicant would have any connection with the place. The first sight we saw was George Henderson in charge of the floor," he added.

Chief of Police Heath made it known after the meeting adjourned that he has had the place under observation for some time and that through Capt. Davis, head of the vice division, he had obtained sufficient evidence to warrant the revocation of the permit. "Davis and his men have made purchases of liquor in the place in the last few days and have obtained other evidence," he said.

He also declared that he had instructed Capt. McClary, commander of the Newton-street station, to make a report on the place in time for presentation to the Police Commission yesterday, but said he had not received any report to date.

Police Commission records show that the license of the Humming Bird was revoked last September after Capt. McClary, then at the Central Station made complete reports showing many violations and laxity in management. Several attempts to obtain a new license were made, but without success. Finally it was granted to a Charles Dunsecomb. According to the police, this man was a dummy for others. George Henderson, according to charges made to the commission, was a part owner of the cafe.

FIVE BOYS HIT BY AUTOS

Three Critically Injured; Two Others Suffer Mishaps at School; One is Poisoned

Five small boys were run down and injured, three critically, by motor vehicles yesterday, according to Receiving Hospital reports. Three other boys were treated at the hospital for injuries received in various mishaps, two of which occurred on school grounds.

The most seriously hurt are Leo Cohen, 6 years of age, of 2622 Central avenue; Harry Shubin, 3, of 244 Clarence street, and Abel Ossoris, 6, of 355 North Avenue 21. The Cohen boy suffered a possible skull fracture and other injuries when he was struck in front of his home by an automobile said to have been driven by S. V. Lufkin, 1134½ Laveta Terrace. Similar injuries were received by the Shubin child when he was struck at Alliso and Summit streets by an automobile, driven, police say, by M. W. Majick, 5238 Grandview street. Abel was run down in front of the Lincoln Heights police station by a car said to have been driven by George Watson, 807½ San Antonio street, Belvedere. He suffered a fractured left leg and possible internal injuries.

Steed Patton, 7, negro, was run down at First street and Burlington avenue by an automobile said to have been operated by Lew Hing Heam, 307½ Apablasa street. Steed was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises.

Hedge Samuleson, 9, of 625 Canyon Drive, Beverly Hills, was run down at Tenth and Hope streets last night by a motorcycle driven, according to police reports, by Roy Card, 5234 Lincoln avenue. The boy suffered a cut on the head and possible internal injuries, for which he was treated at the Receiving Hospital.

William Mitchell, 7, of 405 South Sichel street, ran into a tree on the Griffin-avenue school playground and had to be treated for a cut on the head. Isadore Newman, 14, of 404 Firmin street, cut his hand while playing at the Temple-street school, and Alfred Buda, 10, of 3269 Drew street, became ill from food poisoning at his home and was given first aid at the hospital. All of the above victims were treated by Dr. Dodge.

YATKO HELD IN SLAYING OF PIANIST

Timothy Yatko, Filipino waiter, was held for trial without bail yesterday by Justice Baird on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal stabbing on February 28, last, of Harry L. Kidder, Main-street dance hall pianist.

Among the witnesses was Detective Lieutenant Stevens, who took a confession from Yatko shortly after the killing. In the confession Yatko admitted stabbing Kidder and said he did so because his wife, Lola Yatko, 20-year-old dancer, refused to leave the musician and return to him. Yatko is also asserted to have told how he trailed his wife to the dance hall where she and Kidder worked and of following her to Kidder's home the night of the killing.

Mrs. La Verne Harrison, who lives near the apartment occupied by Kidder, told of seeing two Filipinos flee from the scene shortly after the time Kidder was killed. They were said to have been friends of Yatko who accompanied him to the apartment.

Another witness was Max Koenig, a taxicab driver. He testified that on the night of February 26, last, he drove Kidder and Mrs. Yatko from the dance hall to Kidder's apartment. After he had left them there, Koenig said, Yatko ran up and stopped the cab. Koenig said he drove Yatko to the police station where the latter was unable to get police to raid Kidder's apartment, whereupon Yatko had him drive to the musician's apartment.

The case was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Davis.

CONTEST ENDS; LETTERS DO NOT

cyclone cellar just in time. And during these sixteen years in Los Angeles, I have never had even one sleigh-ride, while back in that good old State' I waded through snowdrifts and froze my fingers while on my way to school, with the mercury hovering around 33 deg. below zero.

"Yes, Iowa is a grand old State and it has some grand good people in it. In fact, I think so much of some of them that every few years I brave their cyclones, thunderstorms, and mud roads, just for old friendship's sake. But live there? Oh no! California is good enough for me.

"My husband and I made a trip east last summer, and we heard dire tales of California. We heard of bread lines here; that this country was all burnt up; and that the guests in the hotels here could not get enough water to drink.

"Also, on that same trip, in which we toured through the Eastern States, Canada and our own Middle West, including Iowa, we saw enough to show us that anyone seeking the truth about California could very easily find it. Without ever coming to California at all, one could find in his own markets, on fruit stands and in grocery stores, all the evidence needed to refute these false stories that were circulating there.

"Although we knew what California produces, we were surprised to find that the section that boasts it has to feed California dependend almost entirely upon California for its supply of fresh fruits and vegetables, if the labels on boxes and crates could be trusted. All this, without taking into account the California canned goods on the grocers' shelves.

"I came home and 'took my pen in hand.' I have written to my friends. But there are still some things that I felt should be said to those who were not exactly my friends, nor the friends of California, either."

More enduring and valuable than any immediately measureable result of the Friendship Contest is the generation of such an attitude as the fore-going letters reveal. A contest runs its appointed course and expires, but the desire to set wrongs right, to refute slander and correct misinformation becomes the permanent possession of those in whom it once takes root.

The Friendship Contest has set these natural human emotions in motion. They needed only an initial stimulus and some evidence that the result desired could be attained. Abundant evidence to that effect has been published in The Times, taken from the comment of distant newspapers and recipients of Friendship letters. The contest is over but the campaign will go on.

Cured Patients Give No Income, Wife's Plaint

Dr. Hester Abbott's misfortune was that as a physician she was too good, according to the story she told Judge Gates in alimony court yesterday.

Her patients all got well and this left her without any business or income, she said.

The quarrel in the Abbott family, which brought its affairs into alimony court was a case of physicians disagreeing, the complaint and testimony showed. For Dr. Abbott's husband is also a naturopathic medico, Dr. George Abbott.

The husband started the litigation by suing for divorce. He charged that his wife tried to steal his patients, by soliciting them in their joint waiting-room in the Bartlett Building. So he arranged a parting of the ways and agreed to pay her $100 a month to pass out of his life. She hailed him into alimony court for failure to meet these payments, and Judge Gates, after listening to the husband's story of diminished income, ordered him to begin paying $16 a week on the contract immediately.

LONG BEACH ATTORNEY CALLS MEASURE JOKE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 10.—The proposed port district bill now before the State Legislature, was declared a "joke" by City Manager Windham, when he told the City Council the measure would not have his support in its present form.

The City Manager took sharp issue with C. E. Gordon, Long Beach Harbor Commissioner and member of the Greater Harbor Committee of Two Hundred. He objected, he said, to giving the port authority control over the Long Beach beaches and Alamitos Bay, and to Los Angeles having a majority of the port commissioners. Gordon declared the bill would give the port authority control only of the waterfront west of the Flood Control channel.

"The port district bill as it now stands covers all the Long Beach waterfront to the Orange county line and I say it flatly. It gives the port district control of the beaches and Alamitos Bay," Windham retorted. He declared the amendment of the bill knocking out the specification that the fifth port commissioner should be a Los Angeles man is "camouflage."

The Council deferred action on the bill to a special meeting, to be called within a few days.

Father Fell for Flapper; Found Guilty of Bigamy

Henry C. Becker was found guilty of bigamy by a jury in Judge Hardy's department of the Superior Court yesterday at the end of a few minutes' deliberation after his wife, Ella Becker, had taken the stand and sometimes tearfully and at others in high anger, had told how he abandoned her and their five children for the charms of a flapper whom he married at Riverside.

Mrs. Becker was the principal witness against the errant husband. They had lived together for eighteen years, she said, and brought up five children. Then, she said, he conceived a mad passion for young Fayette Salmon, a typical girl of today, and ran away with her to Riverside and the bigamous marriage. Before he left, she said, he provided himself with a $900 mortgage, $500 in Liberty Bonds and $500 in cash, all belonging to the family.

Becker conducted his own defense after dismissing his attorney in court with the announcement that he could "do better" himself. But the jury, after hearing Mrs. Becker's story, returned a verdict of guilty in a few minutes.

POMONA PROGRAM

During the fore part of the evening the Pomona Lions' Club and Pomona College program, arranged by Mr. L. L. Noggle, presented the Pomona College Glee Club under the direction of Ralph H. Lyman and the California Concert Orchestra of the Pomona California Theater, Mr. Charles A. Higgins, conductor.

The Pomona College Glee Club, assisted at the piano by Everett S. Olive, rendered a well-balanced program including several of their own school songs, Logan's "Pale Moon" and "The Archers' Marching Song" by Thayer. The California Concert Orchestra delighted radioisnd with selections from the semi-classics interspersed with solos.

At the afternoon program the Pacific States Electric Company presented the Chico DeVerde Russian Gypsy Trio, composed of Chico DeVerde, violin and director, Paul Ochi Albi, 'cello, and William Pestuonoff, piano. Occupying a unique position in the musical world by virtue of their novel programs consisting of gypsy and Spanish melodies, they are blessed with a birthright that permits a native interpretation of these works. Grace Currey, harpist, was the other member of the afternoon program.

CHILDREN'S HOUR

Prof. Walter Sylvester Hertzog related his daily tales of American history. Queen Titania and her Sandman, paying their weekly visit to KHJ, had the unexpected pleasure of being greeted by Floryane Thompson, whose soprano voice, after a long absence, returned in greater glory in a program that comprised three lullabies, two of which were Miss Thompson's own compositions. Louis F. Klein, with harmonica and autoharp, and Charles Leslie Hill, 4-year-old reader, were also on hand to welcome the Fairyland royalty.

While waiting for the Sandman's whistle, Uncle John heard the sound of Fairy music, followed by the tones of the whistle, but so faint that he knew they came from a distance. It occurred to him that perhaps the Radio Fairies were waiting for him in Fairyland, and as this thought entered his mind, the walls of the studio faded away and he found himself standing at the very spot he had left last week, directly in front of the Temple of Truth. By the doorway was Queen Titania with tiny hands outstretched and by her side stood the Sandman.

The noon hour audience was entertained by Major and His Forum Roof Ballroom Orchestra, and Elsie Davis Riddick, contralto.

HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER CONSIDERS OFFERS

Members of the board of directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce are considering two separate propositions offered by business men of the district as a means of solving the problem of establishing permanent headquarters for the chamber. One group of men offer the second floor of the building to be erected on Vine street to house the new Hollywood branch postoffice, while another property owner offers space in a building he proposes to build on Vine street. No decision regarding the removal of the chamber offices will be made, it was said, until a careful canvass of the community is made.

JAIL TERM CUT DENIED TO HEMMI

Torrance Lawyer Held in Mail Robbery at Anaheim Pleads Illness

Request for a reduction of a jail sentence imposed last December on H. U. Hemmi, Torrance lawyer, was denied yesterday by Federal Judge James. The request was accompanied by a physician's certificate to the effect that Hemmi is suffering from a chronic throat ailment.

Hemmi was sentenced to the Orang County Jail for seven months on a charge of receiving money stolen from the mails. At the time of his conviction, Judge James said the sentence imposed was light because of the prominence and the past record of the defendant.

It was alleged Hemmi secreted part of $25,000 stolen from a mail truck at Anaheim in December, 1923. He was convicted on the testimony of J. R. Abernathy, former superintendent of schools at Anaheim, who is serving a five-year penitentiary sentence on the charge of conspiracy to rob the mails. J. Lloyd Findley, driver of the mail truck, served a ten-month jail sentence. Charles R. Wheeler, former clerk of the Anaheim postoffice, is under indictment on a charge of receiving money stolen from the mails. He was acquitted on the conspiracy charge when Abernathy was convicted.

Schools Head Sends All Pupils Circulars Telling of Sunday's Concert

Through co-operation with Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, Superintendent of Schools, circulars will be sent today to 100,000 school children urging them to attend the 10-cent Philharmonic Orchestra concert Sunday afternoon in the Coliseum at Exposition Park.

"Providing symphony concerts at such a low admission price is a wonderful thing for our city," said Mrs. Dorsey, yesterday. "I cannot too strongly urge our children, accompanied by their parents, to hear the program Sunday afternoon."

With the assistance of Mrs. Dorsey and the co-operation of the music departments of the various schools there is a possibility of the attendance reaching 30,000 at Sunday's concert, which would set a world's record for symphony orchestra concerts. The program will start at 2:30 o'clock, under direction of Walter Henry Rothwell.

The program will be given in the east end of the Coliseum. Experts have pronounced acoustics perfect and the finest notes can be heard from any of the seats on sale. Ample trolley car service will be provided.

Dazzling White Teeth

Make this unique test. Give your teeth high polish, and fresh new color simply by removing the dingy film that coats them and invites decay and gum troubles.

THIS offers you a simple, scientific test—one judged the most remarkable of all dental tests.

It will bring out qualities in your teeth you do not realize they have. In a short time you can work a transformation in their color and their luster.

Modern science has evolved a new and radically different method which successfully removes the dingy film that imperils healthy teeth and gums.

Simply send the coupon. Don't think your teeth are naturally "off color" or dull. This will prove they are not.

Film—the enemy of beautiful teeth and healthy gums

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film . . . a viscous coat that covers them.

That film is an enemy to your teeth—and your gums. You must remove it.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy, "off color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Tooth troubles and gum troubles now are largely traced to that film. Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why, as guardians of the cure, you take now, your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

New methods remove it. And Firm the Gums

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has discovered effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it, then to firm the gums.

Now what you see when that film is removed—the whiteness of your teeth—will amaze you.

Ordinary methods fail in these results.

Harsh, gritty substances are judged dangerous to enamel.

Thus the world has turned, largely on dental advice, to this new method.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

MORE PUZZLES

It is too bad that the cross-word puzzle craze doesn't help a man a bit in computing his income tax.

SAFETY LAST

It seems to be easy to interest any man in a proposition that talks of 40 or 50 per cent profits, but when you shout of 4 per cent and safety he can't hear.

RELICS OF THE PAST

Now a French curio dealer says that he has picked up the original sword and armor of Joan of Arc. He bagged them for the trifle of something like $150, but, of course, he has boosted the price. Nevertheless, we decline to buy unless we get a bill of sale signed by Joan herself.

ENGLAND'S TROUBLES

Now it is asserted that the biggest problem in England is to get the British workman to work. The unions are halting the solution and keeping the labor world in something of a turmoil. Some of them will neither work themselves nor permit others to toil. All this is embarrassing the industrial progress of the kingdom.

AMONG THE BOBS

The hairpin foundries are said to have joined hands in a campaign against bobbed hair, but the fashion experts in Paris now advise them that their crusade is hopeless. Even if they were able to show that shearing the dome makes women crazy it would have no effect. They cannot get away from the fact that bobbing the hair makes a matron look at least ten years younger than she did before she passed under the shears. If a woman can look younger, feel younger and act younger by merely passing a half hour in a barber shop she is certain to try the experience—even if she loses her mop in the doing.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE

Government is extending into so many aisles of effort that it takes a vast army of employees to cover the lines. Even under retrenchment policies the flock of government workers is extending. The enforcement of prohibition and the collection of special taxes added many names to Uncle Sam's pay roll. It appears that more than 10,000 of these names were tacked on the roster last year. President Coolidge is determined to know exactly why. He has said that to part an officeholder from his job is a difficult and unpleasant task, but if the job is unimportant or the holder undesirable it will be done.

FOREIGN CONTACTS

Although other countries should be even more deeply interested than ourselves, many foreign governments do not seem to be notably concerned over the idea of America calling another arms conference. They intimate that America proposes nothing that cannot be readily achieved through the League. However, they are ready to do almost anything we want in the way we want it, provided it involves no financial obligation and, therefore, they will furnish a form of compliance with the American ideas. So far as ideals are concerned, they express a willingness of their own, whether or not they intend to conform to them.

THE LIGHT WE HAIL

An eminent Hindoo pundit has discovered and captured a mysterious invisible light which is said to penetrate solids and expose their interiors to the human eye. Every scout for the major leagues ought to have a gripful of this stuff to enable him to check up on the ivory submitted for his inspection. According to the pioneer announcements, this light quite supplants the X-ray in its prying field and would make a ship's anchor as transparent as the water in which it was dropped. A flask of invisible light should enable anyone to see through the machinations of those who would have intimate commerce with soviet Russia. Let those who live in glass houses turn on the invisible light.

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC

The use of drugs has officially been greatly reduced through restrictive legislation in many countries. In spite of this, the price of the Persian and Macedonian opium, from which morphia and heroin are mostly made, is higher than it has been for a generation and the crop is also much larger. In the face of this, any effort to head off production at its source is not going to be easy. It is set up as a matter of fact that the smoking of opium has increased in China, but that country takes care of its own supply. It is also known that Japan, Germany, Switzerland and Holland virtually handle all the output of Persia and Macedonia. American and British buyers must go to India for their stocks. There is hot competition for every ounce produced—even in the face of larger crops. The opium traffic is not to be snuffed out with a few moral gestures. While a Persian peasant can get $8 an ounce for raw opium international agreements will be hard to enforce.

THE LAST FRONTIER

Where is the American frontier? This is a question that has been debated by many during the past few decades. Others have disposed of it by declaring that there wasn't any. If one is looking for a wild western frontier where Indians and cowboys wage bloody warfare this latter conclusion is fully warranted. But, according to that clever journal, Liberty, there really is a frontier and it is the shore line of the Pacific Coast, facing Asia.

Liberty, which harbors the fear of a Japanese invasion, briefly sketches the shifting of the American frontier from the Atlantic Coast, where the colonists faced the Indians, the French and the Spanish, to the mountains of Pennsylvania, to the Ohio Valley, to Michigan and Kentucky and, from generation to generation, on to the Dakotas in the Northwest and to Texas in the Southwest, where civilization pushed its way step by step against red Indians, outlaws and Mexicans. Then came the long struggle to gain the farther West—the battles with the Apaches, Sioux, Comanches and Arapahoes.

It is true that the aboriginal American offered to the white invader quite as much resistance as the Briton offered the Roman or the Saxon. St. Clair's defeat north of the Ohio was as signal as that of the Danes by the Saxon Britons, but it was followed by success after success. The Americans went on. Custer's command was exterminated by the Sioux in a struggle remembered by the elders of this day who, in their lifetime, have seen the frontier removed from outpost to outpost over a region almost as great as that conquered by the Americans in the first 300 years of eastern civilization. The plains, deserts, mountain passes and valleys were cleared and the homeseekers passed on to the Pacific, to which other homeseekers and many visitors now pass over bands of steel where the covered wagon went before.

"Now," says Liberty, "the people who have won all this live on the Pacific Coast, and that is our present frontier—a rose garden, a fruit garden, a land of riches and happiness, won by long years of effort, and now facing Asia."

In the view of Liberty, what this facing Asia means is that "the nonassimilable Japanese say they will storm this frontier if they are not allowed entrance in peace, and the people who have won their way across the continent to possess that land say that it shall not be done either in peace or war."

Whatever may be the danger, near or remote, of Japanese attempts to invade this last frontier, it would seem that alarmists like the one quoted have not taken into account the fact that that danger is minimized by Japan's perfect knowledge of the indomitable character and unbounded resources of the men who hold this western wall. To think that the whole matter of the ultimate result of such an invasion has not been fully canvassed by Japanese naval and military strategists and that they have not counted the cost of their sure and disastrous defeat is to consider the Japanese wholly lacking in the common sense displayed by them since their rise as a world power. They knew what they were doing when they waged war with China and Russia, as the events proved, and they exhibited more discretion than vehemence or valor in the World War. What makes anybody think they would not be fully aware of the consequences were they to be so unwise as to wage war against us? Could they doubt for a moment the certainty of the result—inevitable and inglorious defeat with all the cost in blood and treasure which that defeat would entail? Japan has much to gain by our friendship and much to lose by our enmity.

Just as in Walt Whitman's "Facing West from California's Shore," it may serve the purpose of poetry to speak of our Pacific Coast as the last American frontier, and while in truth we are facing Asia, though with friendly gesture, from behind our guns, there will be little to fear so long as Japan remains the sane, wise nation it is, and we must accept its oft-repeated professions of friendship until that unlikely event when it shall display that species of insanity which obsessed the German Emperor and his advisers when they plunged headlong into Belgium.

Sane and peaceable Japan evinces no premonitory symptoms of such insanity. But, in the case of such a seizure, we easily could cope with and subdue the madman. Meanwhile let us give the Japanese credit for still remaining in possession of such common sense as they generally have displayed in their international affairs.

AN EARNEST GAME

A "He plays an earnest game of golf" is the way a man characterizes a friend. Is it commendation or is it humor, or both? Should the devotee of the game have any occasion to feel comfortable over this definition of his effort?

Suppose a man should say of a neighbor, "He plays an earnest saxophone"? What would be the general reaction? Would it add to the quiet happiness of the community or superinduce suspicion? Would a gentle and trustful nature have anything to ponder over? Could there be anything sinister in the expression which might cause the musician to be on his guard against foul play? Would amicable relations likely continue?

What is an earnest game of golf? Has it ever been said of a champion that he played an earnest game? Is there a fine discrimination of language that is worthy of study?

A story of the man's game would run something like this: His drives were mostly dubs. The fairway was filled with foozles. He sowed a pond with balls ardently. He was profuse in his power to locate sand pits. If the holes could have been placed in the pits he would have holed in every shot. He fanned the air with frequency and precision. That he forgot to count all his strokes was not dishonesty—it was commendable discretion. He played an earnest game. He got more exercise than any others on the links.

His friend may have been hard put to find anything more virtuous in his efforts. There is a slight suspicion that earnestness was the one redeeming quality of his game.

His earnestness was noteworthy and praiseworthy. Like "The Man with the Hoe," "he gazed upon the ground, the emptiness of ages in his face." He digged holes with abandon. The caretaker had to resod the greens after his adventure. He swung his club with an enthusiasm that was closely akin to recklessness, only to find that he furnished large quantities of joy for his fellows.

And yet there are those who do not play an earnest game—even of golf.

SPACE DESTROYERS

Baron von Munchausen's goose-flyers, Jules Verne's "Round the World in Eighty Days" and Robert Hugh Benson's airship of "The Lord of the World" are all back numbers. The Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation's proposed giant air line has put them all on the scrap heap. Fiction of yesterday stands aside for practical demonstrations of today.

Dr. Arnstine, former chief engineer of the Zeppelin company, has drawn plans for more than 100 dirigibles, among which is that of the giant ZR-3, which crossed the Atlantic on a nonstop flight. The wizard of the air is now engaged on plans for an airship twice the size of any ever built, which will be able to go around half the world without a stop. Fueling here in Los Angeles and again at a point of our antipodes, that ship will travel the circuit of the earth in eleven days if it maintains the speed of the ZR-3 from London to New York.

The monster air-whale will be equipped with a passenger cabin hanging from the keel of the vessel providing a promenade deck and all the comforts of a home. It will be from 860 to 930 feet long with a diameter of from 115 to 120 feet. It will develop 4000 horsepower as against 1500 of the Shenandoah and 2000 of the ZR-3. It has not been decided yet whether the new transportation mammoth will be placed in government or commercial service.

It would be a trite vulgarism to say that we are living in an age of superhuman rapid transportation; but to comment on the speed of transformation from the age of fiction, through a period of experimental adaptation, to practical usage of the known elements of nature with the aid of invention and industry is a deserved compliment due to scientists. Future generations will take their inventions of co-ordination of the elements as a matter of course in the manner of Africans who called the first steam launch which they saw the white man's fish and the first airplane the white man's bird. But to watch the development of scientific improvements in our own generation, tracing them step by step, is a prerogative worth living for.

The practical scientist has a mission in life the essence of which puts to shame the drone who accepts the results without thanks. In the solitude of his laboratory the scientist slowly, gradually but surely compels the petty politician and the vociferous man in the street to come to his way of thinking. What the latter call fiction and idealism is reality to the thinker and scientist. Demonstrations of the scientist's accomplishments bring political pettifogers and their band-wagon suites in every nation to belated realization that the conquest of air, distance, atmospheric conditions and city protection of oratorical gasses has antiquated their objections to a world unity which only may protect undisturbed pursuit of life and happiness.

The conversion of Dr. Karl Arnstine from the use of his talents for destruction toward their use for pacific purposes, therefore, becomes a warning none the less eloquent for its unspoken admission. He came to the right country for the useful fruition of his converted talents. For the heart of our nation is for peace.

CIVILIZATION AND MURDER

The murder rate in this country has more than doubled in the last twenty years. Thanks to the motor, the death rate through accident has more than kept pace with the homicide increase. While science has made great progress in reducing the death rate from disease, the flivver and the automatic have been doing a rushing business—in the direction of the morgue. That is what we get for being civilized.

"Speed Up!"

Just About It
by James J. Montague

A RAY OF SUNSHINE

Though foreigners often have said
That ours is a hard-working race,
Which constantly forges ahead
At a fast and continuous pace,
Though doing our job with all possible speed
Is something we always talk most about,
I've never seen one of the folks who agreed
That this was a trait we should boast about.

It's a pity, I always have held,
That a people, untrammeled and free
Should be, by blind instinct, impelled
To ape the unreasoning bee.
(And there seems to be no valid doubt of it)
We ought to be thinking as hard as we can
For good clever ways to get out of it.

And this, so an Englishman finds,
Is the thing we are doing today;
We are busily bending our minds
Toward learning to loaf and to play.
He says our devotion to work is all rot;
He has golfed with our great and illustrious,
And stopped at their houses, and all of the lot
Are everything else but industrious.

This Britisher fills me with cheer,
And brings me a good honest thrill.
If the waning of hustling is here,
There is hope for my countrymen still.
I hope that his theory doesn't go wrong.
We trust he is fully assured of it,
For work is a habit we've had far too long,

DOUBLE MOTHERS

Now a woman novelist suggests the need of two mothers to take care of one child because a single mother never has all the required qualities. She may be maternal or ambitious, but never both. The child needs one mother to look after its present needs and another to arrange its future. The one may be likened to a nurse and the other to a governess. Real mothers will consider the views of the novelist with smiling tolerance. They will say that she doesn't know anything about children, anyhow, and probably never raised anything more pretentious than a Maltese kitten. We need no double-headers in our motherhood. It is all right to educate mothers in the responsibilities that befall them, but we cannot expect them to sub for one another.

MIGHT BE WORSE

Poverty is a bore, but of all troubles it is easiest to alleviate. Nearly anyone can get rid of poverty sufficiently to live about as comfortably as the rich.—[E. W. Howe's Monthly.

OUR ADVICE

A surprising thing about us Yankees is the great amount of good advice we give we won't take ourselves.—[E. W. Howe's Monthly.

FREAKS OF THE TYPES

An odd misprint occurred some years ago in an English grammar. The principal parts of the verb "to chide" were given thus: "Present infinitive, to chide; past finite, I chide; past infinitive, to have children."

This punctuation once appeared in an edition of the Bible: "The wicked flee, when no man pursueth the righteous, is as bold as a lion." And once in the Book of Common Prayer the omission of a letter made this startling sentence: "We shall all be hanged in the twinkling of an eye."

A few years ago a bill came before the Senate reading: "A bill to retire pretty officers in the Navy." Senator Tillman read the title and remarked: "That's a good idea. Retire all pretty officers and give Bob Evans a chance."—[Boston Transcript.

Restoring a Lost Art

The radio and the movies have been of tremendous benefit in acquainting a hysterical world with the benefits of the process known as "slowing down." They have taught people to sit quietly for hours at a time, relaxed and silent. Listening is a lost art in this country until the radio came along.—[New York Telegraph.

WHAT CAUSES EARTHQUAKES

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT

Perhaps the most mysterious of all physical phenomena is the occurrence of earthquakes. They come unheralded, sometimes no apparent cause, sometimes attended by slight tremors, often producing appalling destruction.

Certain scientific writers undertake to show that earthquakes are due to temporary conditions of the geological strata beneath, but no writer on that subject has been able to assign adequate reasons for their prevalence in some countries and their absence for long periods in other parts of the world.

For example, earthquakes are of frequent occurrence in Italy, Asia Minor, Northern India and Japan; also in Alaska, Central America and equatorial Andes Mountains. But they seldom occur in large areas like the United States, Northern Europe and Southern Africa.

But there are times when the countries last named are not immune; for instance, there was the destructive earthquake which wrecked Charleston in 1886; submerged forests in Southeastern Missouri in 1812; and that which caused half of Lisbon to sink beneath the waves in 1755.

It is quite evident that earthquakes are not of superficial origin, but their cause is deep-seated and may be of cosmic or astronomic origin. Let us consider the history of our earth from an astronomical point of view. At an exceedingly remote period many thousands of millions of years ago, a vast nebula, millions of cubic miles in extent, existed in this otherwise vacant portion of the universe.

In the course of countless ages, by the mutual attraction of its component parts, a process of condensation took place, the heavier chemical elements slowly, then swiftly, moving toward centers which ultimately became the sun, planets and satellites of our solar system.

As the components of the original nebula flew with ever-increasing velocity toward the respective centers of condensation their impact and attrition with each other produced enormous heat and each center became a blazing star. Accordingly, the earth was at that period of its history a brilliant, sparkling star.

After a long period of time the heat of its external surface was radiated off into surrounding space and the surface became cool and a solid crust was formed around the internal fires. When the crust got cool enough vegetable and animal life appeared. What is the thickness of that crust? Mining shafts have been sunk to a depth of 6000 feet, or a little more than a mile.

As one descends to the bottom of these shafts, in any part of the earth, it is found that the temperature gradually increases, and if it increases at the same ratio below these depths it will reach a melting point at a depth of fifty miles, below which every object will be in a molten condition.

Now we know that the heaviest chemical elements are in that seething interior for the following reasons: The granite rocks which compose our mountain masses have a specific gravity only about two and one-half times that of water. But when the weight of the earth as a whole is measured by its attractive force upon the other planets astronomers find that its specific gravity is five and one-half times that of the same bulk of water.

Now suppose that a large mass of our heaviest chemical elements—gold, silver, copper, iron, platinum, etc.—were amalgamated into a long cylindrical mass parallel with the axis of the earth. We should not expect this mass as it rolled over with the rotation of the earth to be perfectly rigid, but as different portions of it would be subject to different attractive forces, both within the earth's crust and by other planets, would it not be bent into serpentine curves?

But that long, heavy, cylindrical, coagulated mass, so to speak, would not be rigid and stationary, but would swing about in its semi-plastic medium and would be subject to external attractive influences, and what would be more reasonable to suppose than that one of its serpentine curves or its free end under Alaska should bob up against the under surface of the earth's crust.

It is not difficult to imagine what would be the consequences. They would range all the way from a simple graze of the under surface, when slight tremors would be felt above, to violent impacts, when terrific consequences would be experienced on the outer surface.

Yet, during all historic time, going back 6000 years, and tracing the biological development of plants and animals in the geological strata backward for many millions of years, the thoughtful man may confidently look forward to a continuance of the present physical state of things for many centuries to come.

THE LAZY HUSBAND BILL

The "lazy husband" bill was passed by the South Carolina House the other day and amended and passed by the Senate a few hours afterward.

Under this measure if a no-account husband is sent to the chain-gang his family draws $1.50 a day during his imprisonment. If he is fined the fine goes to his family, the cost only being held by the State.—[Columbia Record.

Fair Warning

Good advertising should look not merely to the present but to the future. It must have been a short-sighted house painter that inserted the following announcement in his home newspaper: "To the public: The reason why I have hitherto been able to do painting so much cheaper than anybody else is because I am a bachelor and do not need to make a profit for the maintenance of a wife and children. 'Tis now my duty to inform the public that this advantage will shortly be withdrawn, as I am about to be married. You will therefore do well to send in your orders at once for the old rate."—[Youth's Companion.

CITIZEN DUTIES ARE OUTLINED

Subject Discussed in Ninth Oratory Contest Lesson

Upholding of Constitution Explained by Authority

Government's Essence and Spirit Set Forth

In the ninth lesson of the series on the Constitution prepared by Prof. Shurter for the aid of entrants in the National Oratorical Contest, the subject of a citizen's duties in upholding the nation's fundamental law is discussed. The lesson follows:

To uphold the Constitution simply means to uphold our American form of government, for the Constitution is the government. This requires every citizen to lear thoroughly and to practice daily the well-known principle that a good citizen must merge his personal interests in the general good and submit to the will of the majority. If our laws are unsatisfactory and the citizen believes they should be changed, the Constitution provides a method for accomplishing this, and to insist on lawful means in changing our laws is the only procedure whereby orderly government can be secured. Evolution and not revolution is the American process.

Knowledge, loyalty, and the will to be an active citizen, not a mere figurehead, are among the requisites of good citizenship. The well-known fact needs constantly to be enforced that a self-governing republic such as ours requires intelligent and active participation in its government by the whole body of its citizens.

BESETTING SINS

In his book, "Promoting Good Citizenship," James Bryce points out the besetting sins of citizens in a popular government. He names these as indolence, selfish personal interest, and party spirit. He points out that the average man judges himself by the average standard and does not see why he should take more trouble in citizenship activities than his neighbor. Thus we arrive at a result summed up in the terrible dictum, which reveals the basic fault of Democracy: "What is Everybody's Business is Nobody's Business." Self-government is absolutely dependent upon a reasonable amount of time being devoted to the business of government by each citizen, to thinking not alone of his personal affairs, but also of the government of which he is a part, and to stand by his convictions independently of mere party policies.

It matters not what system of government is best adapted to other nations, the American government was founded with a written constitution which was so carefully thought out and composed that it stands today as our basic law, with very few changes. Let us be thankful that our basic law was reduced to writing, so that every citizen might know beyond the shadow of a doubt just what our form of government was to be and is. Our Constitution is a concise, clear-cut statement of the great fundamentals of government, which can easily be read at a single sitting, and so simple that a child of average intelligence twelve years of age can understand its basic principles. This is true of no other constitution in the world.

The word "democracy" does not occur in the Constitution. Our government is democratic in spirit, in that the sovereign power resides in the whole body of the people, but this power under our Constitution is exercised by chosen representatives of the people. The greatest of care was taken to provide in our Constitution that the people were not to act directly, either in the enactment, the execution or the interpretation of laws. Ours is a Federal republic, with a well-balanced departmental organization, so that neither the legislative, executive nor judicial department may encroach upon the legitimate functions of the others.

AMERICAN SYSTEM

What is this Constitutional system of ours in its essence and spirit? Does it consist of executive officers, clothed with extraordinary powers, beside which the meager prerogatives of constitutional monarchs shrink into insignificance? Does it consist of a judiciary armed with power over life, limb and property? Does it consist of legislators, that they may be enabled and authorized to prefix the title "honorable" to their names? Does it consist of the mere parchment upon which certain figures may be traced and certain words may be read?

No! Our constitutional system consists of the application of the eternal principles of justice to the relations of men to each other under our social compact. In the provisions that no man can be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; that all men shall take an equal part in the affairs of government; that the privilege of habeas corpus shall never be denied; that no private property shall be taken for public uses without proper compensation—you have the essence of our constitutional system, and you have the principles of justice made the birthright of the American citizen, beyond disturbance from any source whatever. You have the rule of equity applied to your everyday existence. You have rights guaranteed to every citizen which the strongest may not invade, which the weakest is free to invoke for his own protection.

DISABLED EX-SOLDIERS GIVEN ENTERTAINMENT

Wounded and disabled ex-soldiers in the government hospital at Sawtelle were entertained at a St. Patrick's Day party arranged by Miss Marion Boogar, reader and pianologue artist, in Ward 10 of the main hospital building yesterday afternoon. Miss Boogar had surprise packages for all patients, containing fudge, nuts and other delicacies, and together with several cakes and other donations, provided a repast to the boys who have been confined in the government institution since the war. Favors in the St. Patrick's Day design were also presented.

Besides several readings and pianologues by Miss Boogar, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Geraldine Gault, the Orpheus Quartet, under the personal supervision of Samuel Glasse, rendered selections.

"SONNY'S" STORY ATTACKED

Charges Contempt of Court in Willis Case Confession; Moves to Strike Out Proceedings

"Sonny" Willis's asserted confession of the murder of Dr. Benjamin B. Baldwin, and for which his mother is now awaiting transportation to the penitentiary to serve a life sentence, was attacked by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison yesterday as a "flagrant contempt for the Superior courts" and a motion was filed in Superior Judge Archbald's court to strike the entire proceedings off the court calendar.

The motion was made in the court where "Sonny" Willis is scheduled to appear on the 25th inst., for his hearing on the charge of murdering Dr. Baldwin, which was filed against him last Monday by Attorney S. S. Hahn, attorney for Mrs. Margaret Willis.

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison told the court that he was appearing on the instructions of Dist.-Atty. Keyes to make the motion to strike the case fro mthe records. As Attorney Hahn was not in court to argue against the motion, Judge Archbald set tomorrow morning for the time to hear the motion.

"Sonny" survived unscathed his first severe interrogation yesterday. He was interrogated by Probation Officer Earl Rumsey, who has been named to check the boy's "confession" to the murder for which his mother was convicted. It was the first official hearing of any kind the lad has been subjected to as officials of the District Attorney's office have refused to pay any attention to "Sonny's" story.

The boy's chief witness against him, when he appears in Superior Judge Archbald's court on the 25th inst. for his preliminary hearing, will be his mother, unless the move by the Prosecutor's office ends all proceedings. Mrs. Willis was subpoenaed yesterday afternoon to testify against the son by Attorney S. S. Hahn. The subpoena will also serve to prevent Mrs. Willis from being taken to the penitentiary before "Sonny's" admission of the crime is heard and tried in court.

Mrs. Willis was convicted several months ago for the murder of Dr. Benjamin Baldwin. When she appeared for her trial she was not called as a witness to testify in her own behalf. Had she been called upon to testify under oath, Attorney Hahn stated yesterday, she would have denied committing the murder.

Not until he was quite certain his mother was going to prison, "Sonny" Willis stated yesterday, did he decide to make his "confession." He had been prevented from doing so before, he said, by the pleadings of his mother. Mrs. Willis stated she has since pleaded with "Sonny" to refute his story but he refuses to do it—that he had been trained never to tell a falsehood and that he will not tell one now when his mother's liberty is at stake.

"Sonny" appeared voluntarily at Probation Officer Rumsey's office yesterday to repeat his "confession." This story, he declared later, was not weakened in the least by the interrogation. He will again go before Probation Officer Rumsey next Saturday for a second interrogation.

Attack Attempt Denied in Answer to $100,000 Suit

Categorical denial of the charges that he attempted to attack Mrs. Savannah E. Lawson in her home at 707 North McCadden Place, Hollywood, was made yesterday by Philip Hunt in an answer he filed to Mrs. Lawson's amended complaint for $100,000 damages.

In her amended complaint, Mrs. Lawson asserted Hunt came to her home August 19, 1924, entered her room, locked the door and attempted to attack her. Mrs. Lawson, who said she was ill at the time, declared the defendant told her her husband would hear of the affair if she resisted him or made any outcry.

WIFE SAYS HUSBAND USED STRAP ON HER

"Well, he didn't treat the horse any better than he did his wife, anyway," Judge Gates commented after hearing the testimony of Mrs. Lillian Benoit, in her suit for divorce from Andre Benoit.

Mrs. Benoit had just related, as one of her charges against her husband, that once when she had remonstrated with him for abusing his steed, he had turned on her with a strap, equipped with a heavy buckle at the end, and belabored her with it.

Diet and Health

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

EXCESS WEIGHT AND SORE TOES

"Dear doctor: I weigh 190 pounds. You see I really have to reduce. Please send me your reducing instructions, for which I am inclosing 10 cents in stamps and a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope.

"My toe has been feeling so stiff lately, just as though I had dropped something on it. What is the cause of this?

"MRS. B."

You are so very much overweight, Mrs. B., that you should be under the personable care of a physician. You must have a thorough examinations including urine and blood analyses. I am not in private practice else I'd like to take you myself. It is a great joy to watch the liberation of a personality from an imprisonment such as yours.

As for your stiff toe, it looks as though the circulation were cut off in some way. I hope you have not diabetes. It is so often associated with excess weight that there is a possibility you have. See your physician at once, please.

WARTS

Miss D.: Warts seem to be of a slightly infectious nature. We know that they will spread from one part of the hand to another. There are many things that will remove them. You might try some of the following home remedies:

After thoroughly scrubbing the hands two or three times a day, rub baking soda on them; or try this, it will remove them in some cases: Take a large-sized potato and cut off a fresh slice each time you use it and rub in on the warts. (The potassium salts of the potato do the work.) Sometimes painting with iodin, once a day, is effective.

If home remedies do not rout them, you should go to a skin specialist. After adult age is reached, warts in a position on the body to be irritated, should be removed for they are possible sources of cancer.

RED NOSES

Mrs. A. M.: For some reason the nose seems to be one of the favorite camping grounds for pimples and boils, and it also seems to be a seat for reflex disturbances from the stomach.

The fiery nose doesn't always mean alcoholism. Occasionally excess tea and coffee and other dietary indiscretions will show themselves in the nose.

How about your general health? Is it up to par? Are you getting your vitamins? Are you an excessive eater of sweets and oils? Look to your diet and increase your physical exercises.

For local treatment, try putting a wet boric acid compress on your nose and leave it on over night. You can strap it on with narrow bands of adhesive. Have a thorough examination to see how you stand physically.

Mrs. G.: You will find our articles on constipation and balanced died of great help. Send for these, inclosing a self-addressed, samped envelope.

VITAMINS

Mrs. A.: The shorter time you cook your vegetables the more the vitamins are preserved. Vegetables needn't be mushy to be palatable. It is better for the teeth to have them firm. Yes, tomatoes are high in V.'s raw or cooked. Cabbage, for V.'s, is better raw.

(Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.)

My dear Followers. When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 15 cents in stamps extra. Address your letter to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 100 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personal. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD RE-ELECTS DEL VALLE

R. F. Del Valle was re-elected president of the Board of Public Service Commissioners yesterday at the regular meeting of the board. Mr. Del Valle completes his seventeenth year as a member of the board and his tenth year as its presiding officer. Members of the board elect one of their number for president each year.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

Presidents' Council

When the seventh and last Presidents' Council of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs occurs next Monday at the Pasadena Shakespeare Club, each of the seven main departments of club activity will have received intensive study this year. "American Citizenship," "Education," "Fine Arts," "International Relations," "Press and Publicity," "Legislation" and now, finally, "Public Welfare," having in turn engrossed the attention of this representative body of executives.

"Public Welfare" includes a number of chairmanships. Dr. Luna B. Phelps reporting for "Child Welfare and Public Health," Mrs. C. J. Colden for "Industry and Employment," Mrs. L. B. Hogue for "Surveys of Public Institutions and Philanthropy" and Mrs. L. J. Gillespie for "Indian Welfare."

Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the district, will accord special honors during the luncheon period to the thirty-eight presidents who have attended every Council and to the thirty others who have either attended or sent a personal representative, a remarkable record of the interest taken in these gatherings when it is recalled that Los Angeles district spreads all the way from Inyo county, through Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties down to Los Angeles county and that many of the clubwomen travel many miles and forego their own club meetings to attend these larger conclaves.

Mrs. Aaron B. Schloss, California director on the General Federation Board, will be an honored guest and speaker at the afternoon session, to which as many club-members as desire may come, as the Pasadena Shakespeare Club auditorium is so large that no limitations are set. Luncheon reservations are limited to five members from each of the 200 clubs in the district.

New Maternity Hospital

An event of this week of exceptional interest to women of Los Angeles is the formal opening on Saturday of Sylvan Lodge, at Santa Monica Boulevard and Hoover street; the newest and in many ways most remarkable of maternity hospitals in Southern California. Equipped for seventy patients, Sylvan Lodge, under the direction of Mrs. Donna E. Bell, its founder, is said to represent the last word in maternity care and treatment, and to make available for Los Angeles mothers the latest devices of science in prenatal and postnatal care.

A reception to clubwomen of Los Angeles and Hollywood will be held Saturday afternoon and evening from 2 till 10 o'clock, when a musical program will be given. Those who are to assist Mrs. Bell in receiving the guests will be: Mrs. Charles Van Valkenberg, Mrs. Hancock Banning, Miss Nancy Grace, Miss Jane Humphreys, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mrs. John S. Myers, Mrs. Myrtle Mathers, Mrs. Allie Simmons Wheeler, Mrs. E. C. Bellows, Mrs. C. C. Ashley, Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. Anthony Weberroth, Mrs. Florence Moore Kreider, Mrs. C. H. Baad, Mrs. Leon Goodshall, Mrs. Charles W. Bennett, Mrs. Jean W. McCracken, Mrs. Letha Journey Probst, Mrs. D. C. MacWatters and Mrs. Edwin Waite of Norfolk.

There will be a public inspection of the institution and grounds.

Birthday Banquet

The Glendale Art Association of which Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh is president, was host at a banquet recently in the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, in celebration of the second anniversary of the founding of the organization.

Covers were laid for 300 including members and guests. George H. Barnes, president of the American Association of Reforestation and Charles Farwell Edson, district chairman of the Ellsteddfod movement, were speakers.

Five-minute talks were made by John W. Cotton, etcher, Mrs. Max L. Greene, director of dramatics, and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the Glendale Music Club.

Musical numbers were given by Theodore Kolin, former director of the international orchestra in London; Keaumoku Lewis, of Hawaii; Mrs. Harry McMullin, vocalist, and Christine Edwards, violinist. Reading by Geraldine Jacobi Russell of Burbank and an original poem read by Mrs. Louis R. Waite of Hollywood, dedicated to Mrs. Ballagh, were closing numbers.

John W. Cotton and Walter L. Cheever are having an exhibit at the Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse this month. J. Stephen Ward is now exhibiting his paintings in the Van Grove Studio, 337 North Brand Boulevard.

Nell Walker Warner, whose studies of eucalypti are much admired, has recently been admitted as a member of the California Art Club.

Mrs. Parmlee has been inspecting the southern chapters on her way to the national convention at Glacier National Park in June and will continue her inspection among the northern chapters en route East.

Mrs. A. E. Wallace will give some song numbers during the afternoon. The hostesses will be Mrs. Harry Petermeyer, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Bruce McAvery, Mrs. J. Leslie Abbott, Miss Ivy Nettlehorst, Mrs. W. Gillespie and Mrs. J. O. Campbell. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Petersmeyer at 71071.

Thursday night a program with representatives from the benevolent, educational, religious and civic organizations will acquaint all present with the varied activities of the community. Friday evening a fashion show will be presented. As the club is giving this exhibit with no object but that of boosting local industries and strengthening the community spirit, no admission will be charged to the exhibit or any of the entertainments.

PLAN TO DEPORT MOTHER CHAPLIN

Immigration Officers Issue Order, Say Reports

Comedian Plans to Keep Her Somewhere in America

May Send Her to Mexico or Dominion of Canada

Mrs. Hannah Chaplin, aged mother of Charlie and Sidney Chaplin, must leave this country before the 26th inst., according to word received here from Washington today. The immigration authorities are said to have ordered her deportation.

Sid Chaplin at his home last night said he has received no word that the decision against his mother is final. If it proves to be so, however, he said she probably will be sent into Mexico or Canada where he and Charlie can see her.

"I think the personal contact with Charlie and myself has been very good for my mother," he said. "She is tremendously improved. We wouldn't want her to go so far away that we couldn't get down to see her."

After a telephone conversation with his brother, Sid declared Charlie has received no word either. Charlie also is in favor of having his mother to Mexico or Canada if she must leave this country, he said.

PHYSICALLY ILL

He declared Mrs. Chaplin is mentally in much better health than she was, but is physically ill. She is not in a condition to travel, he declared.

The comedian said his mother is at a private residence "within five minutes' ride of the studio." Chaplin's studio is on La Brea just south of Sunset Boulevard.

The action of the immigration officials is said to have followed an application by Nathan Burkan, attorney for the Chaplin brothers, for an extension of time of Mrs. Chaplin's stay in this country. The aged woman is suffering from a neurotic affliction and has been under treatment here for some time.

She was given permission to enter this country at the close of the war for a period of one year, after her sons vouched that she would not become a public charge. This period lapsed in 1922 and was extended at the request of the Chaplins.

Mrs. Chaplin, herself an actress, was mentally deranged by shell shocks during one of the first German air raids on London. It was believed she might completely regain her health under expert treatment.

There is no recourse to the Chaplins once the immigration authorities have acted, it is said.

AFFIDAVITS PRESENTED

Attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin in Washington presented affidavits by Dr. Homer S. Wilson and Dr. T. T. Aaxline, of Los Angeles, who attended Mrs. Chaplin, declaring that she is only suffering from a severe mental shock and that her improvement during the past year has been steady. However, they expressed the belief that the long trip back to England would cause a severe setback from which she might not recover.

Affidavits of Charlie and Sydney Chaplin, which were made a part of the department's record, expressed the belief that the great improvement in Mrs. Chaplin's condition was due to their being near her.

Washington attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin expressed the opinion that the secretary's letter did not represent final action and said they hoped for further consideration before the 26th inst.

HEARING OF MME. LYNNE TOMORROW

Defendant Unable to Give Bail in Beauty-Parlor Death Case

Mrs. Mary Electra Lawrence, also known as Mme. Electra Lynne, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Scott on a complaint charging manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Jesse Gilchrist, Pasadena business woman, which occurred several days ago in Mme. Lynne's beauty parlors at 1825 Morgan Place. Preliminary hearing was set for tomorrow at 2 p.m., and bail was set at $5000, which she had not made late yesterday.

The complaint was issued against Mme. Lynne Monday after a Coroner's jury had found that Mrs. Gilchrist came to her death "from phenol poisoning administered in a skin-peeling operation by Mme. Lynne.

Several friends of the beauty doctor requested Justice Scott to release her on her own recognizance. He declined to do so and fixed bail at the amount recommended by the District Attorney's office.

CHAMBER PROTESTS OIL-BURNING PERMITS

The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce yesterday filed a formal protest with the County Board of Supervisors against the issuance of additional permits for the burning of La Brea oil field sump holes. A majority of the oil lakes are in the city limits, it is believed, where a permit cannot be obtained but the chamber asked that the county refuse permits to burn out those not in the city. The protest was filed as a result of hundreds of complaints made by Hollywood residents following a sumphole fire recently which threw out a black cloud of heavy smoke that hung over Hollywood for days.

HUMANE COMMISSION REPORTS ANIMAL CARE

Twenty-seven large animals, whose days of usefulness had ended, were put to a merciful death by the Humane Animal Commission during the month of February, according to a report of the commission yesterday. The commission also suspended sixteen large animals from labor during the month, issued thirteen warnings and reprimands, investigated 111 cases, caused two arrests and examined a total of 384 large animals. In its work with small animals, the commission during the month put to death 334 homeless dogs and seventy cats, and impounded a total of 413 dogs, of which seventy were returned to their owners.

BORZAGE AND GILBERT LEAVE FOR VACATION

Frank Borzage, motion-picture director, and John Gilbert, actor, left Los Angeles yesterday on a brief vacation. Borzage has just finished "The Circle," at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and Gilbert recently donned his crown prince make-up in Erich Von Stroheim's modernized "Merry Widow" for the last time. Both expect to be back at work in Culver City in about a month.

Clean Clothes Wear Longer, Experts Say

Cincinnati, Ohio. — Clothes naturally undergo mechanical friction and strain in wearing, according to fabric experts here.

If the fabric is filled, either all over or in spots, with fine chalk dust or oil spots carrying mineral particles, these solids act as does sandpaper cutting and wearing the nap.

Food spots decompose and rot the material. Fruit juices contain acid which burns into the fibre.

All these are removed in the cleaning process if you send the garment to a master cleaner who owns his plant and knows the science in his business. National campaign for your protection. —[Advertisement.

VEAL CUTLETS ITALIAN

Have the butcher cut rib veal cutlets three-quarters of an inch thick and trim nicely; dredge them with pepper and salt, roll in melted butter, roll in grated Parmesan cheese, and cover with beaten egg; cover with sifted stale bread crumbs and seasoned with salt and pepper and saute in melted butter until tender. Cover a hot serving platter with cooked macaroni mixed with Italian sauce, lay on this the cooked cutlets and cover each cutlet with a thin slice of fried ham.

CALIFORNIA FRUIT TART

Scald one cupful of milk in a double boiler; mix half a cupful of sugar with one-third of a cupful of sifted flour and pour over them the scalded milk, mix well, place in the double boiler and stir and cook until it starts to thicken; add one well-beaten egg and stir until thick. Cool slightly, add half a cupful of seedless raisins and pour into a baked pie shell. Rub one cupful of apricot jam through a sieve and spread over the custard; cover the jam with a layer of peeled and sliced bananas and just before serving cover with unsweetened whipped cream.

RABBIT PIE

Cut up a Belgian hare as for stew, removing all large bones; line a deep pudding dish with a good pie pastry and put in a layer of the hare, cover the hare with a layer of sliced hard boiled eggs, cover the eggs with a little finely grated onion and cover these with small dice of cooked ham. Continue this method until the dish is nearly filled and pour over four tablespoonfuls of melted butter and one cupful of water in which has been mixed one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoonful of chutney syrup, and one tablespoonful of tomato catsup. Cover with pastry, leaving a vent in the center, and bake in a moderate oven one and a half hours. Serve in the same dish.

BEETS SAUTED

Cut boiled and peeled beets in even sized small dice. Heat four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add the beets, sprinkle over a seasoning of salt and pepper, a little sugar, and a few drops of lemon juice. Toss or stir lightly until thoroughly heated; pile the beets in a hot serving dish, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, and, if liked, a few chopped mint leaves.

PUMPKIN LEMON PIE

Beat four tablespoonfuls of butter and half a cupful of sugar to a light cream and beat into them the well-beaten yolks of two eggs, the grated rind and juice of half a lemon, one quarter of a teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon and nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of orange juice, half a cupful of cream, one and a half cupfuls of cooked and strained pumpkin, and the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Pour the mixture into a pastry lined pie tin and bake in a moderate oven.

BY THE SENTRY ON HIS BEAT

"I favor a maximum development of water and power resources of the Colorado River, looking to a maximum benefit for Southern California in general and Los Angeles in particular," was the statement made yesterday by Judge Bledsoe in an answer to a question as to his stand on Colorado River development.

From all parts of the city women voters volunteered yesterday at the Bledsoe-for-Mayor headquarters, 425 South Spring street, to assist in the campaign to elect Judge Bledsoe as Mayor. Campaign Manager George B. Bush expects to announce within a few days the location of the ten division headquarters to be located in various parts of the city and from these an intensive house-to-house campaign will be conducted by the volunteers on behalf of Judge Bledsoe's candidacy. Judge Bledsoe will be the principal speaker on Friday noon of this week at the meeting of the Hollywood Optimists' Club, and will speak in the evening at the Hotel Alexandria at a dinner given in his and Mrs. Bledsoe's honor by the Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church. On next Saturday noon Judge Bledsoe will address the members of the City Club.

Councilman Mushet yesterday filed his nominating petition for Controller with City Clerk Domingues. His petition contained 1000 names, the maximum permitted by law, and assures his name being placed on the May 5 ballot. Councilman Mushet's friends will base his campaign on his saving of $2,500,000 to the taxpayers by opposing the secret sale of municipal bonds, by his repeal of the occupational business-license tax and his record as City Auditor and as chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee.

Evan Lewis, candidate from the Eighteenth Councilmanic District, who was the first candidate to take out a nominating petition, qualified yesterday, and was the first candidate to do so, his petition being checked and found sufficient to place his name on the May 5 primary election ballot. Frank L. Shaw, also a candidate from the Eighth Councilmanic District, filed his filled petition yesterday. Four new candidates for the Council took out nominating petitions yesterday, making a total to date for the Council of 132. These were;

The executive committee of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee, together with the chairman of the central committees of the ten other Southern California counties, met yesterday at the Clark Hotel to discuss the policy to be worked out for making recommendations for filling vacancies in Federal positions in this section. These places include Judge Bledsoe's district judgeship, as the judge will soon resign to conduct his Mayoralty campaign. It was agreed that the chairman of the Los Angeles county central committee will call together soon the chairman of the ten other county central committees at which a policy will be worked out so that Southern California can make unanimous recommendations to Washington. In the absence of Chairman Ralph Arnold, who is in the East, John Robert White, Jr., presided yesterday.

MYSTERY ATTACKS GROW

Two New Cases Are Reported, Raising Total to Six; Attempt Made to Kidnap Child in One Instance

Two new attempted attacks, in one of which was a child, were added last night to the list of four recent crimes perpetrated on girls and women.

A man attempted to kidnap a 4-year-old daughter of R. Bormax, 3108 Trinity street, at Twenty-eighth and San Pedro streets, last night, but screams from the child brought rescuers. In the excitement that followed the attacker escaped and police are searching for him. The child was rescued before coming to harm.

Three arrests were made in connection with the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, 223 East Eighty-eighth street, kidnaped by robbers early Sunday morning. Police expect to release the prisoners.

Mrs. Bertha Shrum, 24 years of age, was dragged beneath the Pacific Electric trestle on Wall street and attacked last night by a man who had been following her home from a grocery store, she reported to police. She was treated at the Receiving Hospital for cuts and bruises. Detective Lieutenant Harry Frost was detailed to investigate and a squad of police were sent into that district to search for the man. Mrs. Shrum lives at the Clarence Apartments, Ninth and Wall streets.

Additional investigations were being made of reports of attacks upon Frances Bates, 6215 Arroyo Glen, a student at Franklin High School, and Lois Cook, 2949 Raymond avenue. Both girls succeeded in beating off their assailants and escaping.

In the Baker case Detective Lieutenants Strickland and Savage, on instructions of Inspector Chapman, arrested Frank Malack, Charles Moore and Quincy Welch, roommates at 119 North Olive street. Moore, according to Chapman, was Mrs. Baker's companion when the robbers held Mrs. Baker up at Mesa Drive and Rodeo Road at 2 a.m. Sunday, kidnaped her, took her to a lonely spot in the Baldwin Hills and attacked her. In reporting the hold-up and kidnaping to the police, Moore, it is said, gave Malack's name instead of his own and thus aroused suspicion

Whenthe trio were shown, however, to K. C. Hardy of 200 North Vendome avenue, who was robbed earlier in the night, he declared none of them was either of the bandits who held up Miss N. Cable of 709 West Forty-sixth street and himself, outside Miss Cable's home, and got $1350 in jewelry and money. At the same time the bandits stole the car in which they were sitting, the property of Paul Bostwick of the Federal Garage. This was the car used in the Baker and Moore robbery, the police say; it was found mired in Baldwin Hills on Monday and returned to Bostwick. Hardy gave a description of the two robbers corresponding with that given by Moore, and exonerating Moore, Malack and Welch. It was learned that Mrs. Baker is Welch's sister.

Miss Bates was siezed by two men Monday night near West Avenue 54 and Irvington street, forced into a car, and taken to the slopes of Mt. Washington. She put up a struggle against her captors and managed to get free. Miss Cook was dragged into a car at Kenwood evenue and Jefferson street, she struggled until the men let her go. Inspector Chapman is in charge of both these investigations.

Detective Lieutenant Torres of the Hollenbeck Division yesterday arrested Sam Trujillo, an auto salesman of Belvedere, charged with an attack the 4th inst. on Miss Beatrice Ruiz, 19 years of age, of 3031 East Side Boulevard. A complaint in this case was issued by the District Attorney and Trujillo will be arraigned in Justice Court today, according to Torres.

Chief of Police Heath yesterday issued a statement explaining police methods in the campaign to be waged against men who accost and molest women and children. He asks all women and children who are accosted to report immediately such occurence in writing to him, marking such letters "confidential." All facts in the letters will be kept secret as well as the names of the persons reporting, if they so desire.

Chief Heath announced that the special detective detail appointed by him can be trusted to investigate all cases thoroughly and to keep any confidence intrusted to them. The personnel of the detail will be kept secret, he said.

"We intend to make Los Angeles a city in which all women will be absolutely safe and secure from molestation," the statement said. "We need the co-operation of all citizens, and we are calling on all groups and organizations of women to spread the knowledge that we have a special investigating service ready to act."

A trio of American pioneers in the task of bringing enlightenment and education to the Near East will arrive in Los Angeles next Friday as envoys from the five American-endowed colleges of the Levant. They will tour the State in a campaign to arouse interest in the work of the Near East colleges.

The three envoys are Bayard Dodge, president of the American University of Beirut, Syria; Dr. E. St. John Ward, dean of the medical faculty at Beirut, and Mrs. Herbert Adams Gibbons, distinguished Near East Relief worker and author.

A State itinerary for the three educators is being arranged by the California Committee for American Education in the Levant, of which Mrs. W. F. Thurston is secretary. She is being assisted in this work by a local committee composed of Rev. W. Bertrand Stevens, coadjutor bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles, chairman; Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, Mrs. John C. Macfarland, Mrs. Henry Lissner, Thomas A. J. Dockweiler, Arthur S. Heineman and Judge Frederick C. Valentine. The local committee has established headquarters at the new Chamber of Commerce Building.

Though the program of entertainment for the visitors has not yet been announced, it is expected that a mass meeting will be arranged at which they will describe the work of the colleges and what American initiative and perseverance have accomplished in easing the lot of the Near East.

The five American-endowed institutions are Robert College, Constantinople; International College f Smyrna; American University of Beirut; Constantinople Woman's College and the Sofia American School, Samokov. Caleb F. Gates is founder of Robert College and Kathryn N. Adams is president of the Constantinople Woman's College.

The five colleges were virtually the only institutions of their kind to survive the tremendous upheavals and wars in the Near East and have become centers of tremendous influence in that section of the world. Though founded as missionary outposts they have outgrown sectarian limitations and now give instruction to students of twenty-six different nationalities and fifteen differing religious sects.

President Dodge of the University of Beirut is a son of Cleveland Dodge of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation. Dr. Ward, in the first year of the World War, headed two missions of the American Red Cross with the Turkish army and engaged in relief work in Armenia after the massacres there. Mrs. Gibbons has written several books on her experiences in the Levant. She is a survivor of the new historic Adena massacre.

BUSINESS MEN SCHOOLED

Acting on its educational purpose, the National Business Show in the Ambassador auditorium yesterday schooled hundreds of Los Angeles business men in the art of detecting forged documents. With Police Officer E. T. Mitchell functioning in the local police department's exhibit, explanations were given of the work of William L. Ryan, convicted Los Angeles forger, now serving a sentence of 364 years on twenty-six counts in San Quentin penitentiary. Several score checks, which Ryan was accused of forging, were on display.

Traffic Officer O. R. Conger was removed from his post at Seventh and Broadway temporarily, and was placed in the exhibit, where he interpreted the new traffic laws to business men, who had been too absorbed in their occupations to take steps preventing themselves being classed as jaywalkers.

Welcoming several score members of the Los Angeles Association of Purchasing Agents, F. E. Dickson, purchasing agent of the city of Glendale, presided throughout the day in a booth entered by the Buyers' Association.

Contests were conducted in an adding machine exhibit to determine the most speedy operator. With strange billing copy placed suddenly before them, several girls operated Burroughs machines, which not only wrote the bill, but computed discounts, extended the bill and carried the total of each bill for a grand total of all bills for the day. The competitive event, which will be continued daily, was won yesterday by Miss Marjorie Miller.

MAN WOUNDED IN LIQUOR FEUD

Companion Held on Charge of Deadly Assault

Two Warrants to be Asked for Others Today

Still is Found in Home Where Battle Was Held

Complaints charging violation of the State liquor laws and the probable death of one man loomed last night as the aftermath of an asserted bootleg feud which resulted in a free-for-all fist and gun battle at 846 San Vicente street, Southgate, Monday night.

Capt. James Bond, head of the liquor squad of the Sheriff's office announced last night that he will ask at least two warrants this morning for persons who are asserted to have taken part in the battle. It is probable that other arrests will be made later, as well.

Meanwhile W. T. Jones, whose address was given by his wife, Alvena, yesterday, as 856½ San Vicente street, was reported on the brink of death at the Southgate Hospital. A report received at the Sheriff's office was to the effect that he was hemorrhaging from the lungs. He was shot in the lung with a .22-caliber rifle bullet in the battle.

According to the stories told yesterday by the principals to Capt. William Bright, head of the Sheriff's homicide squad, Deputies Gregg, Rohn, Hackett, Hanby, Allen and Sweesy and Stenographer Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walker were living together in Southgate, Jones and Walker, while downtown Monday night, were asserted to have had some drinks, and Walker is said to have become obstreperous. As the result of an attempt to quiet him, he is accused of shooting Jones. Walker is held in the County Jail charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Walker, however, refused to state who had shot him, telling two different stories to investigating officials.

When deputy sheriffs arrived Monday night to investigate the shooting they said they found eleven barrels of mash and a still at the address where the fight took place.

TO BEAUTIFY COLISEUM

The finance committee of the City Council has decided to beautify the approach to the Coliseum at Exposition Park at once, so that all can be ready for the coming Shrine convention next June. The committee decided to ask for $10,000 to be expended for trees, flower beds, lawns and labor.

CLARK CONVICTION UPHELD

State Supreme Court Denies Rehearing in Murder Case; Holds Proof of Killing Sufficient

Everett Drew Clark, psychic, seer, furniture salesman and sheik, must serve the remainder of his life behind the bars of San Quentin Penitentiary, the State Supreme Court ruled yesterday when it denied a rehearing on his conviction for the murder of George Schick, wealthy San Diego investment broker.

Clark's case, of tremendous legal interest because the body of Schick had never been found nor had an actual eye witness of a killing been discovered, had been carried through the District Court of Appeals, where the verdict had been affirmed, to the Supreme Court by his counsel. In ruling yesterday the higher court averred that in its opinion sufficient circumstantial proof of the killing had been presented by the State.

George E. Schick, his wife and two children, came to San Diego in the fall of 1922 after Schick had made a fortune in the coal business during the war. Schick financed an investment company there. Shortly afterward Mrs. Schick met Clark, then a portly disciple of Zarathustra masquerading as a furniture salesman, and became quite well acquainted with him and Mrs. Clark.

HISTORY OF CASE

The acquaintanceship ripened to the point where Clark induced Schick to purchase a home, which the Clarks occupied rent free. During this period Clark, the psychic, gained a weird ascendancy over Mrs. Schick—all this being related by herself at the time of the trial.

On February 7, 1923, Clark arrived at the Schick home in possession of Schick's automobile and wallet, his keys, his lodge emblem, his rings and other personal effects. He told a story of a hurried flight by Schick into Mexico in an attempt to escape from some unknown nemesis. Schick was never heard from directly again.

In July of that same year, however, Clark told Mrs. Schick of a trip taken by her husband on an inland lake in Mexico, of how her husband had been attacked by pirates and killed, and of how his body had later been eaten by sharks.

In October, 1923, Mrs. Schick, at the request of her brother-in-law, Martin J. Schick, took the matter to the authorities.

Dist.-Atty. Chester C. Kempley of San Diego, to whom the credit of the investigation and later successful prosecution is due, uncovered evidence of a tremendous fight the night previous to Schick's disappearance in the Clark home, a romantic bungalow on the rim of Coyote Gulch, and of a later fire which burned fitfully for three days and nights after the fight, and from which came the odor of burning bones and flesh.

CONTROLLED FORTUNE

It was also show that after Schick's disappearance Clark, through the exercise of his psychic claims and purported manifestations, had wormed his way into Mrs. Shick's life to the extent that he was in absolute control of her husband's fortune, and later became the father of a baby boy, born to Mrs. Schick just a few days before Clark's trial.

A $50,000 reward offered by Martin J. Schick for evidence—actual evidence—concerning his brother's death or proving him still alive, still stands.

The evidence of the fight in the Clark home, and of the fire and of the various other co-ordinated items, was considered by the jury proof of death and of murder. Clark was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. The verdict was affirmed by the District Court of Appeal, and reaffirmed yesterday by the Supreme Court.

Woman Admits Her Failure as Mate Chooser

Mrs. Corella E. Foster admitted that picking husbands was not her strong suit. She told Judge Gates that she had chosen three and had found it necessary to discard all of them.

She was in alimony court yesterday to collect support from her third, George F. Foster of Inglewood, pending trial of her third divorce suit.

"He told me that he would make things easy for me if I married him, so I did. Then I found out that I had to make four beds, cook a lot of meals and work harder than ever," she complained. She was awarded $30 a month.

VON KLEINSMID TO SPEAK

Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, will address a special assembly of the students of the Glendale High School this morning at 9 o'clock. Yesterday he addressed the Lions' Club of Riverside and in the afternoon was the speaker before the Woman's Club of that city.

Says People Put Faith in Goods Well Advertised

"The recent boom in the stock market is evidence of the people's faith in advertisers and advertised products," declared Morris Ebersole in an address yesterday before the Advertising Club at the Biltmore Hotel.

"Moses was the greatest salesman that ever lived," said Mr. Ebersole. "With no blue prints nor prospect but with only faith, horse-sense and energy to back him up he sold thousands of lots in the Promised Land to the Hebrew slaves, taking personal charge of the colonization party. It wasn't the fault of Moses that the Israelites mutinied and limped along for forty years, compelling them to deed their valuable real estate to their descendants."

Don Francisco, in an address on "Some Advertising Gold Bricks," said that one trouble with advertising copy today is that there is too much "I" and not enough "U" in it.

A. D. Smith, representing the California Advertisers' Service Association, told the audience that C.A.S.A. means "confidence, appreciation, sincerity and ambition." The fact that there are many failures in the field of advertising is not an indication that advertising does not pay but of the misapplication or misuse of the medium through which sales are made, said Mr. Smith.

Don Thomas, secretary of the club, announced that the speaker next Tuesday will be Carl Byer of New York. A musical program was furnished by Miss Florence Duvall, violinist, and Miss Olive England, pianist, who were introduced by Irving Smith, chairman of the day.

SAM GINN IN JAIL ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Sam Ginn, Chinese cook, who has been employed in many Los Angeles homes and restaurants during the last twenty-five years, is held in the County Jail on a charge of violating the Harrison Narcotic Act. Federal Narcotic Agents Edmonds and Jourdin arrested Ginn yesterday in a restaurant at Santa Barbara where, they reported, he sold them $40 worth of opium. The agents said Ginn refused to disclose the source of his asserted supply of opium but that they found evidence of its having come from San Francisco. Seach of the restaurant failed to disclose more of the drug.

ORLANDO'S TAG GAME IS HALTED

Police Issue Complaint Against Man Who Gets Out of Patton Frequently

Frank Orlando, who is "crazy like a fox," according to police, will not play tag with California authorities again if it can be helped. The first step in halting Orlando's favorite pastime of having himself declared insane after raiding various and sundry pockets by use of his agile fingers, was taken yesterday with the issuance against him of a complaint charging attempted grand larceny, though he is still listed as a fugitive from Patton.

Orlando's rather unique career, detectives said, began in Kansas City and Kentucky, where his proficiency as a pickpocket made him a thorn in the side of police. He was arrested here the first time on July 4, 1923, for picking pockets, but convinced officials that he was insane as he was about to go on trial in Superior Court and had himself transported to Patton.

He escaped from that institution on September 5, last, to be rearrested a month or so later on another charge of pocket-picking. He returned to Patton, but broke out again and was arrested a third time last January, received a suspended sentence for pocket-picking and went back to Patton. Out again, he attempted to raid the pocket of C. C. Cole, a street-car employee, last Saturday, but bungled the job and was arrested.

This finally convinced police that Orlando was "crazy like a fox" and that instead of Patton he should go to San Quentin.

DELAY INQUEST WHILE DEATH CAR IS HUNTED

Inability of detectives to locate witnesses to the accident in which Andrew J. Barkley, 92 years of age, oldest deputy sheriff in the county service, was killed early Monday morning, has caused an indefinite postponement of the inquest into the death. The aged officer was on the way to his home at 318 East Tenth street when the death car struck him and sped away. His mangled body, with head severed and back broken in two places, was found a short time later near the intersection of Ninth and Los Angeles streets. The body is being held at the L. F. Utter mortuary.

VETERAN GETS DECREE FROM PACIFIST MATE

Mamie W. Frazier did not believe in war. When her husband, Edward Frazier, wanted to enlist in the world conflict, she talked at length against his determination and at last informed him that he he went to war she never would live with him again. Frazier went and she kept her word, he informed Judge Summerfield yesterday. The court granted him a divorce decree. Frazier was represented by Attorney Frank McDonald.

SIGN BIG STAR

JOHN BARRYMORE TO APPEAR IN WARNER FILMS

By Grace Kingsley

John Barrymore is again to be seen on the screen, according to announcement just received.

JOHN BARRYMORE

Warner Brothers have just signed the internationally known star to appear in a series of pictures of the size and magnitude of "Beau Brummel." According to the conditions of the contract, Barrymore is to appear exclusively in Warner pictures for a period of years. That is, he will make pictures between theater engagements with a certain numbre definitely agreed upon at the start of each year.

Barrymore is recognized as the leading actor before the public today. His return to the screen will undoubtedly be hailed with delight by his millions of admirers.

The first picture is to be started about the middle of May, when his present stage engagement is concluded. The star will return to Hollywood after an absence of a little more than a year.

A story is now being chosen that the Warners promise will equal, if not surpass, "Beau Brummel," the last picture in which he appeared.

PARAMOUNT REVEALS BRISK ACTIVITIES

Several announcements of importance came forth from the Paramount Studios yesterday.

As his last vehicle for this concern before taking up his contract with Cecil B. De Mille, Rod La Rocque has commenced work as the male lead in "Night Life in New York" at Lasky's Long Island Studio. Allan Dwan is directing and a cast of unusual merit includes Dorothy Gish, Ernest Torrence, George Hackathorne and others.

Paramount officials had intended to use La Rocque in "The Cost of Folly," with Gloria Swanson, but, after he had journeyed to Europe where exteriors were to be made, plans were changed and Miami, Florida, was selected as the outdoor locale. Now the illness of Miss Swanson has caused the making of this picture to be temporarily postponed.

Upon completion of "Night Life of New York," La Rocque will come to Hollywood to start with De Mille.

Naturally in connection with the fascinating Mr. La Rocque, one thinks of the equally fascinating Pola Negri. Miss Negri of course expects to see Mr. La Rocque in New York, for which place she departed yesterday on her way to Europe.

Pola Negri will sail from New York on March 21. Immediately upon her arrival in Europe, she will go to the home of her mother in Poland, where she will spend two weeks. She will also visit many of the European cities and will see many of the newer plays of the continent. In Paris she plans to purchase part of her summer and fall wardrobe.

When she returns in April, Miss Negri will start on her eleventh starring vehicle for Paramount at the West Coast studio.

Another interesting announcement is to the effect that Paul Bern is to direct "Grounds for Divorce," the delightful play by Guy Bolton which has been serving Ina Claire on the stage. Bern has just completed "The Dressmaker from Paris," and has made such an excellent job of it that Paramount has assigned to him the delicate job of transferring to the screen one of the subtle plays of the year.

Leatrice Joy will have the role which Miss Claire created on the stage, and says that she is more than delighted at the prospect of a chance to play a role that will give her a chance for the display of comedy light and shades as well as emotional power.

James Cruze started his first directorial work in nearly two months at the Lasky Studio, when, the first of the week, production of Edna Ferber's and George Kauffman's stage play, "Welcome Home," got under way.

Heading the cast is Lois Wilson in a lead ideally suited to her, and one which, according to other members of the cast, will give her a wider range than any of her recent pictures. Luke Cosgrove is to be featured in the old man role which stole the stage play. Warner Baxter plays the male lead. Margaret Morris, a baby star of 1924, about whom little has been heard recently, due to her serial tie-up, enters the Paramount ranks in an ingenue role. Ben Hendricks, Josephine Crowell and Adele Watson complete the cast. Walter Woods adapted the story to the screen.

George Fitzmaurice Home Soon

George Fitzmaurice will leave for home today. The director will start today on the first leg of his trip to Paris, the city of his birth, where he will spend a short vacation before returning to Hollywood to resume motion-picture production in association with Samuel Goldwyn.

En route to France, Fitzmaurice will deliver his latest production, "His Supreme Moment," to Mr. Goldwyn, who is now in New York, and First National, distributors of Goldwyn-Fitzmaurice productions. Incidentally, the director will confer with Mr. Goldwyn regarding the choice of story for their next joint picture which is scheduled to start immediately after Fitzmaurice's return early in the summer.

During George Fitzmaurice's absence, Samuel Goldwyn will produce "Stella Dallas," which Henry King will direct, and "Partners Again," No. 3 of the Potash and Perlmutter series.

Signs Trilby Clark

Hunt Stromberg, that astute and hard-working young producer whose Priscilla Dean and Harry Carey productions are features of the Producers' Distributing Corporation release, appears to be the busiest bee in Hollywood these days. Not only has he launched a special production this week at the Hollywood studios, which he is personally directing, but he announces the discovery of a potential star.

Trilby Clark is his latest discovery, and he has signed her to a five-year contract to play featured roles in his forthcoming productions. After carefully observing Miss Clark's work opposite Harry Carey in "Silent Sanderson," Mr. Stromberg declared that this young Australian actress is one of the best potential "bets" among the new screen faces today.

Miss Clark was born in Australia and gained her first stage experience there in musical comedy. She made her motion-picture debut with an Anzac film company, became interested in pictures and came to New York. After playing in the Greenwich Village Follies, she arrived in Los Angeles about a year ago and soon was playing a leading feminine role opposite Jack Gilbert for Fox, and later opposite Buck Jones. Mr. Stromberg has not decided in what picture Miss Clark will make her debut on the new contract.

"The Romance of An Actress" is the intriguing title of the special production which the producer is now directing. It boasts a particularly strong cast which includes Elaine Hammerstein, Theodore Von Eltz, Stuart Holmes, Russell Simpson, Charles Murray, John Sainpolis, Dereslys Perdue, Pat Hartigan and Mrs. Charles Craig. Miss Hammerstein, whose life has been spent in a theatrical environment, is admirably suited to enact the principal role of this original story by Harvey Gates.

BURGLAR TAKES CLOTHING

Clothing valued at $250 was stolen Monday night from the home of George Hodapp at 4482 Rosewood avenue, according to Hollywood police reports. Entrance to the house was gained through a rear door. A second burglary report was filed by L. C. Armstrong, 1408 Formosa avenue, who told of the loss of several hundred dollars worth of jewelry.

SERVANT PROBLEM BRINGS LAUGHS IN PASADENA COMEDY

"A woman needs an emotional outlet. When her husband isn't around to get angry at, she tries out the servant. Hence the servant problem."

This noble sentiment expressed by the male of the species has given rise to one of the cleverest little comedies to come to the Pasadena Community Theater, called "The Hiring Line," by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford.

The play is full of laughs, of a more or less farcical nature dealing with the eternal battle of man versus woman over the servant problem. Come to think of it, it deals with the eternal battle of man versus woman over everything which comes up. At times hilarious male laughter rings out in the audience, and then again, complete silence from the men while the women enjoy "digs" at the men. So you see it has a double appeal.

The cast is quite well chosen and contains personalities which add materially to the humorous arrangement of the lines. The majority of the laughs go to Ralph Hilliar as the detective disguised as a butler; his wife, played by Mrs. Robert Loofbourrow, and Douglass Montgomery as the chauffeur. However, it is rather difficult to distinguish between the many characters, who blend quite well into the general smoothness of the play.

The main plot centers around the wife of a New Jersey man, who tries to persuade her husband to move to New York. She treats the servants badly thinking to finally starve him out. The results are more or less complicated, with his daughter in love with a neighboring chauffeur who turns out to be a Senator's son in disguise.

Helen Eaton Behymer as the city-loving wife does some very clever acting, and John Duncan as her bewildered, plotted-against husband is quite good. Perhaps one of the best bits in the play is his shocked surprise when he finds that a much-mentioned love letter, which is filled with love words of the lovey-dovey variety, was written by himself to his wife before their marriage. His horror at his own weakness in writing it is very funny.

Camille Bobilya, as the daughter, Dorothy, is very good. Marcia Kerckhoff appearing as the flirtatious neighbor has a sort of lazy charm, and Paul Fort as her husband qualifies quite well, as does Mervin Williams, in the role of the actor friend who says in an accumulated English accent, "There is nothing quite like the silly old grapefruit in the morning, eh, what?"

PAVLOWA TROUPE TO ARRIVE TODAY

Anna Pavlowa and her hundred musicians and dancers are en route to Los Angeles in a special train of five cars carrying the equipment for her twelve performances opening at Philharmonic Auditorium this evening with the new Spanish ballet, "Don Quixote."

Because of the glowing accounts of Pavlowa's latest creation, as well as the report that the present may constitute the famed dancer's final visit here, there is considerable interest in her coming.

The engagement beginning tonight comprises the longest Pavlowa has ever arranged in Los Angeles. Incidental engagements have been arranged for Long Beach, Pasadena, Pomona and San Bernardino, and after filling these the star and her Ballet Russe will journey to the City of Mexico, there to terminate her American tour in a season of four weeks.

DADMUN, BARITONE, WINS APPROBATION

BY FRANCIS KENDIG

The attraction at the northeast corner of Fifth and Olive last night—within—was Royal Dadmun, baritone, who gave a concert of entertaining order. A good-sized audience was present and displayed splendid appreciation of the singer's abilities.

More than any other single reason for the success of Mr. Dadmun is the fact that he presents a program made up almost entirely of songs in English, rendered understandably and sung with polish as to make them thoroughly charming. Mr. Dadmun is an American singer singing to American people, and songs which they can enjoy, for the most part, without any especial musical education, or "libretto" or other aid than their ears and intelligence.

His four Russian songs, given with English translations, were among his best renditions, principally because these songs were the most colorful. They are not so well known as his English, American or classic offerings. However, his style in Handel's "Where'er You Walk," which opened the evening, leaves not a great deal to be desired.

The French songs he did especially with esprit; his German songs brought forth a certain type of vocal virility not present in scarcely any other numbers. For the most part he sings softly, quietly, wooingly, without any attempt to be startling or brilliant.

In fact Royal Dadmun is proof positive that a person can make a considerable reputation as a singer, without a voice. Not that Mr. Dadmun is lacking in just that, but the quality of his voice has no great charm; on the other hand it never offends. It is the finish and beauty of his interpretations that have made for him his reputation. He is not sufficiently a great singer to merit superlatives, but students especially would not do amiss in hearing him, for he is an example of so many of the elements which may be acquired, and must needs go into the making of a successful singer.

NEW STAR FOR ROBINSON

The engagement of Doris Lloyd as a star in the production of "The Ruined Lady," by the Dobinson Players, Glendale, is welcome news to the theatergoer who loves high class acting. The play is in rehearsal to follow "Barnum is Right." Miss Lloyd was induced to take an engagement in Glendale by Fred J. Butler, whose direction means so much to the legitimate stage. Mrs. Dobinson is negotiating for "Chains," one of the big dramatic successes of the East in which Miss Lloyd will follow "The Ruined Lady."

GLENDALE PLANS THREE-DAY FIESTA

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

GLENDALE, March 10.—An association formed to promote Glendale's three-day fiesta, to open on Admission Day, September 9, plans to incorporate for $10,000. Funds will be subscribed by persons interested in carrying the plans to a successful conclusion.

John Steven McGroarty will be a guest of the association at a banquet Thursday, the 19th inst., when plans already outlined will be submitted to him and when the assistance of the author of the Mission Play will be sought in staging the historical features of the fiesta.

Mr. McGroarty has promised to lend his aid in the supervision of the spectacle, but has warned the executive committees of the association against attempting to stage a pageant on too ambitious a scale without first making sure of the requisite finances that would be needed to carry it through successfully and without leaving a deficit.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, March 10. — Announcement was made today that D. R. He assumes his new duties with Old Baldy on the 15th inst.

The board of directors of this house numbering R. W. Powell, George B. Harrison, T. S. Gosney, C. S. Sherwood, H. H. Crawford, A. T. Hamalton and T. R. Woodbridge, has just organized with Mr. Powell as president and Mr. Woodbridge as vice-president.

The cattle were said to have been stolen from a ranch near Badger and sold through a Sultana butcher shop. Slater was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, theft of cattle and changing brands.

HAS RADIO SET FAR BELOW SEA LEVEL

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

CALIPATRIA, March 10.—Capt. Charles Davis, sage of Mullet Island, in Salton Sea, claims to have the "lowest down" radio receiving apparatus in the world. The surface of Salton Sea at Mullet Island is 248 feet below sea level, but despite this fact, he asserts, he tunes in and hears KHJ and other broadcasting stations clearly. Capt. Davis even advances the theory that the radio waves follow the earth's surface down to the Salton Sea level more readily than they climb high mountain peaks.

GILL FLAYS STATE ROAD FUND PLAN

Distribution of Revenue on Highways is Cited as Unfair to Southland

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 10. Refusing to approve the majority report of the Governor's committee of nine of the highway advisors, J. B. Gill of San Bernardino, today forwarded a minority report to Gov. Richardson, urging that the thirteen southern counties, which pay 57 per cent of the taxes that finance bonds, be apportioned more than 35 per cent of the fund, as now allocated. Mr. Gill agrees with the majority program of raising the vehicle and gasoline tax, but states in regard to apportionment:

"The committee recognizes the fact that the thirteen southern counties comprise the Los Angeles district and is composed of the following: Mono, Inyo, San Luis Obispo, Tulare, Kern, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Diego and Imperial.

"The San Francisco district is represented by the forty-five northern counties.

"We find that the thirteen southern counties contain 47.8 per cent of the area, 46.5 per cent of the population, and 51.3 per cent of the taxable wealth of the State, and in 1924 registered 57.2 per cent of the State's motor vehicles. The thirteen southern counties have only 36.4 per cent of the mileage of State highways upon which they have received only about 34 per cent of the State's construction money and approximately 35 per cent of the expenditures from the motor vehicle fund.

"The committee also finds that of the $214,343,251 that it is estimated will be required to finish the State system only $73,451,997, or 34.2 per cent will be spent in these counties. Also of the $117,-000,000 that it is estimated will be necessary to construct the 3000 miles of proposed new roads only $31,000,0000 or 26.5 per cent will be spent in the thirteen counties.

"It is needless to state that this unequal distribution of highway and construction funds imposes not only an unjust burden of taxation upon the south as a whole but would result in an unjust and unnecessary obligation upon the taxpayers of the south in the maintenance and upkeep of the State system. Under the present system and the proposed expenditure, the southern counties will be called upon to contribute about 57 per cent of the motor vehicle fund and will receive in return less than 35 per cent of the expenditures upon the roads which they use."

WITHDRAW ACTION AGAINST MONROVIA

LULL IN FIGHT BETWEEN CITY AND RESEARCH ASSOCIATION

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, March 10.—The mandamus proceedings brought by D. J. Gessler, head of the California Science and Research Association, to force City Building Inspector Hutchinson to issue a permit to erect a house in the grounds of the California Science and Research Association in Cloverleaf Canyon have been withdrawn by Lincoln J. Backus, attorney for Mr. Gessler, on a technicality.

Mr. Backus stated today that the action had been withdrawn inasmuch as the plans for the building did not comply with the State housing law as regards to window area. He stated, however, that plans are being made for a house to comply with the regulations as set forth in Inspector Hutchinson's reply to the mandamus action and that a permit for the building would again be asked for from the City Building Inspector.

The refusal of the building inspector to issue a permit to Gessler for a residence on the site of the Research Association, where it is planned to build a colony for physic research and for study of other sciences and the previous refusal of the inspector to issue a building permit to the research association for an auditorium on the grounds have caused a controversy and a legal suit between the research association and the city officials of Monrovia.

STAGE SET FOR TRIAL FOR MURDER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, March 10. When the trial of Irving Denton and L. C. Buntin for the murder of George Turner, king of bootleggers, opened this morning, Superior Judge Crow called all veniremen opposed to capital punishment forward and excused them without further examination.

Alfred F. MacDonald, Los Angeles lawyer, became associated with Attorney W. P. Butcher, Jr., for the defense this morning, and at Butcher's request a continuance until 2 o'clock this afternoon was granted to allow MacDonald time to acquaint himself with the case.

Before the continuance was granted, however, Judge Crow also questioned the veniremen in a body and excused all farmers, mothers with young children and those with illness in their families.

The largest crowd that ever thronged into the Courthouse filled the courtroom and overflowed into the corridors when the case was called this morning.

Denton entered the courtroom accompanied by his wife, and was assisted to the prisoner's chair, still suffering from the effects of his breakdown a week ago. Buntin, however, appeared in high spirits in anticipation of the charge against him being dropped in return for his testimony for the prosecution. He chatted with his attorney, Coleman E. Stewart, several feet away from Denton, who seemed to take little interest in the proceedings. Both the prosecution and defense attorneys have expressed a desire to speed the trial.

Pomona Considers Ways and Means of Gaining Control of Private Companies

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, March 10.—Municipal ownership and operation of Pomona's water supply seems more certain today than at any other time in the history of the city, following a meeting last night of the general citizens' water committee at which a report and recommendation of a subcommittee was accepted and a finance committee chosen to form plans and devise ways and means to finance the purchase.

Seven men were chosen to work out financial details and all city officials may be called upon for assistance and co-operation, Mayor Thomas who acted as chairman, declared.

With B. L. Cooper appointed temporary chairman until the committee may select its own, others on the body are: Mark H. Potter, W. A. Kennedy, F. R. Yundt, E. J. Sanford, J. F. Lobingier, F. C. Bichowsky. The report of the subcommittee included a proposition from the Consolidated Water Company of which George A. Lathrop is president, stating that because the last survey was made two years ago, the committee had no estimate on the company's present value and so had obtained a proposition from the utility which they believed was fair and equitable, recommending that the outlined plan be followed.

J. F. Lobingier, A. E. Andrew, Clyde A. Gates, C. H. Howard and S. H. Park composed the committee.

Aged Laborer Tells of Days "Befo' de War"

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

EL CENTRO, March 10.—Echoes of old slavery days of the South were heard in a hearing before Stanley M. Gue, assistant deputy State labor commissioner, when C. B. Billingsley, 82 years of age, attempted to collect wages from Charles Fitzgerald and Nathaniel Fitzgerald, for labor on a cotton ranch near Westmorland. Billingsley and the Fitzgerald brothers are negroes. The aged laborer told that the Fitzgeralds had brought him here from Mississippi on promise of a good job, and then refused to pay wages accruing for the last year.

It was only after hearing the evidence and threatening to send the Fitzgeralds to jail that Gue was enabled to make provision for payment of Billingsley's wages.

"I was born in slavery," Billingsley told the labor officer. "I was about 20 years of age when President Lincoln freed the slaves. Up to that time I was well taken care of and had all the food and clothing I needed. After we were freed we all had to work harder than ever before and get less for our work. However, I have always worked hard, and never before had any troubles collecting my wages.

"I came to Imperial Valley with the Fitzgerald boys and they promised me good wages, but they didn't pay me anything. It was just like being back in slavery, except that I got no clothes and very little food. I would have been much better off if I could have remained a slave back in old Mississippi."

HOLD CHAUFFEUR OF PASADENA CITIZEN

CORONER TO INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 10.—An inquest to determine the cause of the death of Miss Ada Dancy, 17-year-old Pasadena girl, killed in an automobile accident last night, will be conducted tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. at the Berglen & Cabot undertaking parlors, it was announced today.

A. L. Johnson, chauffeur for C. G. Lathrop, Pasadena millionaire, is being held by the police as a result of the fatal crash. Johnson was driving his employer's sport roadster when it collided with a smaller car driven by Miss Elsie Turner, 80 West Logan, and in which Miss Dancy was riding.

The girl's car skidded for forty-five feet and overturned, the detectives declare. Wheel marks left on the pavement show that Johnson braked his wheels for seventy-two feet before he hit the other car. This indicates, Detective Lieutenants Lee Culver and William Cropsey say, that both cars were traveling at a high rate of speed, although Johnson declares he was traveling but twelve miles an hour.

Miss Dancy resided at 106 West Logan street, and is survived by a brother and sister. Her parents are said to live in the East. Funeral arrangements will not be made until after the inquest.

SUSPECTS IN HOLD-UP ARRAIGNED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANAHEIM, March 10.—"Jack I still love you," was the message on a bit of paper which Virginia Hymer, 22 years of age, arrested as a bandit, tried to slip to Jack Lee in Justice Court when they were arraigned. W. E. Neuteboom, alias Jack Cranmer, 21, and Roy Lane, 18, other members of their party, were brought in at the same time. All are charged with assault with intent to commit robbery as a result of stopping a Motor Transit stage, in which J. R. Mayer, Santa Ana banker, was a passenger. Neuteboom waived preliminary hearing and was held to answer this charge in Superior Court. The others will be given a preliminary hearing Thursday.

It is considered probable that Neuteboom will be returned to Utah to face charges of robbery and forgery. He is said to be a parole violator. Lee is said to have confessed to liquor running off the Maine coast.

The Hymer girl appeared in court with an uncle from Los Angeles, who did not give his name. He said she lived at Fifth and Wall streets, not at his home on West Ninety-second street, the address she gave when arrested. He also declared she is married but has left her husband. She took no apparent interest in the court proceedings but worked out her message with needle and thread in a bit of paper. When she tried to give the message to Lee, officers intercepted it.

BEST LIBRARY IN THE WORLD

Noted Scholar Compliments Huntington Collection

Comes from Germany in Quest of Information

Makes Valuable Gift to Crown City Institution

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 10.—The Huntington Library, located here, is, perhaps, the most important collection for the scholar and collector in the world, according to Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, who has just arrived from Berlin to do some research work. Dr. Vollbehr is considered one of the leaders of bibliophiles and scholars in the world. His own library is one of the most celebrated in existence.

One of the Huntington Library's most cherished treasures is the original document of the grant of privileges bestowed upon Christopher Columbus by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain for his discovery of the new world. This document was presented to the library by Dr. Vollbehr. It is very valuable and especially interesting due to the fact that there are marginal notes written in Columbus's own handwriting.

During his stay in Pasadena Dr. Vollbehr is residing at the Hotel Raymond. He is a personal friend of Mr. Huntington. Since Dr. Vollbehr's own library is noted for its collection of books, manuscripts and other data issued prior to the year 1500, he is confining his research work in Pasadena to the Islamic Incunabula. From Pasadena Dr. Vollbehr will go to New York and from there to Italy, where he will be joined by his wife, who is a writer of note.

Dr. Vollbehr speaks with great enthusiasm of the Huntington Library. America, he said, is fortunate to have this great collection. Scholars, investigators, scientists and collectors from all parts of the world are now coming here to inspect this great collection. It contains many originals and artifacts which cannot be found in any other part of the world.

Italian Champagne Comes Here Labled Olive Oil

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, March 10.—That imported Italian champagne is being shipped from New York to the Pacific Coast under an "olive oil" label, was the belief expressed today by Deputy Sheriff J. A. Larson, following a raid on the residence of B. Pata, in East State street, in which four cases of "sacrament Cristo" wine, still crated, were seized. According to an address on the crate, the "olive oil" was shipped to a man in Ontario by the name of Minuto. Mr. Pata was reported to be in the Imperial Valley at present, and V. Espinosa, occupant of the other's residence, who was taken into custody, was released after questioning by representatives of the District Attorney's office. Dist.-Atty. George H. Johnson ordered the wine confiscated.

LAST OF JUNGLE PARTY RETURNS

Tells of Penetrating Regions Where Sakais Live

Pictures Are Said to be First Taken of These Savages

After many thrilling adventures in the jungles of the Malay Peninsula where they filmed a wild tribe living in the tree tops, Carl Winther and William Bals, heads of a motion-picture expedition from Los Angeles to the East Indies last year, returned home yesterday.

The two men are the last to return of the party of eighteen that set out last May to obtain educational films in the unexplored sections of the Far East. The party agreed to disagree upon landing in Singapore after crossing the Pacific, according to William Bals, now at the Rosslyn.

The original Winther Research Expedition as it was called, was organized in Southern California by Bals and Winther, each of whom described himself as an explorer and scientist in printed literature seeking to interest others in the trip. They secured financial backing in Los Angeles and, with fifteen others, each of whom is said to have advanced $500 for passage money pending returns on the motion pictures, set sail from Los Angeles Harbor early last May.

DIFFICULTIES ARISE

In Singapore, however, difficulties and disputes arose. Money sent from Los Angeles was slow in arriving and in the meantime hotel bills had grown to large proportions. The disputes grew and finally the Los Angeles backers refused further money, it was said, until the disputes were ended. The original party disbanded, the other members finding their way back to Los Angeles as best they could, many working at menial jobs aboard ships, and each told stirring tales of hardships endured.

While in Singapore, the hotel there finally evicted them for hotel bills and they were forced on the mercy of the scanty white population, the American Consul doing the best he could for them. There were no jobs and no money.

In addition to Bals and Winther, the original party included J. R. Jones, A. G. Johnson A. B. Jones, William E. Broeg and E. B. Howe, all of Los Angeles; Walter Feichter of Philidelphia, a World War captain; C. E. Banta of Riverside; C. F. Fogelquist, taxidermist; R. F. Randolph, army captain, of New Jersey; Martin Carlson, Los Angeles civil engineer; H. DeMuth, newspaper editor; A. E. Von Linden, cameraman; B. N. Newman, scenario writer, and G. N. Colgate of Philadelphia, Spanish War army captain and one-time baseball umpire.

EXPEDITION PLANS

"It has been the understanding that we were to penetrate the jungles of Sumatra, Borneo, Java and the Malay Peninsula to get motion pictures," said Bals yesterday. "But our financial backers in Los Angeles backed out. The other members scraped up enough to get back home, but Winther and myself had some money of our own. So we trekked into the wilds from Singapore and succeeded in obtaining about 4500 feet of film of the wild Sakai tribe, living in the hills in the interior of the peninsula, about 130 miles from the nearest civilized outpost."

The Sakais, Bals said, are a recalcitrant group of savages, addicted to poisoned arrows, extremely sketchy as to raiment, suspicious of strangers and unpleasant customers generally. Of Mongol origin, they are not more than a couple of jumps ahead of the original caveman.

"We walked for six days and traveled on elephant-back for two days before we reached the habitat of these savages," said Bals. "We had been advised by the British consul to employ an interpreter, otherwise we would never have succeeded in getting near the tribe who run when they see a white man or try to shoot him with their blow-pipe darts.

LIVE IN TREE HUTS

"The interpreter stilled their fears somewhat, but at that we were compelled to spend two months in the village before we could use our cameras. The Sakais live in huts built in the tops of tall trees, being ape-like in their ability to climb. They are small of stature, none standing above five feet. They are not cannibals. One reason they tolerated us was that we furnished food for the entire tribe of about 110 individuals."

Bals stated that the film would be developed soon and shown on the screen. He said this will be the first time motion pictures of these savages have been presented.

CITY HOLDS UP SANTA FE PORT ENTRY

Council Unable to Agree on Two Resolutions of for Passage

The City Council differed widely yesterday over the means by which the Santa Fe Railroad should enter the harbor District, and failed to act on two conflicting resolutions. There is no opposition in the Council to the plan for unification of railroads at the harbor which the Harbor Committee of Two Hundred has sponsored.

One resolution was designed to permit the Santa Fe temporarily to connect with the municipal belt line; the other resolution would have required the railroad to enter into a formal agreement whereby the company agrees to use one of the portals of the projected viaduct at Anaheim Road.

After much discussion between the Councilmen, it was decided to pass both resolutions on to Councilman Mallard and City Attorney Stephens for immediate consideration, and they will take up the matter of an immediate contract directly with the railroad officials.

Councilman Mallard declared that an attempt was being made to block the entrance of the Santa Fe int othe harbor district. He was opposed by Councilman Allan.

RICHARDSON WILL LEAVE PASTORATE

Rev. Samuel J. Mathieson of Des Moines, Iowa, Accepts Hollywood Call

Resignation by Rev. W. F. Richardson of the pastorate of the Hollywood Christian Church, and acceptance of a call to that church by Rev. Samuel J. Mathieson of Des Moines, Iowa, was announced yesterday by officials of the church and in a message received from Mr. Mathieson.

REV. SAMUEL J. MATHIESON

Mr. Richardson, who is 72 years of age, has been pastor of the Hollywood Christian Church for the last eight years, and has succeeded in increasing the small congregation to a membership of more than 600. For many years he has been one of the most eloquent and active ministers among the disciples of Christ in the Southland. He will preach his last sermon at the church on the 29th inst., and will then retire from active ministerial work, but will continue to live at Hollywood.

Mr. Mathieson, who will succeed Mr. Richardson as pastor, has for more than two years been associate pastor with Rev. Charles S. Medbury of the University Church of Christ at Des Moines. He was also chaplain of the Argonne Post, American Legion, and a member of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Mathieson, who with Mrs. Mathieson and their two young daughters, will arrive in Los Angeles within the next few days, and will begin his pastorate of the Hollywood church on May 1.

SCOUT SHIPS ARE NEARING BATTLE LINE

Engagement Expected at Any Moment Off Coast of Lower California

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ABOARD U.S.S. SEATTLE AT SEA (Off Coast of Lower California) March 10.—The scouts of two great fleets of American men-of-war tonight were approaching their prospective battle line several hundred miles off the coast of Lower California, with an engagement momentarily expected.

Contact of the two fleets promised night destroyer engagements, and surprise attacks by submarines of the scouting fleet, which is enacting the defense of the Pacific Coast from the invasion of a mighty enemy sea force designated as the Black Fleet.

The alertness of American sea fighters was strikingly demonstrated as the ships of both fleets, numbering 109 United States Navy vessels, moved into the battle zone.

Men and officers were at battle stations, each engaged in duties that co-ordinated the activities of 25,000 officers and men into two mighty fighting machines at sea.

Estimates of possible contacts that will mark the beginning of the great naval engagement were that airplanes might spot destroyers, cruisers or submarines of the opposing force; that destroyers might meet cruisers or submarines or other destroyers, or that submarines might penetrate into the midst of the opposing formation.

The destroyers, scout cruisers, airplanes and submarines all were on the far-flung scouting screens, while the capital ships were back in the main formations.

"PORTIA" TO FILE APPEAL FOR SLAYER

Fair Attorney Announces Intent After Jury Gives Second-Degree Verdict

Mike Miskich, who settled his differences with Joe Pecar, a countryman, with a knife during their celebration of St. Lucy's Day on December 13, 1924, was found guilty of second-degree murder yesterday by a jury in Judge Reeve's department of the Superior Court after four hours' deliberation.

Dena Jacobson, attorney for the slayer and said to be the first woman in California's history to appear as an attorney in a murder trial, gave notice that she would file an appeal for a retrial. The charge was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Attys. Dennison and Murray. They complimented their feminine opponent on the manner in which she conducted the case.

The killing took place at Pecar's home in San Pedro. It followed a drunken brawl of many hours which began with the celebration of the day given over to the patron saint. Miskich will be sentenced tomorrow. The penalty for second-degree murder is a prison sentence of from ten years to life.

Ancient Ban to Late Skating is Put in Discard

Back in '97 when roller-polo and other forms of roller skating were in vogue, the City Council in its wisdom passed an ordinance making it illegal to skate after 10:45 p.m.

As time went on roller skating went out as a fashion, and there being no natural ice in Southern California the matter was forgotten.

But the birth of skating on artificial ice has brought the issue to the fore, and the City Council yesterday voted unanimously to repeal the old blue skating law, and to permit skating, uniform with dancing, until 1 a.m.

DEPTH-TEST DEVICE FOUND

Great Menace to Navigation Overcome by Invention of Local University Instructor

The greatest menace to modern navigation encountered by a ship when, because of fog or other adverse conditions, it is unknowingly directed into shallow water or toward sunken reefs, is believed removed following the announcement yesterday that Ensign E. P. Delsasso, a member of the faculty of the University of California, Southern Branch, has invented a device which will record the depth of water under moving ships.

The announcement was made by Commander A. H. Woodbine, of the naval reserve force, following practical experiments with the invention, and an explanation of it Saturday before the American Physical Society at a meeting in the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

Briefly, the device consists of an oscillator and a microphone located on the bottom of the ship. The sound produced by the oscillator travels a known distance of 4900 feet per second through water. At this rate it reaches the bottom and is reflected upward like an echo to the microphone. A mathematical computation reveals the exact depth of the water under the ship.

According to the inventor, the device has been patented and turned over to the Navy. He declared that experiments are taking place by which it is ultimately hoped to remove any human element from the calculations. Naval officials will decide whether the invention will be released for the benefit of merchant ships.

Up to the present time, no absolutely reliable and accurate device for determining the depth of water under ships has been known, many mariners still relying on "heaving the lead" occasionally to get the depth. It was pointed out that such disasters as occurred at Point Honda in 1922, when a number of naval destroyers went aground in the fog, would probably be averted by an accurate depth-felling device.

LONG QUEST IN MURDER CASE ENDS

Last of Coalinga Chinese Slaying Fugitives Taken in Custody Here

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FRESNO, March 10.—Search of more than three years for the third murderer of Chow Wing Hop, aged Chinese merchant of Coalinga, brutally slain in his store there on the evening of November 10, 1921, ended tonight with the arrest in Los Angeles of Thomas R. Green, 23 years of age, by Sheriff William Jones, according to a telegram from Sheriff Jones.

The Coalinga slaying occurred while the Sheriff and his force were in the Coalinga district, during the time of the 1921 oil strike. Green, with James A. Dunn and George A. Graffe, entered the store and sought to rob the elderly Chinese, officers said. When he resisted their attempts, they beat him over the head with a heavy blunt instrument, walking leisurely out of the store just as Sheriff Jones and Deputy Sheriffs L. T. Collins and O. J. King were entering a restaurant a few doors away, unconscious of what had taken place.

Graffe was the first of the murderers arrested, being taken into custody by Patrolman W. H. Daniels in the Owl drug store here on November 22, 1921. His companion, Dunn, was arrested by Constable Thomas Peterson of Coalinga, near there, December 21, 1921, but no trace of Green was found for a long time.

Dunn and Graffe were convicted of murder before Judge J. E. Woolley in 1922, and sentenced to life imprisonment. They were removed from the County Jail to the State penitentiary at San Quentin on August 2, 1922.

Thomas R. Green was arrested last night in a South Main-street rooming-house by Sheriff Jones and Deputy Sheriff Monteleon from the local office. He was lodged in the County Jail last night and preparations were made to return him to Fresno this morning.

Mission Play Season Will Close April 5

This season of the Mission Play will close on Sunday afternoon, April 5. The announcement is in conformity with the plan to run only a short time, so that the continuity of fourteen years will remain unbroken. In this way further accommodation can be given the work of completing the new playhouse and the task of housing the play. Meanwhile the many visitors to California are being advised to make early reservations.

The attendance is such as is requiring every facility of the Mission Play staff to cope with it adequately. Many are turned away at every performance. Those who attend regularly every year are also asked to note that the closing of the play will make the pressure at the old playhouse greater than it is.

John Steven McGroarty, author of the Mission Play, is receiving so many requests that he stage "La Golondrina" (The Swallow) that he is giving the idea serious consideration. If Mr. McGroarty decides in the affirmative "La Golondrina" will follow upon the closing of the Mission Play.

New Injunction Suit in Arroyo Rock Case Filed

A new petition for an injunction restraining the Los Angeles Rock and Gravel Company from carrying on excavations in the line of Avenue 22, where the street runs into the Arroyo Seco, was filed yesterday in Superior Court by the city.

The city asserted the company had been carrying on such operations and that the lateral earth support of the street was consequently threatened.

CANDIDATES DISCUSSED AT MEETING

Representatives of Civic Bodies in Fifth District Delay Indorsement

Six candidates to represent the Fifth District, which includes the San Fernando Valley, on the City Council, were presented to a meeting of representatives of thirty-four civic organizations of the district in Van Nuys last night. The meeting was adjourned without indorsing any candidate, but took the candidacies under advisement for action at some future meeting. George Hume, manager of the California Bank, Van Nuys, presided over the meeting, which was the outgrowth of an earlier meeting of the organizations which set last night as a time to hear candidates, and perfect a smaller organization to select a candidate to be indorsed by the organization.

Charles T. Wardlaw, a retired banker of Van Nuys, was the first candidate to present himself. He waived his ten minutes allotted time in favor of B. H. Holloway of Van Nuys, a member of the County Planning Commission, who commended Mr. Wardlaw as a fit candidate, worthy of the trust sought.

Charles H. Randall of Roscoe, formerly a Democratic Congressman, also was introduced. Randall opposed the idea of having representatives of the organizations select a man to be supported by the organizations' members. He said the people should be permitted to select their candidate at the primary. He declared for public ownership principles, opposed the cutting down of trees in Lankershim and favored the Colorado River Boulder Dam project.

E. E. Lampton, who was born in the valley and has lived in the northern part of Los Angeles for twenty-five years, was presented. He said he had given much study and attention to valley problems, had watched it grow, and stood for its continued advancement. He said he believed the organizations should proceed with their plan of selecting a candidate to indorse and support. He spoke for the Boulder Dam project, saying that when it provided more water for Los Angeles the water now coming to the city from Owens Valley should go for San Fernando Valley development. He favored the city's buying such Owens Valley land as is necessary to protect the source of that water supply.

A. M. Bellows of Zelzah, a retired rancher, was presented and made a short speech. John F. Ludon of Ivanhoe was introduced, but made no speech.

Mrs. E. C. Holman of East Hollywood brought out A. H. Barnes, president of the third district Chamber of Commerce of Hollywood, as the man whom fourteen east-end organizations wish to be the First District candidate. She was assisted by P. E. Lipscomb. Barnes presented himself, but was assisted by O. J. Renfrew, secretary of the Greater San Fernando Valley Association, whether he lived in the First District, and Barnes admitted he did not, but said he believed he could run for Councilman for the First District in spite of the fact that he resides elsewhere.

POLA NEGRI LEAVES FOR HOME LAND

Her contract with Famous Players-Lasky completed, Pola Negri, motion-picture actress, left Los Angeles yesterday on the Golden State Limited for New York. She will sail on the Leviathan on the 21st inst., for a six weeks trip to Europe.

"I have had three offers but nothing is signed as yet. I will see Mr. Lasky in New York and give him the first chance at my new contract," Miss Negri said at the station. She would not state what the offers were or who made them.

It is understood, however, that Cecil B. De Mille and Warner Brothers are angling for the services of the Polish actress.

Milton Cohen, Miss Negri's attorney, leaves today for New York to help draw up her contract.

Paris is her first destination in Europe, Pola said:

"No, I am not going to marry a marquis or anything. I wouldn't even marry a King. When I do marry, however, I am going to have 135 children."

This is Miss Negri's first trip to Europe since she came over here two and a half years ago to make motion pictures. She will visit her mother while abroad and buy up a few trunk-loads of Paris finery.

A huge basket of flowers, bearing the card of the director, Sydney Olcott, was presented to the actress at the station. A friend brought Olcott's regrets that he was unable to be there in person. Several studio officials bid the actress farewell.

Employees Have Celebration on Profit-Sharing

More than $500,000 in profit-sharing dividends for the year ended February 15, last, were distributed to employees of the Procter & Gamble Company at the seventy-fifth semiannual dividend day celebration last Saturday simultaneously at the main office of the company in Ivorydale, Cincinnati, O., and also in Kansas City, New York, Dallas and Hamilton, Can., where the company has plants and offices.

This celebration, which has been a semiannual event since Procter & Gamble inaugurated their profit-sharing plan in 1886, marks the distribution of dividend checks to the employees.

An average of thirteen shares of common stock is held by every subscriber to the profit-sharing plan and 65 per cent of the employees that are eligible have become members.

At the Ivorydale plant alone there are 1446 members of the profit-sharing plan. These employees either own outright, or have subscribed under the terms of the plan, to more than 20,000 shares of common stock, which today represents a value of $2,500,000. During 1924 these employees received more than $249,378 in profit-sharing dividends.

The profit-sharing plan is part of a general welfare program, the last addition to which was the plan for "guaranteed year-'round employment," put into effect on August 1, 1923. According to a recent statement issued by Procter & Gamble, this plan, while originally adopted as an experiment, has proved so successful that it has become a permanent part of the industrial-relations program of the company.

Five hundred are expected to attend. The dinner is under the auspices of the Los Angeles and Southern California Retail Druggist Associations. Mr. Pokress visited Los Angeles a year ago, and found conditions so favorable here that he decided to start the factory, which will cost approximately $125,000, it was said.

How do you know that the next step you take will be in the right direction—that it will lead you to a satisfactory fulfilment of your plan? How do you know that it will not lead you into the hands of an unscrupulous contractor who "talks nice," but will fail to deliver?

HOW DO YOU KNOW? You don't know, unless you have first made up your mind to patronize ONLY members of the Builders' Exchange. If you follow this course, you are INSURED of the highest possible percentage of satisfaction, fair dealing, honesty and quality of materials.

LAST OF JUNGLE PARTY RETURNS

Tells of Penetrating Regions Where Sakais Live

Pictures Are Said to be First Taken of These Savages

After many thrilling adventures in the jungles of the Malay Peninsula where they filmed a wild tribe living in the tree tops, Carl Winther and William Bals, heads of a motion-picture expedition from Los Angeles to the East Indies last year, returned home yesterday.

The two men are the last to return of the party of eighteen that set out last May to obtain educational films in the unexplored sections of the Far East. The party agreed to disagree upon landing in Singapore after crossing the Pacific, according to William Bals, now at the Rossiyn.

The original Winther Research Expedition as it was called, was organized in Southern California by Bals and Winther, each of whom described himself as an explorer and scientist in printed literature seeking to interest others in the trip. They secured financial backing in Los Angeles and, with fifteen others, each of whom is said to have advanced $500 for passage money pending returns on the motion pictures, set sail from Los Angeles Harbor early last May.

DIFFICULTIES ARISE

In Singapore, however, difficulties and disputes arose. Money sent from Los Angeles was slow in arriving and in the meantime hotel bills had grown to large proportions. The disputes grew and finally the Los Angeles backers refused further money, it was said, until the disputes were ended. The original party disbanded, the other members finding their way back to Los Angeles as best they could, many working at menial jobs aboard ships, and each told stirring tales of hardships endured.

While in Singapore, the hotel there finally evicted them for hotel bills and they were forced on the mercy of the scanty white population, the American Consul doing the best he could for them. There were no jobs and no money.

In addition to Bals and Winther, the original party included J. R. Jones, A. G. Johnson A. B. Jones, William E. Broeg and E. B. Howe, all of Los Angeles; Walter Feichter of Philidelphia, a World War captain; C. E. Banta of Riverside; C. F. Fogelquist, taximeist; R. F. Randolph, army captain, of New Jersey; Martin Carlson, Los Angeles civil engineer; H. DeMuth, newspaper editor; A. E. Von Linden, cameraman; B. N. Newman, scenario writer, and G. N. Colgate of Philadelphia, Spanish War army captain and one-time baseball umpire.

Resignation by Rev. W. F. Richardson of the pastorate of the Hollywood Christian Church, and acceptance of a call to that church by Rev. Samuel J. Mathieson of Des Moines, Iowa, was announced yesterday by officials of the church and in a message received from Mr. Mathieson.

REV. SAMUEL J. MATHIESON

Mr. Richardson, who is 72 years of age, has been pastor of the Hollywood Christian Church for the last eight years, and has succeeded in increasing the small congregation to a membership of more than 600. He will preach his last sermon at the church on the 29th inst., and will then retire from active ministerial work, but will continue to live at Hollywood.

Mr. Mathieson, who will succeed Mr. Richardson as pastor, has for more than two years been associate pastor with Rev. Charles S. Medbury of the University Church of Christ at Des Moines. DEPTH-TEST DEVICE FOUND

Great Menace to Navigation Overcome by Invention of Local University Instructor

The greatest menace to modern navigation encountered by a ship when, because of fog or other adverse conditions, it is unknowingly directed into shallow water or toward sunken reefs, is believed removed following the announcement yesterday that Ensign E. P. Delassso, a member of the faculty of the University of California, Southern Branch, has invented a device which will record the depth of water under moving ships.

The announcement was made by Commander A. H. Woodbine, of the naval reserve force, following practical experiments with the invention, and an explanation of it Saturday before the American Physical Society at a meeting in the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

Briefly, the device consists of an oscillator and a microphone located on the bottom of the ship. The sound produced by the oscillator travels a known distance of 4900 feet per second through water. At this rate it reaches the bottom and is reflected upward like an echo to the microphone. A mathematical computation reveals the exact depth of the water under the ship.

According to the inventor, the device has been patented and turned over to the Navy. He declared that experiments are taking place by which it is ultimately hoped to remove any human element from the calculations. Naval officials will decide whether the invention will be released for the benefit of merchant ships.

Up to the present time, no absolutely reliable and accurate device for determining the depth of water under ships has been known, many mariners still relying on "heaving the lead" occasionally to get the depth. It was pointed out that such disasters as occurred at Point Honda in 1922, when a number of naval destroyers went aground in the fog, would probably be averted by an accurate depth-felling device.

"THE PHANTOM"

It is obvious that they have been frightened by the reports of the Phantom's activities, which, of course, the new directors do not take very seriously.

Threats are made to these directors by various means telling them that if they do not give the young opera singer, Christine by name, a chance to sing the role of Marguerite in "Faust" a catastrophe will ensue.

On a certain night, when one of these threats is made, the directors decide to bring matters to a head, and they put another prima donna in the opera.

In the midst of the performance the lights of the theater flash on and off, and the singers and orchestra are thrown into confusion. The great chandelier begins to rock back and forth, and finally falls from the great height down to the floor, evidently wreaking havoc on a large group of the operagoers.

Why they ever came back to the theater after this accident is not explained, of course. The impression is given of lapse of time, and the masked ball takes place in all its glamour and glory of color photography.

Prior to this, Christine has been lured by the Phantom to his den in the deepest cellars of the theater. While there she has unmasked him and beheld him for the grotesque and somewhat horrible personage that he is. She manages to get away, and joins her lover to tell him of her fatal experience.

Things come to an exciting pass when another opera performance is interrupted by the Phantom. He drugs various scene shifters, pulls the prompter out of his box, and appears there himself with a death mask on while the heroine is singing. Paralyzed with fright, she is caught by him and hurried away to his subterranean retreat.

Another mysterious personage, known as the Persian, here takes an active part in the play. He informs the hero that he knows the way to the Phantom's retreat. He opens a secret passageway through the heroine's dressing-room, and the two descend into the underground hallways, holding their hands above their heads to prevent their being strangled by the nooses spread everywhere by the Phantom.

There is a good consistent interest and suspense in their finding the lair of the mysterious Phantom, and the way that they are threatened with death while so doing. This final part of the picture really has a good thrilling character, even to some serial effects, but really should be viewed to be fully appreciated. It can hardly be called intellectual drama, but nobody will be disappointed in its generally interesting effect.

In the role of the title character Chaney dominates to a greater or less degree the entire picture. He has very little chance to do any acting, except by suggestion of gesture, because he is masked so much of the time, but he manages to register consistently as a menace to the other people in the production. His make-up and even the various disguises reflect his ingenuity, and it can hardly be said that they are any more unpleasant than usual, if as much so.

The best acting opportunities go to Mary Philbin. She succeeds in expressing very well both the fear and the fascination that the Phantom holds for her. There is still immaturity in the manner that she registers certain expressions, but she is gaining ground from picture to picture, and is always very charming as a presence.

Arthur Edmund Carew is exceptionally good as the Persian. He evokes a mood of real mystery in this portrayal.

Gibson Gowland does some vigorous and convincing work in his efforts to wreak vengeance on the Phantom for the death of his brother. Bernard Siegel makes an impression in the role of the brother, even though he only appears in a sequence or so.

The group acting is acceptable in this picture, and the masked ball has lots of animation.

The general nature of the production, especially, and much of the detail of the direction show in a very favorable light Rupert Julian's ability. The picture is equal in some respects to "Merry-Go-Round."

A great deal depended in this instance on the direction, and the scenario. The adaptation was made from the novel of Gaston Leroux by Elliott Clawson. The photography, which is superior in the color scenes, is credited to Charles Van Enger and Milton Bridenbecker. The titles were written by Walter Anthony.—[Edwin Schallert.

MARJORIE DAW

Miss Daw has recently returned from a year's visit in Europe, where she appeared in several English productions. On her way to the Coast, she stopped off long enough in New York to play with Ben Lyon in "One-Way Street." She is to be leading lady for William Tilden, the tennis champion, in "Haunted Hands."

LEATRICE JOY RETURNS

of an absence of the proprietor on a vacation, to bring from Chicago a famous modiste to stage a fashion show for the enlivenment of the community.

Of course, the modiste is none other than the little dressmaker of Paris whom the hero met during the war. She accepts the invitation to put on the fashion show because she recognizes the hero's photograph on the head of the letter which he had written to her, and she comes to the town with a full coterie of models.

The fashion show is made a civic affair with a brass band and a parade and speechmaking. The dash and attractiveness of the models completely upsets the equilibrium of the town, and eventually leads to trouble of one kind and another.

Other complications are brought about when the little dressmaker learns of the engagement of her former admirer to the daughter of the proprietor, and then later finds out that the girl is really in love with the other man.

In the scene of this discovery she endeavors to protect the other girl, who has visited this man's room in the hotel, from the wrath of her father, and in so doing compromises herself.

There is a mob scene as a climax, in which an attempt is made to run the dressmaker and her models out of town, and this reflects quite a degree of Main-street prejudice.

The climax naturally leads to a straightening out of all the misunderstandings, and presents also a very good brief for the small-town viewpoint, which is "ever ready to make amends when it discovers where it is at fault."

Both the adaptation and the direction have done much to embellish the plot with a bright sort of interest. Comedy especially is in the foreground, and there is a very human and sympathetic treatment of the various characters. The picture avoids the stereotyped in this respect, and is lightly and very deftly made.

Miss Joy's role is one of piquant charm. She plays it with a sprightly attractiveness, and makes it quite Frenchy in character. Indeed, it is quite a new and gay revelation of her personality.

Ernest Torrence will be welcome in the portrayal of the store proprietor, because he draws the character very humanly and sympathetically. Allan Forrest looks well in the officer's garb, and is otherwise very satisfactory as the hero. Mildred Harris engages a goodly amount of attention as the girl to whom he is affianced. Lawrence Gray appears as her clandestine admirer. Incidental roles are very creditably done by Charles Crockett, Rosemary Cooper and Speck O'Donnelly, and the models represent varying types of feminine attractiveness. Pictorially their scenes really enhance the feature. The girls who appear include Sally Rand, Sally Long, Cristina Montt, Majel Coleman, Etta Lee, Thais Valdemar, Olive Borden, Cecille Evans, Dorothy Seastrom, Jocelyn Lee, Clara Morris, Adalyn Mayer, Yola D'Arvil and Eugenia Gilbert.

The adaptation was made by Adelaide Heilbron from the story by Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks, and the picture was photographed by Bert Glennon.—[E. S.

sidewalk and began to speak Italian to her.

"'You speak Italian?' inquired my driver, when I had hopped into the taxi again. 'Good!' He spoke Italian fluently!"

"OH, there's Mildred Harris and young McGovern. No, dearie, I don't know his first name, but I hear they are going to be married in the spring. I think Mildred is going east. Isn't he good-looking! I understand Mr. McGovern is an ace—won all sorts of medals in the Aviation Corps during the war—and every once in a while he feels a flying spell come on. So he is going to Florida soon."

"WELL, if there aren't Priscilla Bonner and her nice, handsome doctor, Dr. Bert Woolfan. And speaking of doctors, my dear, talk about your picture actors being sheiks—why, it's my observation a doctor can make a picture actor look like a little boy buying his first Valentine for the little sheba next door!

"Somebody at the studio was going to take their pictures together, the other day, but Priscilla was so unselfishly devoted to him she wouldn't let them!"

STELLA paused to give her face the once-over in her vanity mirror, also using the implement as a trench glass to see who was behind her.

"She that was Ruth Clifford, as Aunty used to say! By the way, that reminds me. She and her new husband had almost a disagreement, you might say, the other day.

"Ruth says she has discovered that she is married to a great emancipator. She penned up a number of wild ducks in the cat fence of her back yard one evening. The next morning she arose to find them wandering all over Beverly Hills. She learned later that her husband had left the gate to the pen open after giving the web-footed birds their morning cakes."

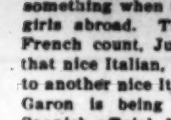
Tea-cup Tete-a-tete With Stella, the Star-Gazer

By GRACE KINGSLEY



"Oh, my dear, isn't this for once means just something awful—with the accent on the 'was'? Don't be silly! Of course, I don't mean any crazy old wars or anything foolish like that. I mean something really serious. I mean, isn't it terrible the way all the sweetest picture actresses are falling in love with the foreign sheiks?

"Dearie, they certainly unleashed something when they sent those picture girls abroad. There's Gloria and her French count, June Mathis married to that nice Italian, Kathleen Key engaged to another nice Italian, and now Pauline Garon is being followed home by a Spanish official, I hear!

"But I will say this for our American actresses, they bring their men home with them. They don't quit us cold."

STELLA paused to glance at the menu, but, of course, ordered the inevitable cinnamon toast. She wouldn't be hurried even when I told her I just must know about Pauline's love affair.

"Oh, Pauline met this nice, fascinating Spaniard—I just couldn't find out his name—" Stella finally consented to go on—"at Deauville, in France. They saw each other first in a cafe, gazed into each other's eyes, and were stricken with love! The Spanish cavalier managed an introduction. They went about together, and now the Spaniard is promising to leave his job in the diplomatic service and come over to America. Pauline feels rather responsible about it, I hear—I mean about taking a man from his diplomatic duties for his country and all that, because just think if a war should come on just at the time or something —but she isn't worried on the score of money, because it seems her Spanish suitor has oodles of it."

"WELL, have you seen Kathleen Key?" I inquired. "Speaking of angels—"

Kathleen dashed in just then, looking lovely as a rose with her glowing cheeks and her brown eyes dancing with fun as usual.

"Well," said Kathleen, "it certainly does seem nice to hear some real jazz music. They may have cute castles abroad and loves of ruins and all that, but give me jazz or give me death. I wonder if there is anybody to dance with me!"

Of course, there was, over there at Montmartre, but first the young man demanded: "Are you really going to marry an Italian?"

"That," responded Kathleen, sweetly diplomatic, "depends on how you behave!"

And then they danced away, and Kathleen came back breathless to tell us that over across the water in Italy they are still playing, "Yes, We Have No Bananas!" evidently under the impression, as she explained, that "it was the national anthem of all their lowly relatives who have come to America!"

And now it's Pauline Caron who is soon to be followed to this country by a member of the Spanish nobility.

War, according to Stella, was nearly declared in the Ruth Clifford menage last week over the question of wild ducks.

IT SEEMS that Kathleen was the only member of the "Ben Hur" company who learned Italian.

"I studied and studied, and all I learned was chair—heaven knows why I learned chair," she explained. "Then I got a wop maid, and we used to talk. But she got too fresh. After a while she thought nothing of coming into the drawing-room, when I had guests, to tell me what I should say to them, so I just had to can her. Oh, but she threatened dire things to me!

"But here's a funny one on me," said Kathleen, "speaking of talking Italian. I was running around Paris in a taxi one day, and the taxi driver and I were having an awful time understanding each other. I spoke only a few words in French, and he spoke only very broken English. Finally, just when I was going home, I met a friend on the

It is obvious that they have been frightened by the reports of the Phantom's activities, which, of course, the new directors do not take very seriously.

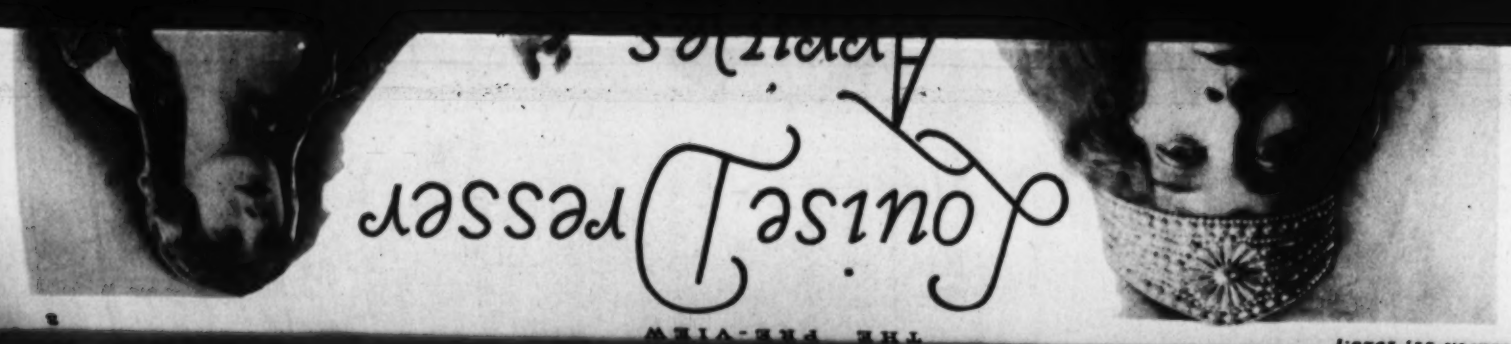
Both the adaptation and the direction have done much to embellish the plot



Harry Carr's Page

WELL, all I can say of Corinne Griffith's new venture is that she must be a good gambler.

For all anybody knows, Al Santell may turn out to be a dramatic director of such power and genius that Griffith, Lubitsch and De Mille may chip in for a box of poison pills and commit suicide together.

But the fact is, nobody knows. Until now, Mr. Santell has been known chiefly for comedies. He has not been in the "big leagues," at least as a dramatic director.

The Wrong Stories

Not even the fair Corinne herself could deny that she has lost heavily in prestige during the last year.

Although "Black Oxen" was a successful picture, Miss Griffith did not add to her personal fame thereby. She was miscast, to begin with. It wasn't her stuff. She was sunk before being launched.

If she appeared in any pictures between that and that "Love in the Wilderness" thing, they were not of enough moment to be remembered.

The last-named picture was cheap rubbish. It was like an old-fashioned serial without the pauses for breath.

Delicate and Rare

Miss Griffith could be the biggest drawing card in the movies—if she had the right kind of stories.

There is nothing for her in jungle thunderstorms, with leering bad men in need of a shave—bang-bang shooting scenes and rides to the rescue.

You have only to watch her when she is off the screen to realize that. She has a rare, delicate beauty. She moves slowly and languidly. Herb Howe says she is like a beautiful Persian cat. Her smile is slow and reluctant. She always suggests some secret dissatisfaction, as though she had been listening to a piano out of tune.

She is one of those girls who sit up when she sees some one coming across the set to speak to her. She watches them with a curious detachment until they come; then she sits up and waits to hear what they are going to say.

Subtle and Fine

Generally speaking, you can be pretty sure that a beautiful girl who is at once clever and sure of herself—yet negative—is a very subtle character.

And Corinne Griffith is very subtle. She is subtle and delicate and fine. And, just so, the plays in which she appears ought to be subtle and delicate. She ought to be gently swayed to and fro by perfumed zephyrs; not flung around by jungle thunderstorms.

The Desired

In her plays, she ought always to be the desired.

She should be the object to be attained. The flower to be grasped.

Dead Flowers

It was artistic murder in the first degree to have put her in a play in which she was advertised as:

"See the beautiful Corinne Griffith as a bigamist."

Even to see Corinne Griffith as a married woman on the screen is to decorate a house with dead flowers.

She should be the beautiful lady in the tower who makes the cold Sir Galahad forget the Holy Grail.

There Are Others

Valentino's next picture is to be directed by Alan Hale, who is an actor with only one or two pictures to his credit as a director.

As in the case of Mr. Santell, it is not a sign that he cannot merely because he has not.

Mary Pickford is also trying a new director. That is to say, a new director for her. William Beaudine has been at the megaphone for a long time. It was expected, however, that Mary would look to some old stand-by like Mickie Neilan for a picture so critical for her future as this one.

Mary and Mickie

It is one of Hollywood's open secrets that Mr. Neilan and Miss Pickford did not break off their joint picture plans with that spirit of brotherly and sisterly love enjoined by the Holy Scriptures. In fact, as the children in the Myra Kelly stories said: "They have a mad."

Mickie is now making the railroad section-hand picture he wanted to do with Mary. He has found what he thinks is a little new Mary Pickford in the person of a 16-year-old Irish girl named Chatsie Noonan.

They say that she is rarely beautiful and charming and is sure to make a sensation on the screen.

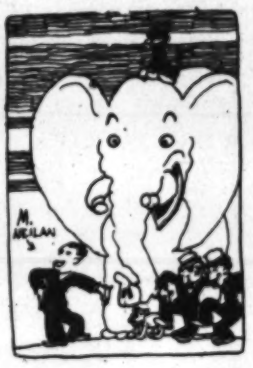
Neilan's Story

The story as it is growing under Mickie's hands is so funny and so charming that all Hollywood is talking about it.

It is full of dogs and cats and elephants and bad little boys and gags.



There are two old drunken Irishmen who think they see pink and green elephants. It would scarcely be fair to tell the gag that surrounds this situation. But it is Mickie at the top of his genius. And when Mickie is going right, and really interested, he is without a equal or a rival.

Von Stroheim

In her endeavor to write Von Stroheim down as a "brutal Hun," Mae Murray seems to have been outnumbered and disarmed.

Outnumbered by forty-two extra people, who chipped in from their pay to buy the Hunnish Mr. Von Stroheim the most beautiful and expensive cigarette case in Hollywood.

The truth is, Von Stroheim never succeeds in being as bad as he tries to be. His nerves are set on a hair-trigger. A large part of the time he lives in a state of excitement almost beyond human endurance.

But, inside, he is a tender-hearted, kindly, unselfish artist. The actors who have worked with him for long periods of time are always crazy about him.

Love Grows Cold

A newspaperman who quits his position of power is usually due for a strange and ironical experience. He finds that love and affection have a way of suddenly growing cold.

Such a one told me of his experiences the other day. When they found that he was no longer in a position to be made use of, his pathway through Hollywood became suddenly strewn with icicles.

The worst were the directors. Some of them passed him up cold. One well-known director even cut him dead the day after his resignation from the newspaper. The one notable exception among the directors was Cecil De Mille. He went out of his way to be more cordial than before.

Most of the actresses were careful not to let him realize there was any difference. This was especially true, he said, of Pola Negri.

Some of the actors were snubby; some were not. Two or three took a lot of pains to let him see that their friendship was not the kind that faded with publicity. This was especially so with Rod La Rocque and Adolphe Menjou.

Same Size Hat

Of all the actors in Hollywood who have suddenly risen to fame and wealth, the one who has seemed best able to hold his head is Harold Lloyd.

Putting aside the boys who have inherited great wealth and so do not count, I daresay that Lloyd is the richest young man of his age in the country. Aside from the actual value of the property he has accumulated, the potential value of his trade name must be enormous.

Yet he seems to be as simple and unassuming as when he started. Only the other day I heard him bewailing the fact that he had thought of a funny gag, but couldn't get it over with his "gang," as he calls his scenario and directing staff.

A Great Comedian

If I were Lloyd, however, I would ask Harry Langdon's cook, as a personal favor, to slip some arsenic into his soup.

During the years I have been in Hollywood, Langdon is the funniest comedian, and one of the best actors, I have seen get started.

He is funny for the same reason Chaplin is funny. All his comedy has an undercurrent of pity. Langdon realizes what Chaplin realizes: That comedy is not only akin to pity, but actually is pity. Only to the degree that it is pitiful is it also funny.

Again like Chaplin, Langdon's technique is slow, subtle and delicate. It has shades beyond shades.

I say "like Chaplin"; but the fact is he isn't in the least like Chaplin. He is like no one the screen has ever seen before—or is likely to see again. He is just Harry Langdon.

What a Fan Thinks

An admirer of Von Stroheim's "Greed" has written to me voicing his anguish and his praise as follows:

Dear Mr. Carr:

Von Stroheim has completely entered into the Norris spirit of realism, done not in the tedious manner of Arnold Bennett, say, but along the impressionistic lines of Stephen Crane. Von Stroheim is, as far as I know, the one impressionistic director in filmdom. Of course, the picture will be a failure. The night I saw it the audience seemed not even amazed, and their only reaction was an inane snicker at the more gruesome details of the story. Von Stroheim could make a picture, and a fine one, too, out of one brush stroke by Gauguin, one bar of Richard Strauss's "Don Juan," or a line by J. K. Huysman. How brummagem appears the tinsel gaudiness of De Mille and the cloying sentimentality of Neilan when compared with Von Stroheim's rigorously intellectual impressionism! The former try to reach the emotions through the emotions—an easy task—but Von Stroheim tries to reach the emotions through the mind.

Why hasn't some one suggested Frank Norris's "Vandover and the Brute" to Von Stroheim? There are many other works that would make superb films under his direction: Harold Frederic's "The Damnation of Theron Ware," "Vincent O'Sullivan's "The Good Girl," and Willard Huntington Wright's "The Man of Promise."

Why not forsake for a moment, Mr. Carr, your strophes in idle praise of such thoroughly mediocre personalities as De Mille, Niblo, Neilan, Melford, et al., and go and see "Greed"—if it isn't already junked by the Comstocks.

CHARLES CASLEY.

The Dressmaker from Paris

Comedy and Romance

(Paramount)

"The Dressmaker From Paris" should aid materially to advance Leatrice Joy on the road of stardom. The part that she plays is exceptionally well suited to her, and the picture directed by Paul Bern, while somewhat artificial, will prove highly entertaining, especially in its comedy and romantic sentiment. The characters are very acceptably drawn, and there is a great deal of glitter to the fashion pageant as a spectacular high light.

"THE DRESSMAKER FROM PARIS" is the first picture in which Miss Joy has appeared in some months, and it is the second that she has made as a star. The first, "Changing Husbands," gave her but slight opportunity to display her acting ability. "The Dressmaker From Paris," on the other hand, seems especially well chosen to prove her talent for characterization. She is seen first in the picture as a little helper in a modiste's shop, very quaint and Frenchy with her tam o' shanter perched on her head, and in the later scenes as a fashionable modiste.

Like a number of other features now being released, "The Dressmaker From Paris" echoes the war period. The opening sequences, in fact, transpire while the conflict is still in progress, and are laid in Paris. Here is set forth the meeting between the little dressmaker and an American officer on furlough.

The introduction of the two is very brightly accomplished when the girl accuses the man of stealing a package containing a dress. The reason for this accusation is that he happens to be carrying a box of size and shape similar to the one that she had lost.

The meeting turns into a friendship, and finally a romance, but the war interferes and the soldier is called back to the front. On his return the girl has disappeared.

The scene shifts to a small town in Illinois. The setting is the old-fashioned department store of the community—one of those establishments where even items of the original stock may still be purchased at reduced prices.

The young officer has now returned to civil life and is manager of the store. The further fact is brought out that he is affianced to the daughter of the tight-fisted and conservative proprietor. The girl, as it happens, is really in love with another chap.

This portion of the picture is largely devoted to the drawing of the character of the proprietor, and to bringing out the obligation which the hero feels personally about marrying the daughter. It also evolves a plan on the part of the younger folk to avail themselves

Louise Dresser Arrives

FAME on the stage is one thing; fame in pictures another. And the best evidence recently of this fact is the experiance of Louise Dresser.

After nearly two years of waiting for a big chance, she has succeeded to the title character in "The Goose Woman," which Clarence Brown is directing for Universal. The production is considered one of the most important on the program of that organization, as Brown recently made that unusual feature, "Smouldering Fires," with Pauline Frederick.

Miss Dresser is one of the most widely known women of the musical shows and of vaudeville. She has introduced some of the biggest song hits of recent years, and she played the feminine lead in a George M. Cohan revue that was rated as one of the most representative of American achievements in this line.

All this was vastly different from acting in the films. In the beginning she took bits and small parts as they offered to get experience. She was almost on the verge of giving up six months ago, even though she had had a good role in "The City That Never Sleeps," the James Cruze picture.

Now apparently the fates have settled her destiny. "The Goose Woman" not only offers her the opportunity for an unusual and dominating portrayal of drab suffering of the "Madame X" sort, but also to vision a set of brilliant and colorful operatic heroines in sequences reflecting the early life of the character that she plays, glimpses of both being shown herewith. The novel from which the picture is adapted was written by Rex Beach.

ELL, all I can say of Corinne Griffith's new venture is that she must be a good gambler.

A Thriller de Luxe

Chaney in Action Again

"PHANTOM OF THE OPERA"
(Universal)

With Lon Chaney in a series of new and surprising make-up disguises, and an air of mystery lurking in a majority of the scenes, "Phantom of the Opera" ought to prove just as popular as some of the best selling detective and thrill fiction. As a production, it is a true novelty. Much has been accomplished in enhancing its spectacular appeal by very lavish settings, and an ample use of color photography. The color photography really adds tremendously to the ocular appeal, because it is used in an elaborately costumed bal masque, and also in some of the scenes showing a performance in the Paris Grand Opera House.

As the Phantom, Lon Chaney eclipses all past achievements in gruesome make-up. Mary Philbin, as Christine, might well be terrified in the presence of such a repugnant appearing individual.

The search for the Phantom's lair begins. Norman Kerry and Arthur Edmund Carew about to descend into the dungeons of the opera house.

UNIVERSAL may be depended upon to come forth with a film feature overshadowing all the general run of pictures about once every year nowadays. "Phantom of the Opera" is their current big spectacle, and those who remember favorably "Merry-Go-Round" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" will doubtless find an unusual enjoyment in this latest of their film spectacles.

"The Phantom" is decidedly a big picture in regard to production. Possibly the story is not quite on a par with all this splendid investiture, critically considered, but there is no doubt that it will appeal popularly. It is good entertainment, with narrow escapes, and last-minute rescues, and spooky effects giving emphasis to a general tone of interest and suspense.

That the picture completely escapes dragging at all stages of its development can hardly be asserted. There are one or two lapses in this respect.

Some objections may also be found to a gruesomeness, but I do not believe that these will affect the genuine popularity of the film. We have grown to expect Lon Chaney to invoke a few horrors in every performance that he gives, and would probably be disappointed if he failed to do this. His first appearance in the make-up of his character is rather deftly treated and consequently does not come with sufficient of a shock to cause any more fainting than usual on the part of certain more sensitive members of an audience.

The setting of "The Phantom" is really remarkable. The Paris Grand Opera House, one of the most historic theaters in the world, has been reproduced in the most painstaking detail. The grand staircase itself is a revelation of studio construction. The stage, the boxes, the rows and rows of orchestral seats and even the giant chandelier suspended from overhead are all there, and all help to form an enticing background for the more glittering goings-on in the plot.

There are other backgrounds, too. These are for the mystery. They are the huge cellars where the scenery for the operas is kept. Their darkness and shadows are symbolic of the nocturnal mischief plotted by the Phantom.

To go into the telling of the story of "The Phantom" in any detail would be to detract from its appeal. It is a kind of story, in fact, that it is best merely to sketch in an advance review.

The main problem that confronts everybody in the plot, as well as the audience, is the discovering of who the Phantom is, and also his hiding-place. He has sometimes been known to occupy a box in the theater during a performance, and he is reputed to have strangled numerous employees around the theater who became too well aware of his identity.

The heroine of the story is a young opera singer. She is loved by a French nobleman. She has been trained in the art of song by an instructor whom she has never actually seen, but whose voice she has heard through the walls of her dressing-room. He exerts over her an almost hypnotic spell, and promises some day that he will claim her hand in return for the fame he has brought her. He is, of course, the Phantom.

At the opening of the story, the old directors of the opera house have turned over the theater to a new group.

WELL, all I can say of Corinne Griffith's new venture is that she must be a good gambler.

For all anybody knows, Al Santell may turn out to be a dramatic director of such power and genius that Griffith, Lubitsch and De Mille may chip in for a box of poison pills and commit suicide together.

But the fact is, nobody knows. Until now, Mr. Santell has been known chiefly for comedies. He has not been in the "big leagues," at least as a dramatic director.

The Wrong Stories

Not even the fair Corinne herself could deny that she has lost heavily in prestige during the last year.

Although "Black Oxen" was a successful picture, Miss Griffith did not add to her personal fame thereby. She was miscast, to begin with. It wasn't her stuff. She was sunk before being launched.

If she appeared in any pictures between that and that "Love in the Wilderness" thing, they were not of enough moment to be remembered.

The last-named picture was cheap rubbish. It was like an old-fashioned serial without the pauses for breath.

Delicate and Rare

Miss Griffith could be the biggest drawing card in the movies—if she had the right kind of stories.

There is nothing for her in jungle thunderstorms, with leering bad men in need of a shave—bang-bang shooting scenes and rides to the rescue.

You have only to watch her when she is off the screen to realize that. She has a rare, delicate beauty. She moves slowly and languidly. Herb Howe says she is like a beautiful Persian cat. Her smile is slow and reluctant. She always suggests some secret dissatisfaction, as though she had been listening to a piano out of tune.

She is one of those girls who sit up when she sees some one coming across the set to speak to her. She watches them with a curious detachment until they come; then she sits up and waits to hear what they are going to say.

Subtle and Fine

Generally speaking, you can be pretty sure that a beautiful girl who is at once clever and sure of herself—yet negative—is a very subtle character.

And Corinne Griffith is very subtle. She is subtle and delicate and fine. And, just so, the plays in which she appears ought to be subtle and delicate. She ought to be gently swayed to and fro by perfumed zephyrs; not flung around by jungle thunderstorms.

The Desired

In her plays, she ought always to be the desired.

She should be the object to be attained. The flower to be grasped.

Dead Flowers

It was artistic murder in the first degree to have put her in a play in which she was advertised as:

"See the beautiful Corinne Griffith as a bigamist."

Even to see Corinne Griffith as a married woman on the screen is to decorate a house with dead flowers.

She should be the beautiful lady in the tower who makes the cold Sir Galahad forget the Holy Grail.

There Are Others

Valentino's next picture is to be directed by Alan Hale, who is an actor with only one or two pictures to his credit as a director.

As in the case of Mr. Santell, it is not a sign that he cannot merely because he has not.

Mary Pickford is also trying a new director. That is to say, a new director for her. William Beaudine has been at the megaphone for a long time. It was expected, however, that Mary would look to some old stand-by like Mickie Neilan for a picture so critical for her future as this one.

Mary and Mickie

It is one of Hollywood's open secrets that Mr. Neilan and Miss Pickford did not break off their joint picture plans with that spirit of brotherly and sisterly love enjoined by the Holy Scriptures. In fact, as the children in the Myra Kelly stories said: "They have a mad."

Mickie is now making the railroad section-hand picture he wanted to do with Mary. He has found what he thinks is a little new Mary Pickford in the person of a 16-year-old Irish girl named Chatsie Noonan.

They say that she is rarely beautiful and charming and is sure to make a sensation on the screen.

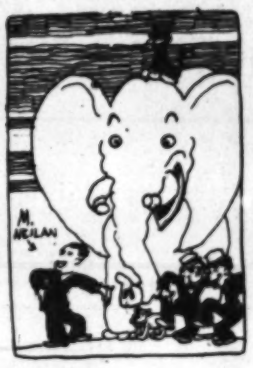
Neilan's Story

The story as it is growing under Mickie's hands is so funny and so charming that all Hollywood is talking about it.



It is full of dogs and cats and elephants and bad little boys and gags.

There are two old drunken Irishmen who think they see pink and green elephants. It would scarcely be fair to tell the gag that surrounds this situation. But it is Mickie at the top of his genius. And when Mickie is going right, and really interested, he is without a equal or a rival.

Von Stroheim

In her endeavor to write Von Stroheim down as a "brutal Hun," Mae Murray seems to have been outnumbered and disarmed.

Outnumbered by forty-two extra people, who chipped in from their pay to buy the Hunnish Mr. Von Stroheim the most beautiful and expensive cigarette case in Hollywood.

The truth is, Von Stroheim never succeeds in being as bad as he tries to be. His nerves are set on a hair-trigger. A large part of the time he lives in a state of excitement almost beyond human endurance.

But, inside, he is a tender-hearted, kindly, unselfish artist. The actors who have worked with him for long periods of time are always crazy about him.

Love Grows Cold

A newspaperman who quits his position of power is usually due for a strange and ironical experience. He finds that love and affection have a way of suddenly growing cold.

Such a one told me of his experiences the other day. When they found that he was no longer in a position to be made use of, his pathway through Hollywood became suddenly strewn with icicles.

The worst were the directors. Some of them passed him up cold. One well-known director even cut him dead the day after his resignation from the newspaper. The one notable exception among the directors was Cecil De Mille. He went out of his way to be more cordial than before.

Most of the actresses were careful not to let him realize there was any difference. This was especially true, he said, of Pola Negri.

Some of the actors were snubby; some were not. Two or three took a lot of pains to let him see that their friendship was not the kind that faded with publicity. This was especially so with Rod La Rocque and Adolphe Menjou.

Same Size Hat

Of all the actors in Hollywood who have suddenly risen to fame and wealth, the one who has seemed best able to hold his head is Harold Lloyd.

Putting aside the boys who have inherited great wealth and so do not count, I daresay that Lloyd is the richest young man of his age in the country. Aside from the actual value of the property he has accumulated, the potential value of his trade name must be enormous.

Yet he seems to be as simple and unassuming as when he started. Only the other day I heard him bewailing the fact that he had thought of a funny gag, but couldn't get it over with his "gang," as he calls his scenario and directing staff.

A Great Comedian

If I were Lloyd, however, I would ask Harry Langdon's cook, as a personal favor, to slip some arsenic into his soup.

During the years I have been in Hollywood, Langdon is the funniest comedian, and one of the best actors, I have seen get started.

He is funny for the same reason Chaplin is funny. All his comedy has an undercurrent of pity. Langdon realizes what Chaplin realizes: That comedy is not only akin to pity, but actually is pity. Only to the degree that it is pitiful is it also funny.

Again like Chaplin, Langdon's technique is slow, subtle and delicate. It has shades beyond shades.

I say "like Chaplin"; but the fact is he isn't in the least like Chaplin. He is like no one the screen has ever seen before—or is likely to see again. He is just Harry Langdon.

What a Fan Thinks

An admirer of Von Stroheim's "Greed" has written to me voicing his anguish and his praise as follows:

Dear Mr. Carr:

Von Stroheim has completely entered into the Norris spirit of realism, done not in the tedious manner of Arnold Bennett, say, but along the impressionistic lines of Stephen Crane. Von Stroheim is, as far as I know, the one impressionistic director in filmdom. Of course, the picture will be a failure. The night I saw it the audience seemed not even amazed, and their only reaction was an inane snicker at the more gruesome details of the story. Von Stroheim could make a picture, and a fine one, too, out of one brush stroke by Gauguin, one bar of Richard Strauss's "Don Juan," or a line by J. K. Huysman. How brummagem appears the tinsel gaudiness of De Mille and the cloying sentimentality of Neilan when compared with Von Stroheim's rigorously intellectual impressionism! The former try to reach the emotions through the emotions—an easy task—but Von Stroheim tries to reach the emotions through the mind.

Why hasn't some one suggested Frank Norris's "Vandover and the Brute" to Von Stroheim? There are many other works that would make superb films under his direction: Harold Frederic's "The Damnation of Theron Ware," "Vincent O'Sullivan's "The Good Girl," and Willard Huntington Wright's "The Man of Promise."

Why not forsake for a moment, Mr. Carr, your strophes in idle praise of such thoroughly mediocre personalities as De Mille, Niblo, Neilan, Melford, et al., and go and see "Greed"—if it isn't already junked by the Comstocks.

Making the Vamp Virtuous

The card catalogue vamp—hard, obvious, sinuous, without human emotions—is evidently to be consigned to the yesterdays.

In her place there comes the sympathetic vamp who does her headwork via heartwork. A mental review of the majority of vamps in recent pictures would almost lead to the belief that virtue had entered the ranks.

Not only do the pictures disclose vamps considerably altered in character, but the actresses themselves are not listed under that heading for the most part. Although they at times — though now rarely—play the unrelenting vamp, they occasionally also appear as the heroine.

Paulette Duval, for example, stands out in this group for her hard, calculating roles in "Monsieur Beaucaire" and "Cheaper to Marry," and yet in "The Exquisite Sinner," Josef Von Sternberg's first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, she appears as the nice, sweet fiancee of Conrad Nagel.

So it is with Phyllis Haver. In "The Snob" her vamping was slightly of the sympathetic character, and in "So Big," for contrast, she played a sweet noble character.

Just as the public becomes accustomed to Paulette Duval in the hard, calculating role of vamp, she is to appear in "The Exquisite Sinner" as a sweet and sympathetic character. Sally Long, it would seem, started as an entrant in the vamp class, but she is now to do a lead with Rudolph Valentino.

Helene D'Algy and Pauline Caron have played semi-vamp roles, but there is an enticing human quality to their work.

Among the newer players Lilyan Tashman might be described as a champ vamp, but she, too, invokes oftentimes the mood of sympathy. For clever sauciness Clara Bow takes some of the most sparkling honors.

ELL, all I can say of Corinne Griffith's new venture is that she must be a good gambler.

Louise Dresser Arrives

FAME on the stage is one thing; fame in pictures another. And the best evidence recently of this fact is the experience of Louise Dresser.

After nearly two years of waiting for a big chance, she has succeeded to the title character in "The Goose Woman," which Clarence Brown is directing for Universal. The production is considered one of the most important on the program of that organization, as Brown recently made that unusual feature, "Smouldering Fires," with Pauline Frederick.

Miss Dresser is one of the most widely known women of the musical shows and of vaudeville. She has introduced some of the biggest song hits of recent years, and she played the feminine lead in a George M. Cohan revue that was rated as one of the most representative of American achievements in this line.

All this was vastly different from acting in the films. In the beginning she took bits and small parts as they offered to get experience. She was almost on the verge of giving up six months ago, even though she had had a good role in "The City That Never Sleeps," the James Cruze picture.

Now apparently the fates have settled her destiny. "The Goose Woman" not only offers her the opportunity for an unusual and dominating portrayal of drab suffering of the "Madame X" sort, but also to vision a set of brilliant and colorful operatic heroines in sequences reflecting the early life of the character that she plays, glimpses of both being shown herewith. The novel from which the picture is adapted was written by Rex Beach.

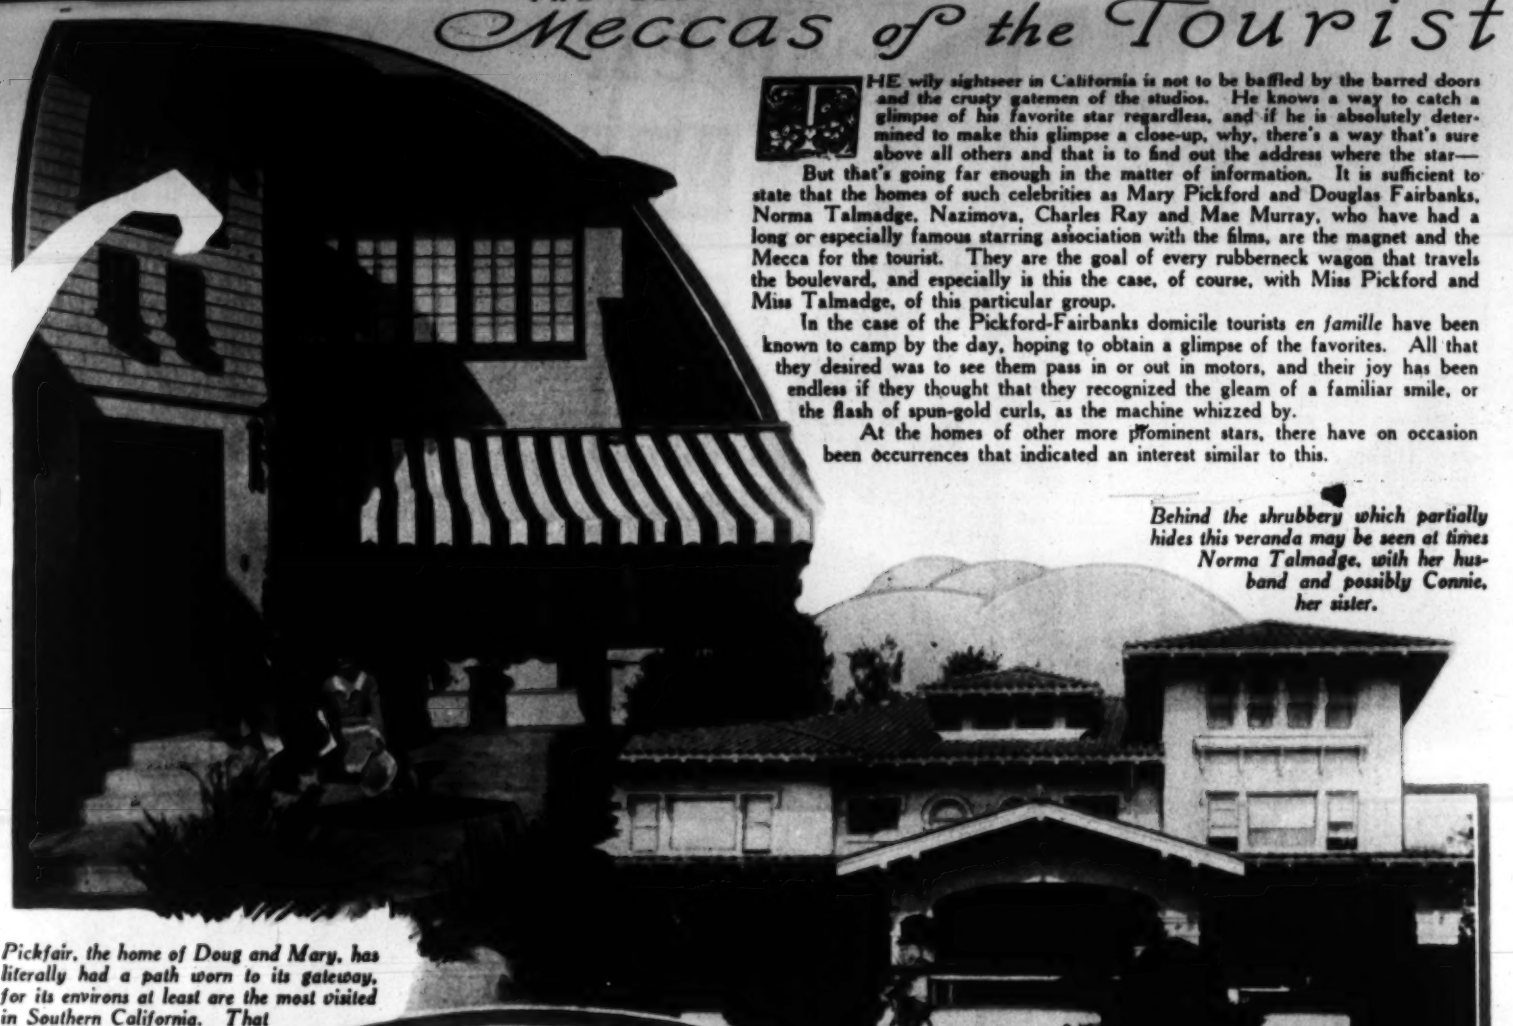
THE wily sightseer in California is not to be baffled by the barred doors and the crusty gatemen of the studios. He knows a way to catch a glimpse of his favorite star regardless, and if he is absolutely determined to make this glimpse a close-up, why, there's a way that's sure above all others and that is to find out the address where the star—

But that's going far enough in the matter of information. It is sufficient to state that the homes of such celebrities as Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Talmadge, Nazimova, Charles Ray and Mae Murray, who have had a long or especially famous starring association with the films, are the magnet and the Mecca for the tourist. They are the goal of every rubberneck wagon that travels the boulevard, and especially is this the case, of course, with Miss Pickford and Miss Talmadge, of this particular group.

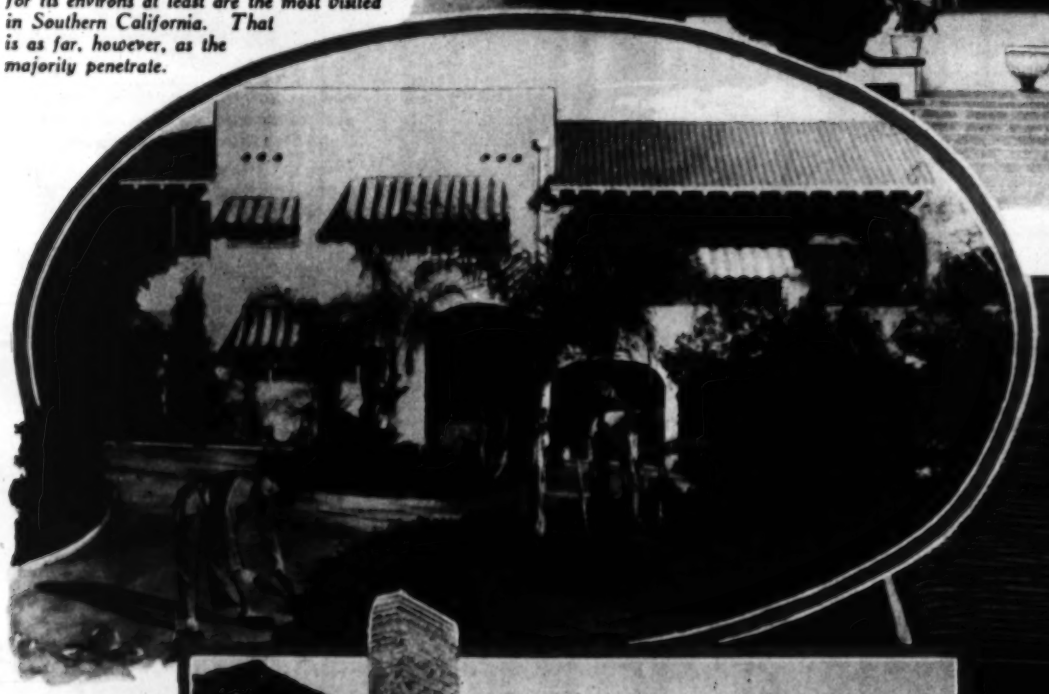
In the case of the Pickford-Fairbanks domicile tourists en famille have been known to camp by the day, hoping to obtain a glimpse of the favorites. All that they desired was to see them pass in or out in motors, and their joy has been endless if they thought that they recognized the gleam of a familiar smile, or the flash of spun-gold curls, as the machine whizzed by.

At the homes of other more prominent stars, there have on occasion been occurrences that indicated an interest similar to this.



Behind the shrubbery which partially hides this veranda may be seen at times Norma Talmadge, with her husband and possibly Connie, her sister.

Pickfair, the home of Doug and Mary, has literally had a path worn to its gateway, for its environs at least are the most visited in Southern California. That is as far, however, as the majority penetrate.



Perhaps of a Sunday morning the early-rising tourist may be able to descry Charles Ray hunting his morning paper, with his dog and bathrobe for company.

The home of Mae Murray in Beverly Hills is low and cozy. There is an added interest when Miss Murray can be seen on the veranda.

Everybody's going in for Comedy

IT CAN'T be true, but still it must be, since the advance glimpses of their plays, exhibited herewith, seem to prove it. The leading players in features have evidently decided to go in for slapstick. The views of Colleen Moore and Pola Negri, and also Irene Rich, at least seem to offer plenty of testimony of this change in affairs, events and circumstances pertaining to the much-chanted items of the serious screen player's poise and dignity.

Pola's picture, "The Charmer," looks without doubt to be one of the widest departures from her dramatic and tragic style that she has staged in many moons. Pola informed us not long ago that she once played in a comedy while abroad, but it looks as if she might now outdo even Gloria Swanson in "Manhandled."

Colleen Moore rather freely admits, we have heard, that "Sally" is full of slapstick. The glimpse of her kicking the dishes out of Leon Errol's hands leaves no doubt about it.

Consider, too, the derby that the ever reserved Jack Holt wears in "Eve's Secret." Where, outside of the comedies, have you ever seen a dicer—

Well, anyway, this isn't to be a season deficient in humor. For all the group have apparently formed a new kind of conspiracy to keep the audience rather more than less jubilant.

From this shot of Colleen Moore and Leon Errol we have a suspicion that the Sennett two-reelers are not the only place where fun is the result of smashed dishes.

Pola Negri will offer a new impression of herself entirely with hat perched on the back of her head and apparently just recovering from a sudden slip and a fall.

Lubitsch's style may hardly be considered slapstick, but he apparently is not underrating the humorous talents of either Willard Louis or Clara Bow in "Kiss Me Again."

Well— Iowa!

WE'VE found them out at last! The Iowans in the pictures! And if you think it was easy, why, we'll have to say, with regrets, that it wasn't. Some of the other States may have sent their dozens, their scores and their hundreds to California to act in the movies. But Iowa, in typically conservative fashion, seems to have exerted especial care to be well represented rather than amply.

They came not from Des Moines, Davenport and Sioux City, either, but nearly all from the provinces. Babe London is the single exception. Harry Langdon hails Council Bluffs as his birthplace, and that, of course, is one of the largest cities. Conrad Nagel registers from Keokuk, as does Raymond McKee. Jack Cunningham, the scenario writer, is from Iona; Raymond Hatton from Red Oak, and Betty Arlen from Munson.

In any event, Conrad Nagel, Harry Langdon and Raymond Hatton, in their divergent work as leading man, comedian and character man, reflect bright particular credit on their native State. Raymond McKee is a clever comer among the comedy juveniles, and humor seems the forte of some others.

We didn't actually believe that the romantic Conrad Nagel came from the good old town of Keokuk, but it's a fact that it is his birthplace.

Scenarioist Jack Cunningham looks as though he's recalling some boyhood incidents back in Iowa, but actually he is probably organizing Mary Pickford's story, "Little Annie Rooney," in his mind.
